Truman Asks Draft, Calls Russia Aggressor; House Group Votes for Full $5.3 Billion Aid; U. S. Arms a 'Hollow Shell,' Says Marshall

Senate Hearing On UMT, Draft Starts 2 Hours After Request

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Secretary of State George C. Marshall yesterday called for "decisive legislative action" on universal military training and revival of the draft to show the world we mean business.

World peace, he told the Senate Armed Services Committee, requires that we back up our diplomatic action with military strength. Yet the United States Army today is largely a "hollow shell," with only one full division at home available for action, he added.

Draft Bill Rushed

Marshall was the first witness called, as the Senate group started hearings on President Truman's military preparedness recommendations and the general defense situation a bare two hours after Congress received them.

As he spoke, defense officials downtown rushed preparation of a peacetime draft bill, which might call up one out of three young non-veterans aged 18 to 25.

The Secretary of State told the committee that exhaustive studies showed that UMT was the only way to obtain the military strength needed in the world today, without national bankruptcy. Other measures—such as overwhelming air power—are terribly expensive, and will not do the job, Marshall contended.

He insisted the program urged was not preparation for war, but the best means of avoiding it.

Estimates Being Prepared

"We desire a state of affairs which would make repetitions of the fate of Hungary and Czechoslovakia, the intimidation of Finland, the subversive operations in Italy and France, and the cold-blooded efforts to destroy the Greek government unlikely," Marshall said, "because they would definitely be fraught with real danger to those who would attempt such action."

Marshall said he was unable to estimate how many men would be called up if the draft is voted by Congress. Stressing the importance of UMT as the major portion of the two manpower measures, he suggested that the training program would greatly step up voluntary recruiting.

Pressed for an estimate, Marshall said:

"We need enough men to fill out present shortages and provide a reserve force within this coun-

(See Business Outlook, by J. A. Livingston. Page 16)

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Federal Mediation Director Cyrus S. Ching disclosed yesterday that he will meet today, separately, with the principals on both sides of the current coal strike.

He said he would see Ezra Van Horn, spokesman for the soft coal operators, in the morning, and then take lunch with John L. Lewis, miners' union chief.

The purpose, he said, was one of "exploring—to find out what's on their minds, the issues of the dispute and to see if the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service can be useful in the situation."

Earlier in the day, a congressional committee demanded that Lewis and Van Horn supply it with "all the facts" by tomorrow.

Senator Ball (R., Minn.), chairman of the joint "watchdog" committee on labor-management relations, telegraphed Lewis and Van Horn to submit their replies within 48 hours. Neither would comment yesterday as to what action they would take.

By last night the walkout which began Monday was virtually complete. Of about 400,000 miners, 350,000 left their jobs. One steel mill has already ordered production cutbacks. Steel industry leaders forecast severe curtailment if the shutdown continues for more than a week or two.

Meantime, it was learned yesterday that the Social Security Board estimated that the cost of a miners' pension plan proposed by Lewis—the issue in the strike—would be vastly more than the present welfare fund, which is supposed to pay for the pensions, could afford.

The SSB report said the cost would ultimately range from 75 to 160 million dollars a year. The fund, derived by royalty payments of 10 cents per ton of coal mined, is accumulating at the rate of about 50 million dollars a year. It is also supposed to afford death, disability and other health and welfare benefits.

It now stands at a little more than 30 million dollars, after accumulating for about 7½ months.

The SSB calculated that under conditions reportedly demanded by Lewis, the expense for the first year of operation of the pension plan would be between 50 and 70 million dollars.

If, however, pensions were restricted to only those miners over 60 years of age who are now in the U. N. Votes 9-2 For Full Airing On Communist Czech Seizure

Lake Success, March 17 (AP). The Security Council beat down bitter Soviet objections today and began probing into the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia.

The vote to take up the case was 9 to 2. Seven affirmative votes were needed.

Only Andrei A. Gromkyo, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, and his Soviet Ukrainian colleague, Vassilly A. Tarasenko, voted no.

The United Nations thus began a full airing of Chilean charges against Russia a few hours after President Truman told Congress in Washington that Russia is trying to dominate all of Europe.

Just before the Council convened, Gromyko told reporters he considered President Truman's speech to be "propaganda mainly for internal consumption."

Speech Overshadows Issues

Mr. Truman's address plainly overshadowed the tense developments here. The largest crowd to attend a Council meeting in months applauded three separate times as delegates answered Gromyko and Tarasenko.

The complaint against Russia was brought before the Council by Herman Santa Cruz, Chilean delegate and vice president of the United Nation Economic and Social Council, on the personal and direct orders of the President of Chile.

Gromyko lost no time telling the Council that the complaint was "pure slander." Gromyko charged that "influential external circles" were acting through "puppets" and "lackeys" to bring the Czechoslovak case here.

Santa Cruz, Warren R. Austin of the United States, Dr. Alfonso Lopez and Colombia and Dr. T. F. Tsiang of China, teamed up in a sharp rebuke to Gromyko for using what they called aggressive language.

Debate Set for Monday

The Council adjourned the Czechoslovak debate until 2:30 p.m. Monday after hearing Santa Cruz declare Chile does not want the United Nation to suffer the same fate as the League of Nations.

Santa Cruz said his country believed it had a moral obligation to sponsor the charges against Russia originally made a week ago today by Dr. Jan Papanek. Papanek was Czechoslovakia's delegate then but the Prague government fired him last Saturday. He has declined to accept dismissal.

Before the Council convened 14 demonstrators calling themselves "American Friends of Slovak Freedom" paraded in a parking lot on U. N. grounds.

They carried banners denouncing Premier Stalin of Russia and what they called Russian imperialism. One of the group described the organization as a separatist

Senate's Figure On ERP Speeded Through Despite Stiff Opposition

The House Foreign Affairs Committee voted yesterday to authorize the full $5,300,000,000 requested for the first year of the European Recovery Program.

This was the first concrete response from Capitol Hill to President Truman's plea to hurry the passage of ERP. The committee not only approved the same figure the Senate had voted last week, but it also approved a four-year program along the lines of the Senate bill.

It approved the full amount in spite of determined efforts by Representative Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.) and some Republican committee members to cut it to a lower figure.

Corporation Plan Defeated

It also defeated Herter's plan for a corporation-type ERP management, and approved the Senate's formula of a single administrator at the head of a new Government agency.

Two concessions were made to Herter, according to the account given to reporters after the closed committee meeting. One would let the administrator with presidential approval, set up corporations to help him in his work.

The other, more important, would require one billion dollars of the $5,300,000,000 total to take the form of loans from the Export-Import Bank. The billion dollars would be a public debt transaction, and would not need to be approved by Representative John Taber's axe-wielding Appropriations Committee.

Representative John M. Vorys (R., Ohio), who probably will lead the floor fight for ERP in the House, explained that the rest of the $5,300,000,000 would be available for loans or grants, but that loans could not be made from it until the billion in the Export-Import Bank was exhausted.

Attacked by Democrats

Some Democratic committee members promptly attacked the billion-dollar device as "dishonest and reckless."

Meanwhile the Senate Foreign Relations Committee held its second closed meeting on the proposed 275 million dollars of military aid to Greece and Turkey, and planned to start writing a separate bill on the subject tomorrow.

Grim Recital

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday asked Congress for a big stick to stop Communist aggression. For the first time he singled out Russia bluntly by name as the aggresor in Europe.

In one, two, three order he urged quick fulfillment of ERP, prompt enactment of universal training and temporary revival of the draft.

Applause, Criticism Light

He laid his recommendations on the line before an undemonstrative joint session of Congress tautly anticipating everything the President requested, and more.

The Republican side of the overflowing House chamber was light on applause, but was also sparing in criticism. GOP leaders generally made no commitments beyond their already grooved action for ERP but there was betting in the lobbies that the President will get at least one of his other two points.

Temporary revival of Selective Service, to bring the armed forces to authorized strength, was apparently favored in leadership quarters over immediate enactment of universal training.

Leaders plainly had their ears to the ground and were waiting for popular reaction to the speech. For the record, they promised only "consideration" of both points. Meanwhile, they renewed pledges of increased Air Force and other military appropriations, not even mentioned in his message.

St. Patrick's Setting

From the green carnation in the President's lapel to the shillelagh with which he clubbed Russia, it was a St. Patrick's Day setting throughout. But that was the only thing festive about it.

It was an unsmiling President who accused Russia of violating agreements, obstructing the work of the United Nations, ruthlessly destroying the independence of a whole series of nations and planning to subjugate the remaining free nations of Europe.

It was the toughest talk by a President about another world power since Franklin Roosevelt opened fire on the Axis.

But he never slammed the door. He said it "has never been closed, nor will it ever be closed, to the Soviet Union or any other nation which will genuinely cooperate in preserving the peace."

The President received prolonged standing applause from both sides of the aisle and the galleries as he walked down the main aisle at 12:30 p. m. and again when he mounted the rostrum. He was midway through his speech before he received any more, but it wasn't a cheer-rousing message.

It was the President's call for a virtual United States guarantee of the five-nation 50-year economic cooperation and common defense

Row Rages in House Over Pigeonholing of Bills by Committee

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Defeat of all efforts to reduce special taxes and license fees on margarine by a Republican-controlled House Agriculture Committee Tuesday sent wholesale butter prices skyrocketing yesterday.

In Chicago, the market shot up from 6 to 8 cents a pound, with top grades closing at 84 cents and other grades ranging down to 82½ cents a pound.

Row Rages in House

Meanwhile the row over the committee's action in pigeonholing all 18 bills submitted this session raged in the House.

Representative Thomas G. Abernathy (D., Miss.) said the committee "has refused to stand up and be counted." Abernathy was one of the Representatives from cotton and soybean areas who carried on the fight against the 62-year-old butter-protecting laws. Most margarine today is made of soybean, cottonseed, peanut or corn oils.

Abernathy said he suggested that the committee take down or turn to the walls all cotton pictures in the committee room, "since cotton doesn't have equal representation here."

Action Called "Bunk"

Abernathy said the "only hope" now is a petition to take the bills from the committee and put them before the House. He said he and Representative L. Mendel Rivers (D., S. C.) had such a petition, signed by 72 members. It must have 218 signatures to bring the bills to the floor.

Priceless Paintings On View for Month At National Gallery

By Dorothea Andrews

"Terrific!"

That was the word most frequently applied yesterday to a group of 202 paintings, some of them 700 years old, all of them world famous, that went on display for the first time in the United States at the National Gallery of Art.

But most of the 8390 persons who viewed the collection during its first day of exhibition could find no proper words to express their sentiments.

C. G. Stapko, 3613 Prospect ave. nw., who frequently copies pictures at the gallery, started off with "The craftsmanship — the techniques—" and then could only shrug. "It just puts about all the modern art in the trash can," he finally said.

There was no formal opening of the collection of paintings, property of the German government, which had been in Berlin museums before the war, and which had been hidden by that government in the Merkers salt mine.

Displayed at the request of the Department of the Army, the paintings selected to be brought to the United States were the best of the art in the Berlin museums, and are priceless. The 202 canvasses brought here alone have an insurance value of 80 million dollars.

The paintings are on display from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. on weekdays and from 2 to 10 p. m. on Sundays. Staff talks will be given on the Berlin collection daily. One tour is to be held this week daily at 3:30 p. m. among the paintings on the second floor of the gallery. The paintings also will be discussed at a 11 a. m. general gallery tour.

Fear Red Satellites May Get Out of Hand Seen Behind Plea

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Why did President Truman call the situation in Europe "critical"? Why did he suddenly ask Congress for military measures?

There were two main reasons, The Washington Post was told yesterday—both of them springing directly from the Communist seizure of power in Czechoslovakia.

The first was a new-born fear that the Communist advances in Europe might get out of hand, and that Soviet Premier Stalin might not be able to put the brakes on his satellites.

The second was a conviction that Russia, as well as the remaining free nations of Europe, must be shown perfectly plainly that the United States "means business."

Plea Cabled by Smith

As a matter of fact, it was learned that Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith, in Moscow, pleaded for the quick adoption of universal military training the day after the overturn in Czechoslovakia. He cabled to Secretary Marshall to ask, in effect, "Can't you get Congress to do something on UMT? That's all the Russians will understand."

The message was received on February 25, on the very day Secretary Marshall was holding a cable discussion with Foreign Secretary Bevin of Great Britain and Foreign Minister Bidault of France on how to answer the events in Prague. They agreed to issue a three-power statement of condemnation, but Bevin, in his usual blunt fashion, said the statement amounted to a confession of impotence.

At the same time alarm bells were ringing in most of the remaining free capitals of Europe. Appeals for American reassurance,

West Europe Treaty Signed By 5 Nations

Brussels, Belgium, March 17 (U.P.). Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg today bound their 107 million people to fight as a unit against any aggressor by signing a 50-year mutual defense treaty.

"If any of the high contracting parties should be the object of armed attack in Europe the other high contracting parties will . . . afford the party so attacked all military and other aid and assistance in their power," the treaty specified.

A consulative council will be established here to insure cooperation in economic and political fields. This council will meet at once in event of a "threat to the peace in whatever area this threat shall arise."

Foreign ministers of the five countries signed the 10-point treaty in the hall of the Academy of the Sciences here, a little more than an hour before President Truman made his historic statement of American policy to Congress in Washington.

"It is only the beginning," cried British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin as he signed.

Bevin was voicing the strong

Big Powers to Ask U. N. Steps to End Palestine Strife

Lake Success, March 17 (U.P.)—The big powers agreed tentatively tonight to request immediate steps by the United Nations Security Council to end the warfare in Palestine.

The United States, Russia, France and China also decided to ask for a Council declaration that it would not allow any threat to peace to exist in the Holy Land.

Only differences on one secondary point kept the four conferess from final agreement on the text of a compromise report to be submitted to the Council when it again takes up the Palestine dilemma Friday morning.

Maryland Speech Teachers Stick Necks 'Aeout'

Two University of Maryland speech teachers stuck their necks "aeout" yesterday.

Marylanders, said Lyle V. Mayer, phonetics instructor, "have none of the niceties of the Southerner and most of the crudities of the Easterner."

They use "aeout" for out, "reound" for round, and "heouse" for house, he said.

Yes, chimed in Dr. Ray Ehrensberger, speech department head, they put the accent on the wrong syllable, drop syllables and drop their G's. "It's horrible!" he said.

Mayer was raised in Minnesota, educated at Stanford University, California, and was formerly dialect director for Paramount moving picture studios. Ehrensberger is a native of Indianapolis. Both are instructors in Baltimore.

Baltimore GI Writes Mother How He Escaped Reds' Bullets

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

Pvt. Samuel Adleman of Baltimore was shot at three times by Russian guards in Vienna as he ran to get help for his buddy, the victim of the unprovoked Russian attack of March 8, Adleman told his mother in an account received by her yesterday.

Adleman

Adleman's buddy, Pvt. Jack Grunden, 18, of Portland, Oreg., was shot in the back by a Russian after being knocked down in front of a Russian billet hotel in an incident that brought protests from military commanders of both nations.

Mrs. Ralph Adleman of 3788 Columbus dr., Baltimore, mother of Grunden's buddy, told The Washington Post her son had written his account to her on March 10, two days after the shooting. It read, in part, as follows:

". . . My buddy got shot the other night by some Russians, as you can read in the clipping. I was with him and almost got shot myself. I was fired at three times, but got away.

"I have been going to the CID (Criminal Investigation Division) about every day for about 8 hours. I made a statement about the whole thing, because I was the only one with him, besides the guy who was with us but who took off when the shooting started, and the three girls.

"Here is the story as it really happened. We were coming back from a club and we were passing a Russian officers' hotel, and a drunken Russian with his head bandaged up came up and started to call us names and hitting us.

"We tried to talk to him and he called a Russian guard that came running over and tried to talk to him, but he started hitting me with his rifle and kicking me. I saw I could not talk to him, and a third Russian came out, and I could not talk to him, either.

"He went over to fight my buddy, and I went over to help him out, that is, my buddy. My buddy fell down, and when he went down, the Russian shot him in the back and it went through his arm. When the shooting started, and I saw my buddy was shot, I ran to get help.

"When I started to take off, the Russians started shooting at me, but missed, and I called help and the hospital. I went to the Bristol Hotel, which is the officers' hotel in the First Regiment. The officer that runs the hotel came out and asked me what happened, and I told him. He told me not

Wallace Blasts Truman Talk As 'Shameful' Call to Arms

New York, March 17 (AP).—Henry A. Wallace described President Truman's speech before Congress today as "a shameful call for world remobilization."

The third party candidate for President said:

"It is a shameful call for world remobilization, a complete admission of the failure of the Truman Doctrine and a call for an American police state to which I shall pay my complete respects in a broadcast over the ABC network at 10:45 p. m. (EST) tomorrow night."

Wallace has titled his address "Wallace Answers Truman." It will be broadcast over WJZ-ABC and affiliated stations.

Taylor Draws Rebuke In Criticizing Truman

By The Associated Press

Senator Taylor (D., Idaho), Henry Wallace's running mate, drew a quick rebuke from colleagues yesterday after he charged President Truman had "practically destroyed the United Nations."

Taylor, vice presidential candidate on the Wallace third party ticket, spoke in the Senate shortly after Mr. Truman appealed to Congress for greater armed strength

After Law Is Passed

Draftees Could Be in Uniform In 3 Months, Official Predicts

It will take at least three months to get a new crop of draftees into uniform, according to an official of the District Selective Service organization.

Assuming that Congress enacts President Truman's proposed draft legislation into law, two months would be consumed in the setting up of draft machinery here, including registration, physical examination, and other details. Induction of men would follow, taking the third month.

That was the opinion yesterday of Frank D. Norton, director of the District Office of Selective Service Records. He said an unofficial "stand-by" group of some 300 wartime draft board members is available for immediate action.

Up to closing time yesterday, however, Norton reported no instructions had "come down" from national OSSR headquarters in the same building as local headquarters at 21st and C sts. nw., as a result of the President's request for a temporary draft.

He pointed out that Congress must first pass a draft law before draft boards can come back into existence. They went out of business in March, 1947, with death of the old draft law.

Until such time, he said, the District OSSR — which has dwindled to five employes—will continue maintaining records of World War II veterans.

The unofficial "stand-by" group

PEOPLE In The NEWS

By John London
Post Reporter

[Today's "People in the News" is devoted to interviews with that all important personage, the "man on the street."—Editor's note.]

Twelve persons interviewed at random in downtown Washington yesterday voiced solid support of President Truman's request for revival of the draft and universal training.

Approval of the President's request for speedy passage by Congress of the European program was shakier.

Some felt aid to Europe was necessary but wondered if the aid is being properly administered. Others feared the aid might wind up in enemy hands or in the black market.

Almost all admired the strong tone of the President's remarks on Russia.

Renrich

Howard K. Renrich, 28, cab driver, 111 Flower ave., Takoma Park, Md., fets "very provoked with people who talk about the United States for the United States alone." He is sure the only way war with Russia can be avoided is by surpassing them in strength," and so favors universal training and the draft.

I don't believe in a miltaristic country," said Renrich. "But we can't depend on England like we used to, so who else is there but us to tsand up to Russia?" Aid to European countries is "late," but we can help countries "not yet overrun to resist."

Mrs. Handmacher

A model, Mrs. Gloria Handmacher, 21, 3355 16th st. nw., "would sure hate to see my husband back in the medical corps," but agrees with the President that "you've got to pay the price of peace." Hence, she approves of the draft.

The doctor's wife hopes "we investigate to make sure the aid is evenly distributed to the countries that need it most."

Joseph E. Beasley, 49, 2016 Monroe st. nw. liked Mr. Truman's speech. "Sure, I sold all my papers by 3 p. m. and couldn't get enough more," said Beasley, disabled World War I veteran, who thinks military training a good thing for youth.

Beasley

Favoring aid abroad where needed, he declared: "You help people in need, wherever they are."

Waitress Thelma Taliaferro, 28, 951 Massachusetts ave. nw., remembers "how we sent scrap iron to Japan before the war, then they turned around and used it on us." So she would limit aid to food and clothing.

Mrs. Taliaferro

Universal military training, she said, is necessary "to prevent what happened at Pearl Harbor when we didn't have enough ready."

Marine Corps Veteran William G. Jones, 22, 127 Reed ave., Alexandria, "would hate to go back but "I'd be willing if necessary." But, Jones, gas station night manager, has doubts about the European Recovery Program:

Jones

"After you get those countries built up they might go in with Russia and they might turn on us."

The way an elevator operator, Mrs. Verlyne West, 35, 636 12th st. ne., sees it: "We should have had military training all the time—train the kids like the Germans used to do."

Mrs. West

"I don't think it can prevent war, but it may help us fight better," she said. Mrs. West is afraid aid to Europe may be "building Europe up to fight us."

Clarence A. Davis, 42, 3905 Oglethorpe st., Hyattsville, Md., who indorses Mr. Truman's proposals, found the President's speech "very good and strong, but 12 months too late."

Davis

The country must make clear "that it won't be pushed around," said the streetcar inspector, who believes the "moral influence of European aid will be a greater benefit even than the material effect."

Mr. Truman's speech "was so strong and good it surprised" Mrs. Ellen M. Canning, 44, Post Office secretary, 3870 Rodman st. nw. "He just told Congress there's the situation and it's got to be controlled." The draft is necessary, she thinks, "to prepare for war, which certainly is threatening us now."

Mrs. Canning

Mrs. Canning has a general idea about the aid plan, but says "I don't know enough to know if it can help or not."

J. N. Bailey, executive director of the Frequency Modulation Association, admired the President "because he didn't pull punches and named names."

Bailey

Military training, he said, would 'enable us to take on all comers ... and do a lot for our youth, and that goes, too, for my son, who's 20." He would "go along with th ePresident and Secretary of State on European aid although there is talk about diversion to the black market."

William L. Walker, 54, chauffeur, 165 U st. nw. fears "war is just around the corner." He believes universal military training is "a good measure even if its not needed for war because it builds men physically, mentally, and spiritually."

Walker

"I know from experience at Hampton Institute and Army service in the first war," said Walker. "I've got two sons, 27 and 24, and I think they benefited by service and I think they think so."

A housewife, Mrs. Bette Pond, 28, 5410 8th st. nw., is convinced "we have to give Russia the works—a dose of her own medicine."

Mrs. Pond

The draft and aid to Europe are necessary to "face force with force," she thinks, and "to make friends abroad unless we are to stand alone, maybe fall alone." Her husband works for the Atomic Energy Commission.

About to be discharged after five years' service, AOMT3dC George Cary, 21, Cleveland, Ohio, favors the draft because:

Cary

"I just came from Naval Air Test Center Patuxent (Md.) and they're short on all kind of personnel there. And we got to get the first blow in when war comes. It won't last long."

"Some aid to Europe is necessary," Cary said, "but I'm afraid some stuff is getting into the black market and being used over there for politics."

Transjordan Armed Under British Pact

London, (Thursday) March 18 (AP).—Britain traded money, military material and aircraft for the right to maintain airbases and training troops in Transjordan under a new 20-year joint defense treaty, it was disclosed today.

Terms of the pact signed Monday at Amman provide that either country would "invite" the other to bring in forces in the event of war 'or a menace of hostilities." A joint defense board is established to decide where British troops may be stationed. RAF airbases are to be maintained at Amman and Mafrak.

Britain agreed to provide arms, ammunition, aircraft and other war material to Transjordan and continue financial assistance to King Abdullah.

Diplomatic sources said this meant continuance of Britain's annual two million pound (eight million dollars) grant for maintenance of the Arab Legion, a 15,000-man desert fighting force.

Britain will supply personnel for training Transjordan forces.

The pact with Palestine's next-door neighbor replaces one of two years ago. Arab leaders criticized the old treaty because it allowed Britain to station troops anywhere in the country without consultation.

'Landing Boot' Fund Started for MacArthur

Providence, R. I., March 17 (AP).—A campaign for funds to buy Gen. Douglas MacArthur a pair of boots for use "when wading ashore at Los Angeles" upon his return to this country was started today by two Brown University freshmen.

Daniel Fencrick of Chevy Chase, Md., and Charles J. Cooper of Tampa, Fla., set up "boots for MacArthur drive" headquarters and said they hoped to raise $10.60 ... enough to buy a pair of boots.

Text of Truman's Address to Joint Session of Congress

MR. PRESIDENT, Mr. Speaker, Members of the Congress:

I am here today to report to you on the critical nature of the situation in Europe, and to recommend action for your consideration.

Rapid changes are taking place in Europe which affect our foreign policy and our national security. There is an increasing threat to nations which are striving to maintain a form of government which grants freedom to its citizens. The United States is deeply concerned with the survival of freedom in those nations. It is of vital importance that we act now, in order to preserve the conditions under which we can achieve lasting peace based on freedom and justice.

The achievement of such a peace has been the great goal of this Nation.

Almost three years have elapsed since the end of the greatest of all wars, but peace and stability have not returned to the world. We were well aware that the end of the fighting would not automatically settle the problems arising out of the war. The establishment of peace after the fighting is over has always been a difficult task. And even if all the Allies of World War II were united in their desire to establish a just and honorable peace, there would still be great difficulties in the way of achieving that goal.

BUT THE situation in the world today is not primarily the result of the natural difficulties which follow a great war. It is chiefly due to the fact that one nation has not only refused to cooperate in the establishment of a just and honorable peace, but—even worse—has actively sought to prevent it.

The Congress is familiar with the course of events.

You know of the sincere and patient attempts of the democratic nations to find a secure basis for peace through negotiation and agreement. Conference after conference has been held in different parts of the world. We have tried to settle the questions arising out of the war on a basis which would permit the establishment of a just peace. You know the obstacles we have encountered. But the record stands as a monument to the good faith and integrity of the democratic nations of the world. The agreements we did obtain, imperfect though they were, could have furnished the basis for a just peace—if they had been kept.

But they were not kept.

They have been persistently ignored and violated by one nation.

THE CONGRESS is also familiar with the developments concerning the United Nations. Most of the countries of the world have joined together in the United Nations in an attempt to build a world order based on law and not on force. Most of the members support the United Nations earnestly and honestly, and seek to make it stronger and more effective.

One nation, however, has persistently obstructed the work of the United Nations by constant abuse of the veto. That nation has vetoed 21 proposals for action in a little over two years.

But that is not all. Since the close of hostilities, the Soviet Union and its agents have destroyed the independence and democratic character of a whole series of nations in Eastern and Central Europe.

It is this ruthless course of action, and the clear design to extend it to the remaining free nations of Europe, that have brought about the critical situation in Europe today.

The tragic death of the republic of Czechoslovakia has sent a shock throughout the civilized world. Now pressure is being brought to bear on Finland, to the hazard of the entire Scandinavian peninsula. Greece is under direct military attack from rebels actively supported by her Communist-dominated neighbors. In Italy, a determined and aggressive effort is being made by a Communist minority to take control of that country. The methods vary, but the pattern is all too clear.

FACED with this growing menace, there have been encouraging signs that the free nations of Europe are drawing closer together for their economic well-being and for the common defense of their liberties.

In the economic field, the movement for mutual self-help to restore conditions essential to the preservation of free institutions is well under way. In Paris, the 16 nations which are cooperating in the European Recovery Program are meeting again to establish a joint organization to work for the economic restoration of western Europe.

The United States has strongly supported the efforts of these nations to repair the devastation of war and restore a sound world economy. In presenting this program to the Congress last December, I emphasized the necessity for speedy action. Every event in Europe since that day has underlined the great urgency for the prompt adoption of this measure.

The Soviet Union and its satellites were invited to cooperate in the European Recovery Program. They rejected the invitation. More than that, they have declared their violent hositility to the program and are aggressively attempting to wreck it.

THEY see in it a major obstacle to their designs to subjugate the free community of Europe. They do not want the United States to help Europe. They do not even want the 16 cooperating countries to help themselves.

While economic recovery in Europe is essential, measures for economic rehabilitation alone are not enough. The free nations of Europe realize that economic recovery, if it is to succeed, must be afforded some measure of protection against internal and external aggression. The movement toward economic cooperation has been followed by a movement toward common self-protection in the face of the growing menace to their freedom.

At the very moment I am addressing you, five nations of the European community, in Brussels, are signing a 50-year agreement for economic cooperation and common defense against aggression.

This action has great significance, for this agreement was not imposed by the decree of a more powerful neighbor. It was the free choice of independent governments representing the will of their people, and acting within the terms of the Charter of the United Nations.

Its significance goes far beyond the actual terms of the agreement itself. It is a notable step in the direction of unity in Europe for the protection and preservation of its civilization. This development deserves our full support. I am confident that the United States will, by appropriate means, extend to the free nations the support which the situation requires. I am sure that the determination of the free countries of Europe to protect themselves will be matched by an equal determination on our part to help them to do so.

The recent developments in Europe present this Nation with fundamental issues of vital importance.

I BELIEVE that we have reached a point at which the position of the United States should be made unmistakably clear.

The principles and purposes expressed in the Charter of the United Nations continue to represent our hope for the eventual establishment of the rule of law in international affairs. The Charter constitutes the basic expression of the code of international ethics to which this country is dedicated. We cannot, however, close our eyes to the harsh fact that through obstruction and defiance on the part of one nation, this great dream has not yet become a full reality.

It is necessary, therefore, that we take additional measures to supplement the work of the United Nations and to support its aims. There are times in world history when it is far wiser to act than to hesitate. There is some risk involved in action—there always is. But there is far more risk in failure to act.

For if we act wisely now, we shall strengthen the powerful forces for freedom, justice and peace which are represented by the United Nations and the free nations of the world.

I regard it as my duty, therefore, to recommend to the Congress those measures which, in my judgment, are best calculated to give support to the free and democratic nations of Europe and to improve the solid foundation of our own national strength.

FIRST, I recommend that the Congress speedily complete its action on the European Recovery program. That program is the foundation of our policy of assistance to the free nations of Europe. Prompt passage of that program is the most telling contribution we can now make toward peace.

The decisive action which the Senate has taken without regard to partisan political considerations is a striking example of the effective working of democracy.

Time is now of critical importance. I am encouraged by the information which has come to me concerning the plans for expeditious action by the House of Representatives. I hope that no single day will be needlessly lost.

Second, I recommend prompt enactment of universal training legislation.

Until the free nations of Europe have regained their strength, and so long as communism threatens the very existence of democracy the United States must remain strong enough to support those countries of Europe which are threatened with Communist control and police-state rule.

I believe that we have learned the importance of maintaining military strength as a means of preventing war. We have found that a sound military system is necessary in time of peace if we are to remain at peace. Aggressors in the past, relying on our apparent lack of military force, have unwisely precipitated war. Although they have been led to destruction by their misconception of our strength, we have paid a terrible price for our unpreparedness.

Universal training is the only feasible means by which the civilian components of our armed forces can be built up to the strength required if we are to be prepared for emergencies. Our ability to mobilize large numbers of trained men in time of emergency could forestall future conflict and, together with other measures of national policy, could restore stability to the world.

The adoption of universal training by the United States at this time would be unmistakable evidence to all the world of our determination to back the will to peace with the strength for peace. I am convinced that the decision of the American people, expressed through the Congress, to adopt universal training would be of first importance in giving courage to every free govermnent in the world.

THIRD, I recommend the temporary reenactment of Selective Service legislation in order to maintain our armed forces at their authorized strength.

Our armed forces lack the necessary men to maintain their authorized strength. They have been unable to maintain their authorized strength through voluntary enlistments, even though such strength has been reduced to the very minimum necessary to meet our obligations abroad and is far below the minimum which should always be available in the continental United States.

We cannot meet our international responsibilities unless we maintain our armed forces. It is of vital importance, for example, that we keep our occupation forces in Germany until the peace is secure in Europe.

There is no conflict between the requirements of Selective Service for the regular forces and universal training for the reserve components. Selective Service is necessary until the solid foundation of universal training can be establishd. Selective Service can then be terminated and the regular forces may then be maintained on a voluntary basis.

The recommendations I have made represent the most urgent steps toward securing the peace and preventing war.

We must be ready to take every wise and necessary step to carry out this great purpose. This will require assistance to other nations. It will require an adequate and balanced military strength. We must be prepared to pay the price of peace, or assuredly we shall pay the price of war.

WE in the United States remain determined to seek, by every possible means, a just and honorable basis for the settlement of international issues. We shall continue to give our strong allegiance to the United Nations as the principal means for international security based on law, not on force. We shall remain ready and anxious to join with all nations—I repeat, with all nations—in every possible effort to reach international understanding and agreement.

The door has never been closed, nor will it ever be closed, to the Soviet Union or any other nation which will genuinely cooperate in preserving the peace.

At the same time, we must not be confused about the central issue which confronts the world today.

The time has come when the free men and women of the world must face the threat to their liberty squarely and courageously.

The United States has a tremendous responsibility to act according to the measure of our power for good in the world. We have learned that we must earn the peace we seek just as we earned victory in war, not by wishful thinking but by realistic effort.

At no time in our history has unity among our people been so vital as it is at the present time.

Unity of purpose, unity of effort and unity of spirit are essential to accomplish the task before us.

Each of us here in this chamber today has a special responsibility. The world situation is too critical, and the responsibilities of this country are too vast, to permit party struggles to weaken our influence for maintaining peace.

The American people have the right to assume that political considerations will not affect our working together. They have the right to assume that we will join hands, wholeheartedly and without reservation, in our efforts to preserve peace in the world.

With God's help we shall succeed.

Wallace Blasts Truman Talk to block the spread of Russian communism.

But Senator Saltonstall (R., Mass.) and others defended the President and criticized Taylor.

Saltonstall said Mr. Truman spoke as a citizen "interested in the welfare of the American people."

"I am not sure who the gentleman from Idaho was just speaking for," Saltonstall added.

Senator Morse (R., Oreg.) said he recognized Taylor's right to speak, but he added "there can be no doubt that the President laid down before the American people the great issue we all must face."

Senator Holland (D., Fla.) expressed his "deep appreciation" to Saltonstall and Morse. He said members of Congress should have listened to the President "as true Americans and not as apologists for a foreign ideology."

Holland said Taylor "unfortunately sits on the same (party) side of the aisle as I do." But he said he wanted "to disassociate myself as strongly as I can from what I regard as overfriendly expressions" toward Russia.

In attacking Mr. Truman's appeals for universal military training and a renewed draft, Taylor said this country was filled "with warlike talk" while Russia was demobilizing its forces.

He also noted that Mr. Truman said the times are too critical to let political differences interfere with national safety. He continued: "If he meant by that that we must all unite for universal military training, if he meant we must all unite for the draft, I can guarantee there will be political opposition. I can guarantee there will not be political unanimity."

Truman Warns U. S. On Wallace Ideas

Wanting Peace Not Enough, He Tells N. Y. Irishmen

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

New York, March 17.—President Truman tonight told the Nation to "beware" of apostles of disunity and of Henry Wallace propaganda.

The Chief Executive, addressing 2600 members of the Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, in the Hotel Astor, repeated the arm-America recommendations he had made to Congress earlier in the day and excoriated communism as a doctrine of "reaction."

He heard Francis Cardinal Spellman, influential shepherd of Greater New York's Catholics, say that because "I do hate war . . . I cast my vote, as a private American citizen, for universal military training."

Mr. Truman, who followed Cardinal Spellman, did not mention Henry Wallace. Clearly in his mind, however, was the speech Wallace made when he announced himself as a candidate for President on a third-party ticket.

On that occasion, the Iowan said that peace could be had "if we only want it."

"Issue Old as History"

Blasting away at this thesis tonight, Mr. Truman said:

"We must beware of those who are devoting themselves to sowing the seeds of disunity among our people. The age-old strategy of divide and conquer can be as effective now as it was in the day of the aggressors of old.

"We must not fall victim to the insidious propaganda that peace can be obtained solely by wanting peace.

"This theory is advanced in the hope that it will deceive our people and that we will then permit our strength to dwindle because of the false belief that all is well in the world.

"We must not be confused about the issue which confronts the world today."

He said that issue is as old as recorded history—"tyranny versus freedom." He continued:

"Tyranny has, throughout history, assumed many disguises and has relied on many false philosophies to justify its attack on human freedom.

Holds Communism Reactionary

"Communis mmasquerades as a doctrine of progress. It is nothing of the kind. It is, on the contrary, a movement of reaction. It denies that man is master of his fate, and consequently denies man's right to govern himself.

"And even worse, communism denies the very existence of God. Religion is persecuted because it stands for freedom under God."

As Mr. Truman stepped down from the Sacred Cow at the airport here on his arrival from Washington, a reporter asked him if he was "happy" about his speech on Capitol Hill, where he called for early enactment of the European reconstruction bill, a temporary draft law and universal training legislation.

"No, I am not happy about it," the President replied. "But it had to be said."

On the way in from La Guardia Field, Mr. Truman responded to the cheers of the crowd by climbing up to the top of the automobile seat, and riding along in Lindbergh fashion. Tugboats in the East River sounded their whistles as he moved through Harlem, adding their din to the scream of sirens on 50 police motorcycles.

Gov. Dewey Greets Him

In the reviewing stand at Fifth avenue and East 64th st., Mr. Truman was greeted by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, who may very well be his opponent in the November election.

The two men, with John J. Sheahan, chairman of the St. Patrick's Day parade, between them, carried on a running and apparently friendly conversation for more than an hour.

"It must have been a very trying day for you, Mr. President," Gov. Dewey was heard to say.

Mr. Truman, who takes pride in his physical vigor, smiled and shook his head, but his reply was not caught by reporters.

Former Postmaster General James A. Farley, who was wearing a silk topper, a cutaway and a brilliant green tie, was a few seats removed from Mr. Truman. Once he leaned over and said: "Harry, do you like a parade?"

"Everybody likes a parade," the President said. "It always makes me feel like a kid again."

Standing before a giant harp trimmed with shamrocks from the Old Country, Mr. Truman appeared to get a great lift out of the St. Patrick's Day carnival.

The Washington Selective Service head predicted District men would be in the armed forces within "six to eight" weeks after draft machinery is in full operation. He based that estimate on his World War II draft experience.

Truman Asks Draft, UMT and Aid, Lays Crisis to Soviet pact that received the applause. Democrats led the demonstration but some Republicans joined in.

"I am confident," said the President, "that the United States will, by appropriate means, extend to the free nations the support which the situation requires."

'Unmistakable Evidence'

He received another hand when he called for adoption of universal training as "unmistakable evidence to all the world of our determination to back the will to peace with the strength for peace."

Again practically all of the applause was on the Democratic side.

The only other cheers to interrupt his speech came just before the close. He appealed to both parties to drop political considerations and "join hands, wholeheartedly and without reservation, in our efforts to preserve peace in the world."

The Democratic-led response all but drowned out his last line: "With God's help we shall succeed." As he finished and again as he walked out of the chamber both sides came to their feet applauding and there were a couple of rebel yells.

The House had remained silent when he called for temporary reenactment of selective service but later most Republicans gave it a better chance than UMT.

Mr. Truman mentioned no age groups and gave no details of his draft proposal. But he said our armed forces lack the necessary men to maintain their authorized strength and said the United States cannot meet her obligations without that as a minimum.

He told Congress there is no conflict between revival of the draft and universal training. Selective service, he said, is needed only until a solid foundation of universal training can be laid. After that the draft can be terminated and our regular forces maintained on a voluntary basis, he said.

Terming his three recommendations "most urgent" if peace is to be secured and war averted, he said:

"The time has come when the free men and women of the world must face the threat to their liberty squarely and courageously.

"We must be prepared to pay the price of peace or assuredly we shall pay the price of war."

He said the very existence of democracy is threatened and time is of critical importance, adding:

"There are times in world history when it is far wiser to act than to hesitate. There is some risk involved in action—there always is. But there is far more risk in failure to act."

The President blamed "one nation"—Russia—for the world crisis. He said agreements obtained, by patient efforts of the democracies, might have furnished the basis for a just peace, but were persistently "ignored and violated" by Russia.

Cites Abuse of Veto

He cited the Soviet's "constant abuse of the veto" in the United Nations, her "ruthless course of action" after the war in destroying independent European governments, her design to destroy "the remaining free nations of Europe."

He reminded Congress Russia and her satellites were invited to join the European Recovery Program they are now trying to wreck.

"They see in it a major obstacle to their designs to subjugate the free community of Europe. They do not want the United States to help Europe. They do not even want the 16 cooperating countries to help themselves."

The President wore a light gray business suit. The green carnation in his lapel matched a green tie and pocket handkerchief. The carnations had been widely distributed and a sea of them dotted the House as he walked down the aisle. He paused once to shake hands with former Senator Hattie Caraway (D., Ark.) and nodded to both sides in recognition of the applause. The same scene was reenacted as he left the chamber. Several members reached out and grasped his hand as he passed.

"SRO" Is Rule in Galleries

There was standing room only in the galleries. Some, denied admission, gathered outside on the plaza to catch a fleeting glimpse of the President as he arrived and again as he left for his National Airport take-off to New York.

In the reaction that followed, only one Republican of leadership rank lashed out bitterly at the message. He was Representative Leo Allen (R., Ill.), chairman of the Rules Committee which has been holding up clearance of the UMT bill.

Allen said the President "could not have alarmed the people more" if he had declared war. He said he saw nothing in the message to "stampede" Congress into action on the UMT bill.

Speaker Joseph W. Martin (R., Mass.) withheld comment but House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck (Ind.) echoed Martin's Wednesday statement that the Republican Party "stands ready to do whatever is necessary for the defense of the country." Halleck said he hoped ERP will clear the House by April 1 but draft revival and UMT "must be considered in connection with an over-all national defense program based upon a unified plan of action."

Cites Abuse of Veto

Across the Capitol, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) gave conditional support to temporary revival of the draft by saying: "For myself I agree that if we do not have the minimum of national armed security, we must provide them by the most immediate available means." Vandenberg said the President presented "realities—to us and to Soviet Russia. The vital need is to make things unmistakably plain—perhaps even plainer as events unfold."

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) said the President "stated well our unanimous determination to do everything possible and practicable to stop the spread of communism." The Senate Republican said he "regretted" the President said nothing about "a real" unification of the armed forces and an air force superior to any other in the world. He called these "two basic steps" essential to defense. Taft said the President's proposals "of course" will be carefully considered, along with the other two points.

Ironically, it was an angry attack on the President's proposals by Senator Glen Taylor (D., Idaho), third party running mate of Henry Wallace, that brought several Senate Republicans to their feet in defense of the President. Taylor said he could guarantee there would be political opposition to the President's proposals.

Not Sure About Taylor

Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.) retorted that the President spoke as a "United States citizen" but he was not sure whom Taylor was speaking for. Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.) also took issue with Taylor. Morse said the President has laid down "the great issue we all must ponder."

Senator Spessard L. Holland (D., Fla.) complimented Saltonstall and Morse as "real Americans." He said Taylor "unfortunately" sits on the Democratic side of the aisle though he doubted he had any support there. Holland added that he wanted to disassociate himself "from what I regard as over-friendly expressions toward Russia."

Acting Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.) said he regretted Taylor attributed "partisan politics" to the President's efforts. He said he personally thought the President's appeal was "on a high plane."

Senator Homer Capehart (R., Ind.) remarked thta he saw no difference between Stalin and Hitler. Capehart said he may differ with the President on the method of opposing communism "but I certainly do not differ with him on his purpose to oppose it."

Speech to Congress Written by Truman

New York, March 17—President Truman's momentous speech before Congress today was no ghost-written job.

Mr. Truman, his aides told the Washington Post here, wrote the speech himself—all of it. Some of the material, of course, was supplied by the State Department and Department of Defense.

Machinery Ready For Distributing Marshall Plan Cash

Paris, March 17 (AP).—Officials of the 16 nations in the Marshall Plan met twice today to write a more detailed basis for their permanent organization for mutual economic defense.

Their specific task was to complete instructions for the international working committee.

A high American source said the machinery is all ready to start distributing Marshall Plan dollars as soon as the House of Representatives approves the measure and President Truman signs it.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has set aside one billion dollars to be applied to European aid as soon as the measure is passed, he added. It will not be necessary for a country receiving aid to first sign a treaty with the United States. It will only need to signify its willingness to sign a treaty.

An official report declared American interim aid had prevented a "serious collapse" in Europe this winter.

France, Austria and Italy were named as the countries rescued by more than 500 million dollars in interim aid.

Steady Demand Expected for Building Workers

Fred Z. Hetzel, director of the U. S. Employment Service for the District, told students of the Phelps Vocational High School yesterday he expected a continued steady demand for skilled workers in the building trades here.

The talk was part of a vocational program being conducted by the Washington Urban League to acquaint students with job opportunities and to help fit themselves for their life work. Another speaker was Eugene M. Kramer, manager of the District Theaters, who discussed the opportunity for small business.

The program will continue today at the Dunbar High School, where the speakers will be Lawrence Heilprin of the Bureau of Standards; the Rev. Gilbert T. Hartke, head of the drama department of Catholic University; Mrs. Thomasina W. Johnson of the U. S. Employment Service, and Caresse Crosby, head of the Crosby Gallery of Modern Art.

Coal Strike Curtailing N&W Freight Service

Roanoke, Va., March 17 (AP).—R. H. Smith, president of the Norfolk & Western Railway, said today the line will "necessarily further curtail its services and activities if the interruption to coal loading is long continued."

So far no passenger train schedules have been changed as a result of the walk-out of soft coal miners, he said.

hope that within the next few months or even weeks Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Italy, Portugal and Greece might adhere to the treaty, and thus complete a bulwark embracing nearly every remaining free country in Europe against the westward surge of communism.

The 10 points of the treaty are:

1. The signatories will organize and coordinate their economic activities by eliminating points of conflict, coordinating production and developing commercial exchanges.

2. They will seek to promote a higher standard of living for their people and develop social and related services, including social security.

3. They will seek to impress their people with their common principles of civilization and promote cultural exchanges to that end.

4. They will give each other all aid in event of an armed attack, under Article 51 of the United Nations Charter.

5. They will report to the U. N. Security Council all measures taken under Point 4. Any action they take in mutual defense shall be brought to a halt as soon as the Security Council has taken the measures necessary "to maintain or restore international peace and security."

6. The present treaty is not in conflict with any other treaty now in force between the signatories and other countries. None of the signatories shall enter in future into any alliance or coalition directed against any other signatory

7. The consultative council is to be formed to deal with treaty questions. It shall be so organized as to be able to exercise its functions continuously.

The Hague to Get Disputes

8. The signatories will submit disputes among themselves to The Hague Court if necessary and will seek conciliatory settlement of others.

9. The signatories may invite other countries to adhere to the treaty.

10. Ratifications of the treaty, which will make it effective, are to be deposited with the Belgian government as soon as possible.

Under Article 10 the treaty is made effective for 50 years. After that it will remain in force unless any signatory gives one year's notice to end it.

The treaty is designed to be a part of the Marshall Plan of recovery as well as part of the United Nations framework.

It was concluded with utmost breathtaking swiftness. It was only 13 days ago that delegates of the five countries started work on it here. They finished the draft in eight days of negotiations, possibly a world record for a pact of such sweeping nature. It was signed at 5:05 p. m. today.

Fact-Finders Probe Meatpacker Strike

Prices Soar for Third Successive Day At Wholesale Level, Retail Rise Expected

Chicago, March 17 (AP).—A fact-finding board created under the Taft-Hartley Act tackled the meat strike today. Meanwhile meat prices soared in the wholesale markets for the third day in a row.

Retail meat prices already have started up in Chicago—the hub of the packing industry—and increases were in prospect soon for other areas.

As the Nation-wide strike of 100,000 CIO meat handlers went into its second day, these were the major developments:

1. The Government fact-finding board held a closed session here and boned up on the background of the dispute. Tomorrow, the board will meet with members of both sides in the dispute. The board will submit its report by April 1.

Reports Price Jumps

2. The Department of Agriculture reported that wholesale meat prices so far this week have jumped from 3 to 5 cents a pound on beef, 4 to 6 cents on veal and lamb and 8 to 12 cents on pork cuts.

3. The Nation's meat supply began shrinking sharply as farmers cut their shipment of animals to market to about one-third of a week ago.

4. A spokesman for Armour, one of the big four packers, said limited production had been resumed in 11 of the company's plants after "some" strikers returned to their jobs. He declined to say how many strikers had returned or where the plants were situated. "We are expecting to reopen our plants as rapidly as our men want to come back," he said.

The union said it did not have any information that any of its members had returned to work."

Feinsinger Is Chairman

Nathan Feinsinger, law professor at the University of Wisconsin, was named chairman of the fact-finding board.

"At this stage we don't know if we will ask the union to go back to work," he said in response to a question.

The jump in wholesale meat prices is the sharpest since the steep climbs in commodity prices last fall. Retail prices normally follow a pronounced trend in wholesale prices in four or five days.

"When retailers have to pay more for a product they have to pass that added cost on to the consumer," one industry source said. He added that the average retailers' stock of meat bought at lower prices last week probably would be exhausted this week.

Only 61,000 Head Shipped

Only 61,000 head of cattle have been shipped to the country's 12 principal markets so far this week compared with 158,559 for the same period a week ago and 190,587 a year ago. Hog receipts of 70,000 this week compare with 209,993 for the period a week ago and 124,421 for the same three days a year ago. Some 46,000 sheep were shipped this week, compared with 121,314 for the last week period and 115,101 a year ago.

The National Association of Retail Meat Dealers said retail meat prices in Chicago have jumped from 1 to 5 cents a pound in the last five days.

In Boston, an industry spokesman predicted meat prices there would jump 15 cents a pound if the strike in four New England plants is not settled immediately.

To Report to Truman

The fact-finding board will not make a recommendation in the wage dispute. However, after its April 1 report the President can ask the Attorney General to seek an injunction to end the strike. Any injunction would end the strike for 80 days.

Other steps in the Taft-Hartley Act provide for the fact-finders to make a second study, for the National Labor Relations Board to poll strikers secretly on the latest offer of the meat packing companies. If the dispute still remained unsettled, the President could refer it to Congress.

The CIO United Packing House Workers of America called the strike in support of demands for a 29 cents hourly wage boost. The packing companies involved settled with their AFL and independent union employes for 9 cents an hour.

Airliner Turns Back After 'Bomb' Warning

London, March 17 (U.P.).—A New York-bound Constellation airliner with Gladwin Jebb, top Foreign Office expert, aboard, was called back to the London Airport tonight five minutes after its takeoff when an anonymous phone call said a bomb was hidden in the plane.

The British Overseas Airways plane parked 400 yards from the nearest building and passengers hastily got off. A search revealed nothing. Scotland Yard said the phone call was a "hoax."

Walsh Denies He Ever Got Money From Film Producers

By The Associated Press

Richard F. Walsh Testified yesterday that he never received any money from Hollywood movie producers since he became president of the AFL—International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes.

Walsh has been president of the union since November, 1941. He was formerly a vice president under the notorious Bioff-Browne regime.

Noting that Walsh limited his statement to the time since he took over the presidency, Representative Owens (R., Ill.) asked him:

"Did you ever get any money from the producers?"

He stressed the word "ever."

"No," Walsh replied.

Walsh's testimony wound up a full moth of hearings by a House Labor Subcommittee which has been looking into the Hollywood movie strike.

Chairman Kearns (R., Pa.) announced that the hearings will be resumed May 17 when State Senator John B. Tenney of California has asked to testify on the alleged Communist affiliations of Herbert K. Sorrell, president of the AFL—Conference of Studio Unions.

Kearns said Tenney will be followed by Westbrook Pegler, syndicated newspaper columnist, "to find out what Pegler knows about Willie Bioff."

Bioff was Hollywood agent for George E. Browne, Chicago labor racketeer, when Browne was president of the IATSE. Both Browne and Bioff were sent to prison on conviction of extorting more than half a million dollars from the big Hollywood producers under threat of stirring up labor troubles. They are now out on parole.

A West Coast labor leader said yesterday the Young Communists League sent volunteer pickets to picket movie theaters during the 1937 film strike.

John R. Robinson, Compton, Calif., marine engineer, who said he led the strike, told the subcommittee that the Communists joined the picket lines without being asked for help by the unions.

"We had to kick them out," he said, "because we wanted only union pickets."

He added that the volunteer pickets were mostly students from Los Angeles Junior College, which he described as "a hotbed of communism at that time."

Robinson is a former president of a Maritime Federation local at San Pedro, Calif.

He said he brought a strong-arm squad of San Pedro longshoremen to Hollywood to serve as an "educational committee" during the 1937 strike.

"What do you mean—educational committee?" asked Rep. Kearns (R., Pa.), chairman of the House group.

Robinson explained that six exmarines of World War I had formed the "educational" committee to "educate" Communists on the San Pedro waterfront.

"And believe me, they didn't handle them with kid gloves," Robinson said. "They were the finest teachers of ral Americanism it was possible to get—even if they had to teach it with baseball bats."

mines—not including those over 50 who retired before 1947—the first year's cost would be only from 8 to 17 million dollars.

In a press conference this week, however, Van Horn said Lewis had demanded that the pension go to all retired miners over 60, who had 20 years' service in the pits, regardless of when they left the mines.

The SSB estimates were prepared by Robert J. Myers, actuarial consultant to the agency. They were completed last December 1, and were undertaken at the request of Lewis, Van Horn and Thomas E. Murray, who at that time was the third, neutral member of the three-man trustee board of the welfare and retirement fund.

In his report, Myers took the proposed plan—$100 a month to miners over 60 who had had 20 years service in the mines—and made calculations according to different assumptions.

One was that all current aged miners would be eligible. For his low estimate, he assumed that 90 per cent of those over 65 would retire, and that 50 per cent of those aged 60-64 would retire.

On these assumptions, it was estimated that the cost in 1948 would be 49 million dollars. By 1960 it would rise to 60 million dollars; by 1970 to 66 million dollars and by the year 2000 to 75 million dollars.

But on a higher estimate, assuming that 95 per cent of the miners over 65, and 75 per cent of those aged 60-64, would apply for pensions, the costs would be much greater. This would be the case, it appeared in "unfavorable" economic conditions—with unemployment in the mines.

Then the cost would be 69 million dollars in 1948; 89 million dollars in 1960; 108 million dollars in 1970, and as high as 158 million dollars in the year 2000.

"On this basis of eligibility in the early years," the report stated, "an income of only 50 million dollars a year (after allowing for paying the death benefit now in effect) would not be sufficient for more than a few years under the most favorable circumstances and would be considerably insufficient under unfavorable circumstances."

The report then applied the high and low assumptions to a different plan for basic eligibility. Under this system, no miners who previously retired would be included, but only those over 60 who had worked as recently as last year.

The low estimates gave costs of eight million dollars in 1948, rising to 16 million dollars by 1950, and 49 million dollars by 1970. The high estimates were from 17 million this year to 76 million in 1970. Estimates, both high and low, for years after 1970 were identical with those given above, because by that time the inclusion or exclusion of miners who retired before 1947 would be no longer a factor.

"On such a basis as this," the report said, "the present income to the fund would be more than sufficient to meet the benefits for about 15 years under the favorable assumptions, but under the unfavorable ones insufficiency might arise before 10 years."

Marshall Says U. S. Military Power Is a Hollow Shell

try amounting to a certain number of divisions."

Defense Secretary James V. Forrestal and Army, Navy and Air Force chiefs will go before the Senate committee this morning and give a more definite answer, he declared.

Last night, however, a top Army official said it would be three days before a definite program could be presented. The lights at the Pentagon burned late in an effort to rush the plan to completion.

The three services now are about 320,000 men under their authorized strengths. Based on the percentage of men drafted into the Army during the war, approximately 2000 District of Columbia men would be called to fill the local quota. Similarly, some 6000 Virginians would be called, and close to 5000 Marylanders, if present shortages are filled.

Chairman Walter G. Andrews of the House Armed Services Committee told reporters that defense officials may ask for legislation to draf between 800,000 and one million men within the next year—about one out of three available.

Legislation for a peace-time draft is expected to be ready within the next 10 days, Andrews said. He suggested the period of service might be 18 months.

If the legislation is approved and the larger number taken, locally the number of men which might be called would be doubled or tripled.

Examples of Needs

Marshall gave two specific examples of how shortage of men have weakened America's military strength—and thus the respect with which our voice is heard in international relations.

The force which the Army has in this country ready for an emergency after the occupation force and overseas garrisons are provided for, has dwindled to 1 1/3 divisions, he said. Only the Eighty-second Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N. C. is maintained at close to strength, he said, plus about alike force of marines.

In Korea, Marshall disclosed, the American commander asked for 38,000 troops. Army chiefs here gave him an allowance of 30,000 men, due to other demands for men. That force has been dwindling, until now only 15,000 United States troops are in that strategic outpost.

The Secretary of State began his statement to the Senate committee with a solemn warning of the progress of events in Europe. He cited the loss of independence of the Balkan states, followed by Czechoslovakia.

The forthcoming Italian elections, Marshall said, "will foretell whether the disintegrating trend . . . may reach the shores of the Atlantic." He noted the "deadly parallel" between what is going on now and what happened in the late '30s in Europe.

Urging speedy approval of the European Recovery Plan, he declared that the speeded up "march of events" has made it plain that something more than economic aid is required.

"Diplomatic action, without the backing of military strength in the present world can lead only to appeasement," Marshall stated.

Psychological Effect Stressed

Marshall said he felt the psychological effect of passage of the UMT-draft program would have a tremendous effect on the world. It would bolster the determination of the remaining European democracies to remain free.

He said he had given careful thought toward evolving some other military system which would give America a "strong posture before the world" and provide us with the adequate amount of security. Any other plan than UMT would involve "national bankruptcy," Marshall declared.

"I know of no other way we can maintain year by year and be able to pay of it year by year, the strength that the world will respect," said the Secretary of State.

Maintenace of large standing forces or a very large air force would cost sums beyond the capacity of this Nation to pay, he added.

Army Age Groups Of 1945 Analyzed

More men between 22 and 25 years old were in the Army when the war ended than any other age group.

Current suggestions for a revival of selective service, with the lower age brackets mentioned as the probable pool for such a draft, turned attention yesterday to the Army's wartime figures. In answer to an inquiry, the Army reported an analysis of the Army of 8,266,373 men in the Army and Air Force on June 30, 1945, showed the following.

Eighteen years 3.65 per cent; 19, 4.49; 20, 5.31; 21, 6.56; 22, 7.17; 23, 7.65; 24, 7.64; 25, 7.24; 26, 6.96; 27, 6.34; 28, 5.40; 29, 4.65; 30, 4.07; 31, 3.53; 32, 3.18; 33, 2.83; 34, 2.48; 35, 2.23; 36, 2.05; 37, 1.85; 38, 1.54; 39, 1.11; 40 and over, 1.98.

EUROPE AS TRUMAN SEES IT—Three European nations that President Truman said are being subjected to Communist pressure by the Soviet Union and its agents are designated by pointers. Black areas are those nations which yesterday signed a 50-year mutual defense treaty against any aggressor. Norway, Sweden and Denmark, which were not signers of the pact, are eligible for ERP aid in self-help and mutual defense. Shaded areas are Russian-controlled nations and for help in case of trouble, poured in upon the Government here. Events seemed to be moving fast, and officials had to consider a fast response. Whatever was done, it was felt that the United States could not stand still and do nothing.

The Washington Post's highly placed informant, is that the United States may be pressured to "splatter" its resources all over the world, instead of deciding coolly where its strength is most needed.

In this situation, a quick change took place in the official estimate of the outlook in Europe.

Until then, the Administration had felt all along that the Soviet Union did not want war. The chief fear of the past two years had been of some hot-headed incident provoked by Marshal Tito or some other Soviet satellite.

Now, however, the situation looked somewhat different. The swift and sudden triumph of the Communists in Czechoslovakia suggested that Russia had built a sort of Frankenstein monster in her satellites and her local Communist parties in Europe.

Those who knew most about Soviet policies and tactics were suddenly very fearful that the situation might get out of the Kremlin's control. They felt that although Russia did not want war, she might be betrayed into support of some overt action.

This, according to the best available information, is what worried the Government to such an extent that President Truman had to ask yesterday for a temporary draft and for universal military training.

But why did he choose UMT rather than some other course? One answer—again from the same thoroughly informed source—was that nothing other than UMT could make such an impression on both sides of the iron curtain.

Whatever the long-term value of UMT might be, there was also a short-term consideration—of doing something that all Europe could understand. And Europe understands universal service, not only behind the iron curtain, where it is part of the accepted order of things, but also in democratic countries like France and Switzerland, which have known it for generations.

Two dangers here at home are seen now in responsible quarters, and seen clearly. One is that the debate on the President's requests may be swamped in detail, bogged down in complications over cost or methods. Yet if action is clear-cut and prompt, its effect in Europe is foreseen as "tremendous."

The second danger, according to

West Europe Cheered by Truman Talk

London, March 17 (AP).—Western Europe welcomed both President Truman's call for rearming America and the Brussels five-power pact tonight as twin bulwarks against Communist expansion.

"Communism has lost its bet on the ineptitude and unreadiness of democracy," said the London Daily Telegraph.

The President's message, the paper added, "may well rank among the greatest pronouncements in history."

Truman's Bluntness Applauded

The London Daily Mail (Conservative) said "Less than three years after the Second World War, a third is not merely thinkable but possible. Some statesmen think it probable—if nothing is done to stop it.

"Who is the 'enemy?' President Truman . . . says bluntly that it is Russia who has bedeviled Europe—and he is right. . . . So why not say so? Why not face the truth 'squarely and courageously,' as the President did yesterday? We gain nothing by hiding our heads in the sand. We have done that too often and too long."

In this nation—filled more and more with forebodings since the Czechoslovak crisis recalled the prewar year of Munich—Mr. Truman's pronouncement strengthened hope that war may be avoided.

A Foreign Office spokesman refused to go on record, saying an official statement might be issued tomorrow.

French Are Pleased

High French officials in Paris said congressional approval of the President's request for the temporary draft and universal military training would leave no room for misunderstanding, either in the East or West, that the United States means business about stopping communism.

One French official, approving the President's support of the Brussels alliance signed today by Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, said, "We know that we cannot stand up against a major-scale aggression unless assisted by the United States."

In Rome, a spokesman for Premier Alcide de Gasperi said President Truman's speech contained good news for the democratic countries of Europe.

A Netherlands Foreign Office spokesman at The Hague said the President's speech "was the best blessing of the western pact." He said it was a great encouragement to Europe and new proof of American interest in the development of Europe.

[There was no immediate comment on the Moscow radio. The government-controlled Czech radio said it was significant that President Truman called for universal military training when Russia was demobilizing soldiers.—Editor's Note.]

Byrnes Says Truman's Plans Could Preserve the Peace

Spartanburg, S. C., March 17 (AP).—James F. Byrnes said today that if Congress carries out the program recommended today by President Truman, "I am confident peace will be preserved."

Byrnes

The former Secretary of State issued the following formal statement from his home here:

"I am glad the President has served notice upon the Soviet Republic that its acts of aggression, direct or indirect, against European states must stop.

"If Congress will promptly carry out the program he announced, I am confident peace will be preserved.

"I am particularly glad that he urged the reenactment of the Selective Service Act to bring the Army up to its authorized strength.

"The Soviets will understand that action better than any words he uttered. We owe it to 100,000 American soldiers in Germany to provide additional divisions of combat troops to go to their assistance in case it should be necessary."

Byrnes, in a speech last Saturday at Charleston, S. C., also urged reenactment of the draft.

Speech Sounds Good To British, Envoy Says

Boston, March 17 (U.P.).—Lord Inverchapel, British Ambassador to the United States, said today that President Truman's recommendation for speedy enactment of the European aid program "is very welcome news to my country."

Here to speak at Harvard University, the Ambassador said he regarded war as "possible but neither proable nor inevitable." But he refused to comment on other parts of the President's address because they concerned "internal affairs of your country."

Inverchaple stated that "against the background of current events," Mr. Truman's speech and the signing of the western European pact at Brussels "stand out as landmarks."

"The treaty shows western Europe's determination to oppose any form of totalitarianism," he said.

"It also shows Europe's determination to maintain its ideal o. freedom and is emphatically a step toward a United States of Europe."

Reece Asks U. S. to Change Man in Driver's Seat

Carroll Reece, chairman of the Republican National Committee, issued this statement of comment on President Truman's message:

"The United States has elected two Democrat Presidents during this century. Under each of them we have become involved in war—in each instance after solemn campaign promises to the effect that we would not become involved. We won both wars but in each instance we lost the peace. This is getting to be a rather expensive luxury, even for the richest nation in the world.

"If we are really on the verge of war it is, of course, the duty of all loyal Americans to cooperate without regard for political considerations to insure the Nation's security. But that should not preclude inquiry as to how we got into our present situation and who led us there.

"When a driver insists upon running an automobile into a ditch at every opportunity the owners of the car will cooperate to get it out of the ditch. But, if they are wise, they will also employ a new driver at the first opportunity."

to leave the hotel, and I stayed there."

Adleman stayed at the officers' hotel until CID officers came to take him to his quarters "so I would be safe," as he wrote his mother.

"Don't worry about me," he assured her, "I don't go out any more since that night, because the Russians may want to take care of me, so I won't talk too much. In all the Austrian papers, it tells about my statement and I don't think they like it very much, that is, the Russians."

"I can't wait till he gets out of the Army," commented Mrs. Adleman, who said her son would finish a three-year enlistment in November. He will be 20 in the same month, she said, and he has spent about 1½ years in Austria, after six months in Germany.

The Gallup Poll

Majority Favors Increase in Armed Forces

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., March 17.—Speeding up of Soviet Russia's time-table for the "cold war" finds American voters ready to support immediate strengthening of the Nation's military forces.

In its present mood the public would back demands made by former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes that the United States get an army not just on paper, and that Air Force expansion be given first priority.

It also undoubtedly favors moves made last weekend by Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal to streamline operations of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

In a Nation-wide survey completed just prior to the crisis in Czechsolvakia, representative voters in every section were asked:

Do you think the United States should increase the size of its Army? Navy? Air Force?

The answers:

	Yes	No	No Opin.
Increase Army	61%	29%	10%
Increase Navy	63	26	11
Inc. Air Force	74	17	9

One of the very first surveys ever conducted by the Institute asked exactly this same question in 1935. It showed the American voters were overwhelmingly in favor of stronger armed forces and particularly a strong air force. This was at a time when Congress was whittling down military appropriations and when high military authorities were by no means convinced that air power would be important in the next war.

As a matter of fact the public n general has consistently been far out in front of the leaders in approving larger military establishments in the face of developing international crises.

Even when the issue is put on the more realistic basis of willingness to pay more taxes toward the upkeep of larger armed forces, the majority of voters stll favor expansion. In the current survey a second question was as follows:

Would you be willing to pay more money in taxes to support a larger Army? Navy? Air Force?

The national answers:

	Yes	No	No opin.
Pay taxes for larger Army	55%	36%	9%
Pay taxes for larger Navy	55	35	10
Pay taxes for larger Air Force	63	28	9

Support for increasing the armed forces is fairly evenly distributed throughout the population.

On the first question, voters with college education are not quite as strongly inclined to want a larger army as those with less formal training. They vote more heavily, however, for a larger air force than the national average.

Veterans Only	Yes	No	No opin.
Increase Army	64%	31%	5%
Increase Navy	65	29	6
Increase Air Force	78	18	4

The only geographical section giving less than average support to the increases is the West Central States, with the Southern States registering the highest proportionate vote of approval.

By age groups there is little variation, with people over 50 years of age being slightly more in favor of increased strength than younger voters.

Previous Institute polls have shown the public overwhelmingly in favor of universal military training and opposed to a reduction in military budgets.

Md. Council Approves Wider Merit System

Baltimore, March 17 (AP).—The Legislative Council today approved a proposal to bring employes of the State Comptroller's, income tax and alcoholic beverages divisions into the merit system.

At the same time it turned down, with two members dissenting, an amendment that the employes take regular merit system tests before they are brought under it.

The amendment was offered by Senator Kimble (R., Allegany). Voting with him in support of it was Senator Della (D., Baltimore Sixth).

Wind It Up

It is utterly absurd that after nearly 11 weeks of bickering the Federal Government should still be unable to settle a strike in its own cafeterias involving a quasi-governmental corporation. Yet this is abundantly the case in the dispute between the CIO Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers and Government Services, Inc. Furthermore, it is not the wholly private party, in this instance the union, but the corporation run by Government employes that is now holding up settlement. GSI has turned down flatly a compromise proposed by Federal Conciliator George E. Strong, which was accepted by the union and was termed "reasonable" by Federal Works Administrator Fleming, in whose bailiwick the cafeterias fall. Thus there is the ludicrous spectacle of an organization chartered by the Government to serve Government workers flouting the expressed desire of President Truman to end the strike and rendering fruitless nearly a month of intensive effort by a Government-appointed conciliator.

General Fleming has taken the logical course in serving notice that he may have to end the GSI contract and provide for actual governmental operation of the 42 cafeterias in question. For a recalcitrant corporation should not be permitted any more than a recalcitrant union to thwart the needs of Federal employes for adequate cafeteria service. There are many ways in which GSI could be replaced, though, undoubtedly, there would be some technicalities as to disposition of GSI property in which the Government has an interest. One such means would be a new Government corporation specifically established by Congress to run Federal cafeterias. This, however, would take time, and a simpler way might be merely to accept bids from private companies, several of which have indicated their conviction that they could perform GSI's cafeteria functions more economically and efficiently. Perhaps the serious possibility of competition is precisely what is needed to bring GSI off its high horse.

John Does It

There cannot be much doubt that John L. Lewis' annual fling in the form of a work stoppage by a large proportion of the Nation's soft coal miners constitutes a strike. Whether it also constitutes a breach of the miners' contract with the coal operators and hence a violation of the Taft-Hartley Law is another question. For in the settlement reached last July the United Mine Workers succeeded in inserting a provision which in effect gives the union the right to pull out the miners virtually at its pleasure. Miners are to work, the contract reads, only when "able and willing."

The present voluntary abstentions of miners parallel closely the action of November, 1946, for which UMW Chieftain John L. Lewis was fined for contempt of court. At that time he had said the miners had no contract, and, ergo, the miners did not work. This time he says much the same thing: the operators, he contends, have "dishonored" the contract by the failure to set up a pension system on his terms. Lewis has asked the "rank and file reaction" to this situation. That of course is tantamount to calling a strike, for, as the court well recognized in 1946, a mere raising of the Lewis eyebrows has the same effect as a formal declaration. Here, however, the parallel breaks down. In 1946 the coal mines were being operated by the Federal Government and Lewis defied a court order. Now the mines are in the hands of the private operators, the contract with the UMW is vague, and the limited intervention power of the Federal Government under the Taft-Hartley Law is likely to become enmeshed in legal technicalities over whether this can actually be classified as a strike.

That the stoppage is merely another occasion for Lewis theatrics is pretty well indicated by the statement of Ezra Van Horn, the trustee representing the mine operators on the miners' welfare fund. To Lewis' contention that the operators have been unwilling to agree to pensions as provided in the 1947 contract, Van Horn replies that it is Lewis himself, as chairman of the trustees, who has frustrated action by refusing to appoint a third trustee. Van Horn also charges that Lewis is seeking to ignore the contract and evade the Taft-Hartley Law by including for pension purposes UMW members not covered by the contract. According to Van Horn, actuarial estimates show that the present welfare fund based on a 10-cents a ton royalty is not sufficient to provide the $100 a month pensions that Lewis asks. Furthermore, he alleges, Lewis has consistently thwarted efforts to confer with him.

These are serious indictments of the good faith of the man who has chosen to pillory the coal operators at the expense of domestic and foreign coal needs. There should be little question that, despite their high pay, the miners deserve an adequate pension system because of the great hazards of their work. But if the operators' contentions as to Lewis' antisocial behavoir are true, then it is obvious that his tears are crocodile tears.

Truman's Minimum

Thomas a Kempis wrote that all men desire peace, but few want to pay the price of it. In the address to Congress yesterday President Truman asked for a down payment. Speedy passage of ERP, support for the five-power military alliance in Europe, UMT, a modified form of selective service so as to bring the armed forces up to authorized strength—these are the items. All of them had been pleaded for in these columns before the President spoke. In our opinion they are a minimum program of preparedness. Only in such bemused minds as Mr. Wallace's can there be any defense of Moscow's conduct or any misunderstanding of its aggressive purpose. Soviet Russia stands accused at the bar of commonsense of the most flagrant aggression. It is the kind of aggression that, as history shows, feeds on itself. It develops its own momentum, partly by its own dynamism and partly by the fear it creates. This aggression can be stopped either by making war on it or by such a massing of the power and unity of the free world as will overawe even a juggernaut state of Soviet proportions. There is no other choice before self-respecting peoples.

The speech in which Mr. Truman called for preparedness was couched in sober and somber language. Not by any stretch of the imagination could it be called warmongering. It was a recognition both of the plain facts of the world situation and of the only way of coping with them short of shooting it out. Feeling has now become so strongly anti-Russian that the address may be called weak. There had been the expectation of a military guaranty of an allied Europe. But guaranties in our present posture would be futile. They would be similar to the paper guaranties that the British distributed over Europe when the realization was borne in on them that Hitler was about to go on a rampage. What this country wants is knowledge that free Europe will fight for its independence, and what free Europe wants is knowledge that this country can deliver assistance. In this context the key item in the President's address is the draft. With this aid to add to our other availabilities the United States will be able to make decisions that will count—decisions which cannot be made nowadays with only two disposable divisions in the background. We have a feeling that free Europe will seize on this proposal as the most tangible evidence of support. It is with this proposal that it will read meaning into the President's assurance of military support. The assurance in itself is unmistakable:

> I am confident that the United States will, by appropriate means, extend to the free nations the support which the situation requires. I am sure that the determination of the free countries of Europe to protect themselves will be matched by an equal determination on our part to help them to do so.

The cheers that greeted this assurance came enthusiastically from all parts of the congressional assembly. We hope they will be translated into affirmative action. It is unfortunate that this is the year of the presidential election, for Mr. Truman will be the object of charges that he is politicking. There is more partisanship in Congress, we believe, than in the country at large. This is shown in the story of UMT. UMT has been bottled up throughout the Eightieth Congress, though the polls have consistently shown that a large majority of the people favor it. The pressure to bring this legislation out of committee and to introduce selective service must come from the people. This country cannot hope to live as if there is peace when there is no peace. We feel that the people have too much commonsense to want to rely on normal living when the times are abnormal. They know by this time that the extinction of liberty in the countries of western Europe would be a subtraction from their own liberty and a menace to their own security. To arm ourselves with and use the techniques of defense in this cold war upon which Moscow has embarked in the subjugation of the west and to ready ourselves for an emergency—this is the presidential summons which can be ignored only af the national peril.

Decontrolled

No one should be fooled by what the House of Representatives Tuesday sought to pass off as an extension of rent control. In voting to give local boards complete authority to raise or decontrol rents, the House wrote the end to any effective protection under the law. The action looms worse in the light of the serious question raised by several House members as to the constitutionality of this extreme delegation of Federal power. NRA, it will be recalled, was thrown out by the Supreme Court on much the same grounds. The net effect on tenants will of course be the same whether they are mulcted with or without the new law, but if the extension is declared unconstitutional, the House will have succeeded in shifting the onus for the final destruction to the courts.

What chance there is for strengthening the final measure in conference will depend on how resolutely the Senate conferees stick to their guns. This is the best hope, but it is not a bright one because of the size of the House vote—251 to 132. Indeed, the House decisively rejected the mild Senate bill which, though weak on enforcement, at least maintains the authority of the Housing Expediter to veto irresponsible action by local boards. The House apparently reasoned, illogically, that because some landlords have endured hardships in the past, it is now necessary to penalize all tenants. If the House bill becomes law it can scarcely promote anything but chaos. Many local boards already have been invaded by real estate interests, and even the boards which try to retain objectivity will be subject to tremendous pressures and will have no uniform standards.

There have been many mistakes in the administration of rent control, and it is futile to argue where they started. The point is that the House had it within its power to effect justice to both landlords and tenants and still maintain the protection that the housing shortage demands. It has failed miserably.

England's Communists

Even in Britain, where tolerance of dissent has been traditionally generous, the government has at last deemed it necessary to protect itself against the danger of disloyalty on the part of Communist conspirators. "Experience both in this country and elsewhere has shown," Prime Minister Attlee put it with characteristic moderation, "that membership of, and other forms of continuing association with, the Communist Party may involve the acceptance by the individual of a loyalty which in certain circumstances can be inimical to the state." The Prime Minister took care to renounce the suggestion that "all those who adhere to the Communist Party would allow themselves thus to forget their primary loyalty to the state." What has been proved indisputably, however, is that the Soviet Union has found the Communist Party and its affiliates a fruitful recruiting ground for the agents who serve its devious foreign policy through espionage and fifth column activities. This was the unforgettable lesson of last year's Royal Commission report in Canada.

The British method of meeting this difficult problem is significantly different from that adopted in the United States. Apparently there is no thought there of inquiring into the loyalty of all government employes; investigation will be confined to the "very narrow limits" of work where national security is involved, and persons believed to be Communist sympathizers will, whenever possible, be transferred from posts entailing such work to others less sensitive. Precisely what is meant by Mr. Attlee's pledge that employes would have an opportunity to answer charges against them is not yet known over here. We hope heartily, and expect, that the British will show enough respect for their own institutions to assure all suspects the safeguards which their system of justice has developed to prevent the punishment of innocent persons. The right of an accused to confront the witnesses against him is one of these.

It is reported that the Prime Minister made it clear his government decided upon this new policy reluctantly. That is altogether understandable. The necessity of such a policy is a tragic symptom of the sickness of our times. Yet to do less would be to put the security of the nation in jeopardy. To do more would be to jeopardize the security of individual rights.

Reichsmark Exchange

A report on Postwar German Foreign Trade released by the Army says that Germany must have some sort of exchange rate mechanism in order to transact any substantial amount of business with the rest of the world. Unfortunately that mechanism is lacking at the present time owing to the fact that German prices are rigidly controlled and entirely isolated from the influence of world market conditions. Consequently the exporter has no means of determining the prices in foreign currencies of his goods, or, rather, there is no way of adjusting those prices to world market conditions.

In Germany, as in other countries, it is evident that a return to stable exchanges permitting a sound expansion of foreign trade requires, as a prerequisite, reform of her internal finances and elimination as rapidly as possible of restrictions that distort the domestic price structure. The German situation differs only in respect to the extent of the price distortion resulting from rigid controls that fail to take account of the heavy depreciation of the inflated currency.

The report suggests that an interim exchange rate might be fixed, provided adjustments were made in internal prices out of line with world market prices or by permitting variations from the exchange rate—a cumbrous and unsatisfactory system. Of course the ultimate objective should be an adjustment of German prices to bring them into line with world market prices, not by a new system of controls but by removing the obstructions to free market bids and offers that make the German price system utterly unrealistic. Undoubtedly the report will be valuable to the sixteen-nation committee in Paris and it will be easier to get remedial action now that Germany, or western Germany, is to be made the seventeenth member.

THE REAPER

As I came home from starry skies
About that time when roosters crow,
I met against the morning-glow
A farmer-lad with morning eyes.
He spoke to me without surprise,

I turned to watch him walking on.
Toward his dew-dark fields he swung,
A scythe across his shoulder slung,
The reaper to his harvest gone
Down golden lanes of dew and dawn.

He moved with morning in his tread,
His joyful blade to sweep and swing
Against the grain. I heard him sing
When stars were silver overhead.
He did not know my love was dead.

Jan Masaryk

Since the passing of Jan Masaryk, we have had load after load of the drooling gooey stuff in the daily press. Eulogy has been heaped upon eulogy. I believe this reached a climax in your issue of March 15 with the front page picture and the labeling of Masaryk "A Martyr."

In my book, martyr means something entirely different. If Masaryk had the welfare of his beloved people so much at heart, it would have been much more difficult and courageous to keep on living for them rather than taking the easy way out.

Some would have us believe that this is a dramatic way of calling attention to the plight of his people. Others believe that it shows only an individual weakness that came to the surface when the going got tough.

For a number of years, Masaryk and his associates had one face East and the other West. I think the proper word is "Janus." Alas, when the time to be counted came, Masaryk found himself on the wrong side of the fence.

For those who have made Masaryk the center of their adulation, I call to their attention the Ten Commandments—one of which says, "Thou shalt not kill." This includes self-destruction.

Jefferson's Religion

When the United States Supreme Court made public its decision that religious sects may not use public schools for the teaching of their beliefs, Justice Frankfurter quoted Thomas Jefferson in support of his opinion.

Something Jefferson himself said on this subject should be of interest in this connection. In commenting on courses to be offered in the State university he was founding, Mr. Jefferson wrote in 1818:

"In conformity with the principles of our Constitution, which places all sects of religion on an equal footing, with the jealousies of the different sects in guarding that equality from encroachment and surprise, and with the sentiments of the Legislature in favor of freedom of religion, manifested on former occasions, we have proposed no professor of divinity; and the rather as the proofs of the being of a God, the creator, preserver, and supreme ruler of the universe, the author of all the relations of morality, and of laws and obligations these infer, will be within the province of the professor of ethics; to which adding the developments of these moral obligations, of those in which all sects agree, with a knowledge of the languages, Hebrew, Greek and Latin, a basis will be formed common to all sects. Proceeding thus far without offense to the Constitution, we have thought it proper at this point to leave every sect to provide, as they think fittest, the means of further instruction in their own peculiar tenets."

By coincidence, the only dissenting member of the Supreme Court happened to be Justice Stanley Reed, who studied law for two years at Mr. Jefferson's university.

It is the practice of the University of Virginia to provide clergymen and laymen of "every sect" frequent opportunities to appear before students.

Conan Doyle's Retort

As I was filling out my tax return, I remembered the amusing story about the early years of Conan Doyle, before he had taken up writing Sherlock Holmes, and when he was a very poor young doctor with almost no practice at all. One year he made so little money that he filled out a return to the British treasury effectively proving that he was not liable to any income tax at all. The officials at the British Treasury thought he was trying to put something over on them and so they returned the tax form to Conan Doyle scrawling all over it "Very unsatisfactory."

Conan Doyle returned the form right back again to the British treasury with the postscript, "I entirely agree."

Our Own Back Yard

All America was shocked to learn that a Russian guard shot an American soldier for refusing to walk in the gutter where he "belonged." This is certainly an ugly incident, and the Russian government should be called upon to account for such conduct on the part of one of its soldiers.

At about the time that a Russian was malevolently dealing with one of our soldiers in Austria, because our soldier refused to accept an inferior status, an American citizen in Alabama was murdering another American citizen because, the murderer says, his victim was "talking about racial equality."

The first incident has created an international situation which will demand diplomatic attention. This is true because America's status in the community of nations is affected. The second incident has been reported, some Americans will resent it, but the great majority will tacitly accept it. The court will likely exonerate the murderer and the status of Alabama in the community of the States of our Union will be unaffected.

In my mind, the two resulting truths are irreconcilable. The two incidents are of the same character and they should be treated the same.

The only hope that we have in such situations is to wait until the conscience of America revolts against such treatment of one of our citizens by another. This is a dim hope. We find no solution to our problem even in the church, if we may accept the pronouncements of a noted minister of our city, that the people are not "morally and spiritually prepared to accept" the ideals contained in the civil rights program now before our country, though those ideals are not in conflict with the Christian concept of the brotherhood of man under God. If the contentions of this minister are correct, I submit that approximately 2000 years of Christian teaching has failed.

Spelling Reform

Recently The Washington Post and other newspapers announced the start of the 1948 national spelling contest. The winners of this contest will receive many honors and awards, which they will richly deserve. For they will have spent thousands of hours in study of our extremely irregular spelling.

In most other countries of the world spelling contests are unknown. The spelling of most other languages is simple and regular. Why do we Americans, who proudly call our country the land of progress, maintain our chaotic spelling "system?" Why must our best students spend thousands of hours to fully master our spelling? Why should our spelling be so difficult that mastery of it brings great honor to students?

Interest in spelling reform has recently been revived in England. I think that this interest should also be revived in America.

Subversive Textbooks

In your edition of March 7 you published a report of the Education Subcommittee of the House District Committee that is deserving of reflection and comment. Everyone who has any feeling for our country and school children will agree that if pro-Communist books are studied in our public schools, we can't expect future generations to be real Americans.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars, for which I have great respect, complained to the school authorities about a book that it examined and found to contain pro-Communist material. These men are overseas veterans and, of course, realize what the horrors of war really are. They made their complaint to the school authorities and their complaint fell on deaf ears. They had to ask the assistance of Congress. Congress found time to hear their criticism and judging by what the congressional report said, the Veterans of Foreign Wars knew what it was doing when it objected to these books in the schools. It is time for the school authorities to take account.

Palestine Partition

The chief purpose behind the Austin statement before the Security Council on February 24 is to bring about, in the guise of negotiations and consultations, the reopening of the entire question of Palestine's political future.

It is easy to see how this unwieldy procedure will lead to the time limits of April 1 and of May 15 coming and going without the provisional councils of government in Palestine having been constituted, without militias having been formed, and with chaos reigning.

This procedure has been recommended to the heads of the American Government just because it was foreseen that it would lead to such results. Once these results are achieved, and the timetable of the partition plan has been thoroughly upset, apparent justification would be created for a last-minute request to the British government to continue ruling Palestine beyond May 15.

The second purpose in the minds of the real authors of the Austin statement is that the consultations should provide an opportunity to the British and the Arabs—whose underlying unity on the Palestine issue has become an open secret—to press for a revision of the United Nations plan. It would then be reported that two of the three parties concerned are ready to agree on a solution, with only the Jews standing in the way. The British and the Arabs would be represented as the "conciliatory" parties; the Jews who only ask that the international decision be carried out, would be represented as an obstreperous minority.

When speaking of the real authors of the Austin statement, there is every reason to believe that those behind it are certain State Department officials whose bitter hostility to the Jewish homeland is notorious and the oil company lobbyists who seek to change American policy to suit their private interests.

One thing should be made clear. The Jewish homeland has already undergone two partitions; once when Trans-Jordan, a part of the original mandate, was split off (the very name "Trans-Jordan" means that part of Palestine which is the other side of Jordan), and the second time under the United Nations decision. The Jewsh people will not again sit down and negotiate, with anyone, a further partition of Palestine. The Jewish people will never submit to the establishment of a ghetto and to the status of a minority in Palestine.

Humanizing Robots

By Malvina Lindsay

Smarter Bosses

WITH SCIENCE turning its guns on the tough boss, the military martinet, the employer who regards his help as robots, a new development in human rights is gaining ground in this country. Significantly both it and the movement for civil rights are coming at a time when a state despotism that regiments the individual is pushing on in other parts of the world.

Human relations are becoming the concern of the hour in industry, labor, college classes and laboratories. The armed forces are developing programs to discover and train officers who can lead instead of merely bark orders.

Possibly a new ground swell of democratic self-expression lies beneath it. But on the surface science, particularly psychology, has blazed the new trail. It has awakened industry, business, and the professions to how it serves their self interest to handle employes as complex human beings instead of as automatons.

One large firm that began its work in human relations five years ago by naming a vice president in charge of that field and starting an ambitious program reports it has increased production 35 per cent and has had no labor troubles.

COLLEGES are increasing their research and their courses in this field. Recently the University of Chicago developed laboratory methods of testing for executive ability. These, if widely carried out, might save firms much expense and friction and their workers much frustration and discontent. The tests showed that a potential good boss was, among other things, a man or woman who needed achievement to be happy, who was not still dominated by parents, and who could accept responsibility.

In the past the tendency has been to select executives on the basis of their technical ability in a particular field. This has frequently resulted in demoralization of departments by executives, supervisors or foremen lacking ability to deal with people.

In fact, the end of the "tough" head man in all fields is in sight if industrial psychology has its way. Such toughness, psychologists have found out, is often rooted in a sense of inferiority toward a marriage partner, fellow workers, or people generally.

Man's great need for self-esteem is being recognized more and more by industry and labor. Mass production and the assembly line have tended to reduce workers to a cog-in-a-wheel status, and to make them discontented even when wages and working conditions were satisfactory. The problem is to find ways by which workers can be given a sense of participation in the industries, businesses or professions where they are employed.

INDUSTRY sees this as one of the most important ways of increasing production, decreasing turnover and labor-management strife. The large unions are likewise studying the problem because they, like industry, have come up against the knowledge that wage hikes alone won't solve labor discontent, that the reaching of the human spirit toward expression and recognition is what is really at stake.

The great postwar spurt of interest in human relations is one bright streak of promise in all the threatening discords of the present. This may turn out to be the biggest source of strength in the American economy, and an eventual means not only of aiding production and industrial peace, but of developing better adjusted citizens and happlier human beings.

It is one field in which our economic rivals, the totalitarians, do not give us competition. For they do not think much of the psychological approach to man's problems. They are even reported to have decreed officially there is no such thing as a neurosis.

Housing "Futures"

Your Mr. John Ball is to be commended for his able defense of the grain futures market in your issue of March 2.

After finishing his article it occurred to me that such a clever scheme for bringing order into the chaos of agricultural prices certainly deserves wider application. As a beginning, may I suggest the housing market, which could derive much benefit from an orderly futures exchange. Houses take about as long to build these days as wheat does to grow. In each case the producers are equally deserving small businessmen; both anxious to be relieved of the dangers of market fluctuations. Why then is the farmer so benefited and the home builder not?

Surely there must exist a tremendous demand for housing "futures." If such a market existed an "expecting" newly wed couple, for example, would be able to immediately translate their glad tidings into an order on their broker to purchase a two-bedroom cottage for, say, October delivery. At the same time, on such a market, a speculative builder of two-bedroom cottages would be able to sell his entire output before construction, thus eliminating his risk and permitting him to devote his entire attention to profit.

Such a market could be operated by some public-spirited body similar to the Chicago Board of Trade. Perhaps the National Association of Real Estate Boards, or the Home Builders Association, would be willing to entrust themselves with this responsibility which—as they would be quick to appreciate—would, among other benefits, serve to legitimatize today's shadowy army of housing speculators into honest men performing an essential marketing function.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Condition Of Our Affairs

Lippmann

WE ARE at the end of the period—which began about two years ago—during which we have pursued a tough policy abroad and a soft policy at home. It is plain that it is no longer possible to make good all our commitments in Europe, in the Middle East, and in Asia, with this country demobilized, its industry reconverted to civilian use, and its people enjoying privately the blessings of freedom and peace.

We have hoped and believed that our potential military power—the fact that we could, if necessary, develop overwhelming striking force—would be respected and feared by the Soviet Union for some years—at least until the devastation of the German war had been repaired and until the technological backwardness of Russia in weapons like the atomic bomb had been overcome. Our own fundamental military calculation is now proved to have been mistaken. We have assumed that our eventual and ultimate military power was sufficient to validate a foreign policy which had as its object not only the containment of communism within the postwar orbit of the Soviet Union but the contraction of communism to the territory of the Soviet Union. We see now that the unmobilized power of the United States cannot support and enforce this foreign policy—that the Soviet government is not deterred by our potential power, that the threatened countries do not unite effectively or have the will and capacity to resist if, as it is now the case, it would take a long time to recruit, train, equip, transport overseas, and deploy, the armed force of the United States.

THE KREMLIN, we must realize, has perceived that the vulnerable element in our position is the time we would need to decide, and then to act, to convert our potential military power into actual. This critical interval of time—which exists because we are a peace-loving democracy and separated by the oceans from the European continent—the Russians are exploiting as fully as they can for their own military advantage.

They are using the period of our unpreparedness to dominate, neutralize, or capture the strategic positions from which—when we have mobilized—a serious counteroffensive would have to take off. Knowing that we are not yet mobilized, they have acted, beginning with Czechoslovakia and Finland, to forestall and to frustrate the mobilization of our power. If in the time we consume first in debating, then in mobilizing and deploying, they could thwart the unity of western Europe, make Germany untenable, master the strategic approaches from the north and through the eastern Mediterranean, and perhaps also entangle us irretrievably in China, our military problem—when at last we were mobilized—would indeed be formidable.

THE FACT that the Japanese and the Germans miscalculated the risk of exploiting our unpreparedness has probably not been forgotten in Moscow. But it would be dangerously wishful thinking on our part to suppose that our own military position as against the Soviet Union is as favorable as it was against Germany and Japan. In the second World War the balance of military manpower was decidedly against the Axis. Now the balance is heavily against us and against any coalition which could be formed.

The only way we could hope to achieve a military decision would be by an assault, like that against the Japanese homeland, and on the main centers of European Russia. The Soviet military plan is to control—before we are prepared and able to defend them—the lines of supply, the staging areas, and the bases from which such an assault could be delivered. If they are able to carry out their plan, we should then, as in the Japanese war, have to fight our way back to these strategically important positions. But unlike the Japanese war the way back would not be from island to island in an empty ocean. It would be through the densely populated centers of western civilization, and through their turbulent African and Asiatic dependencies and colonies. It is by no means certain that any country on the European continent would be willing to let a war of this character be fought to a military decision.

THE SITUATION is indeed, as Secretary Marshall has said, very, very serious. Our foreign policy is in danger of defeat owing to the fact that our political commitments are grossly over-extended in comparison with our available and effective military power. The liabilities which we have accepted, have assumed, and have had thrust upon us, are gravely out of balance with our actual power, and perhaps even with our potential power.

If the consequences are to be averted and avoided, the condition of our affairs calls for an immediate increase in our power and for a selective reduction and concentration of our commitments. Unarmed, unmobilized, and in a state of civilian privacy, we cannot any longer carry out the unlimited responsibilities of universal leadership on every issue, in every conflict, everywhere in the world.

Stassen to Give Two Addresses In Ohio Today

Cleveland, March 17 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen will make two addresses here tomorrow in his first Ohio appearance since he entered the State Presidential primary against Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio).

The former Minnesota governor will speak at a joint luncheon meeting of the Advertising Club and the Rotary Club on "Freedom's Future."

His main address, in Public Auditorium tomorrow night, will be on "Republican Issues in 1948." It will be sponsored by Cleveland and Cuyahoga county "Stassen-for-President" clubs.

Earl Hart, his Ohio campaign manager, said Stassen also would appear at a news conference, but that he planned no additional addresses in Ohio.

Stassen seeks Republican convention delegates in 11 Ohio congressional districts.

Stassen Sees 75 GOP Leaders in Maryland

Baltimore, March 17 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen, republican presidential candidate, had a handshaking session with some 75 Maryland republican leaders today and predicted a republican victory in 1948.

He declined to comment immediately on President Truman's message to Congress today, saying he would have to have time to study the proposals.

"I have always been in favor of a strong America," he declared. "I favor the European Recovery Program as modified by Senator Vandenberg."

He told the gathering:

"There is a definite rising tide of public opinion and it points to a Republican victory this year."

He was greeted by Deeley K. Nice, chairman of the Republican Central Committee for Baltimore City.

Not among those who greeted him were Galen L. Tait, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, and Theodore R. McKeldin, former mayor of Baltimore and a Republican candidate for governor two years ago.

Speech Called Good 'Out' on Civil Rights

Senator Stewart (D., Tenn.) said yesterday the President's message to Congress gives Mr. Truman a "grand opportunity" to drop his civil rights program.

Stewart told reporters he hopes the President will "take the lead in calling on Congress to forget such a punitive thing as civil rights" so the Nation can protect its freedom.

"What a grand opportunity this affords him to withdraw the iniquitous civil rights message and really make an effort to restore unity among the people in all sections of the country," Stewart said.

Dorn Urges Cessation Of Civil Rights Battle

Johnston, S. C., March 17 (AP).—Representative Dorn (D., S. C.) today called for "a cessation of the civil rights battle which is dividing America in time of emergency."

Dorn, who has been a leader in the southern fight against President Truman's civil rights program, said before an estimated 8000 persons at a Peach Blossom Festival here today:

"What difference does civil rights make if atomic bombs are dropped on America?"

The issue, he asserted, has been "badly exaggerated by politicians."

"We have given the American people more civil rights than any other country enjoys," he added. "This time of world emergency is not the time for Americans to fight among themselves."

Voting May Be Harder For Mississippi Negroes

Jackson, Miss., March 17 (AP).—The Mississippi Senate has moved to change one word in Mississippi's Constitution and make it still harder for Negroes to vote in this State's elections.

The action was taken with approval of the first reading of a concurrent resolution calling for a constitutional amendment making the ability to read "and" interpret the Constitution a voting requirement.

Voters are now required only to be able to read "or" interpret the document.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Is Self-Restraint Possible?

Childs

THE FIRST gob of campaign mud is here on my desk. It is a book called Missouri Waltz, to be published early in April. On the cover is a convict photograph of the late "Boss" Tom Pendergast of Kansas City with the number assigned to him when he went into Leavenworth Penitentiary.

There is nothing very new that can be told about Harry S. Truman's relationship with the Pendergast machine which, in the final phase, became so vicious and corrupt. But it can be dressed up again for campaign purposes, just as the Moscow radio is dressing up the wicked specter of bossism linked to corrupt capitalism for the purposes of another kind of campaign.

If a time ever called for self-restraint, that time is now. The Republicans, with a little sober reflection, will surely realize that they can afford self-restraint.

They can afford it because Mr. Truman's defeat is assured. Two factors alone would have assured his defeat—one the defection of the right in the Southern States, and the other the splitting off of the extreme left with Henry Wallace and the Communist manipulators. Many other causes are at work, but there is little point in discussing them.

We are living in a perilous interregnum. It will endure for more than nine months. Mr. Truman might have decided at some point after November, 1946, to demonstrate the inherent weakness of our constitutional system by resigning in favor of a Republican, which would have been perfectly possible and legal under the Constitution.

HE APPARENTLY never seriously considered that course, taking even the suggestion as a slur on his courage and integrity. So we see him standing before a Congress that has repeatedly ignored and repudiated him. The vote of no confidence in November, 1946, has echoed again and again in Congress, and the world knows it as well as we do here at home.

Self-restraint is, to be sure, a rare virtue. The temptation at this point to dance on the corpse of the Democratic Party is understandable. This kind of interregnum invites the excesses of victory, and the Republican regulars have waited a long time.

After 1930, poor Herbert Hoover was caught in the same trap. In my opinion he never even approached an adequate plan for curing and checking the depression. But if he had had the most perfect and far-reaching plan in the world, the Democrats riding high in the House would have thrown it out. And one of the rebels was John Nance Garner, who has today become such a hero of the ultra-conservatives.

In 1931, the crisis of depression threatened the entire Nation. Banks and factories were shutting down and food was rotting on the farms while millions were hungry. The crisis this time is, if anything, more grave. It is the threat of a war that might be avoided by steady, firm resolution and a broad show of unity. The war that threatens can last for years. It can cost infinitely more in precious lives and treasure than the last holocaust.

RESTRAINT is needed above all to stop the warfare now going on between the Executive and Legislative branches of the Government. The Republican invasion of private and confidential functions of the Executive branch is producing chaos. This is not government, this business of deliberately pillorying conscientious public servants and demanding access to private documents. It is anarchy.

The dark threat across the world should be enough in itself to induce a reasonable self-restraint. But there is another consideration which, while less important, has a bearing on our conduct at this time.

From the screams of outraged virtue that rise up, one would think Mr. Truman was the first product of machine politics in the United States. You get the strange impression that a machine never existed before Pendergast took over Kansas City.

In pursuing Mr. Truman—and the baying of the pack in full cry is not a pleasant sound—we may want to forget that you and you and you and I made the machine possible by our indifference to and contempt of politics—or because the machine served our own private and profitable interests.

Machines, Republican and Democratic, have been a too-familiar feature of the political landscape. The Penrose machine in Pennsylvania was no aggregation of angels.

The victory snake dance, if it goes on through the next nine months, can do incalculable harm. Self-restraint is not a luxury because the Republicans can so well afford it. And the need for it is so desperate.

Tuck to Testify Here on Proposed Poll Tax Ban

Governor Tuck disclosed yesterday that he plans to present his views on Federal antipoll tax legislation at a sub-committee meeting of the Senate Judiciary Committee here next Tuesday.

The governor said in Richmond he probably will be accompanied by Representative J. Lindsey Almond of the Sixth District who recently was elected attorney general of Virginia.

Mr. Tuck is expected to reiterate his position that any such proposed election reform is a province of the individual state and Federal legislation to that effect would be an invasion of State's rights.

The Virginia General Assembly has passed legislation putting the poll tax voting requirement question before the voters in an election to be held in November of 1949.

The governor will give a radio address tonight at 8 p. m. explaining his legislative program as adopted by the General Assembly of Virginia.

Senate, House Split Evenly on Rent Bill

Sides About Equal as Conference Group Meets This Week in Stiff Tug-of-War

A Senate-House conference committee will begin a stiff tug-of-war this week over rent control extension with each side so evenly weighted that odds are even.

The House wants local rent control boards to rule supreme over extension of rent control until April 1, 1949. Its conferees are backed by a 251 to 132 vote.

The Senate flatly rejected the "local option" amendment and extended the Federal Housing Expediter's present review and veto power over local board actions until May 1, 1949. Its conferees are backed by a 43 to 25 vote.

The opposing positions thus are backed by an approximately equal proportion of members in each body, a situation which has sometimes led to a deadlock.

The Senate yesterday named a strong team—Senators Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.), Ralph Flanders (R., Vt.), Harry Cain (R., Wash.), John Sparkman (D., Ala.) and Glen H. Taylor (D., Idaho).

House conferees, not yet named, will undoubtedly reflect as strongly the House position.

Cain, chairman of the Senate Banking Subcommittee on Rent Control, yesterday declared the House measure "would take away every conceivable reason for a national rent control law."

The constitutionality of such a transfer of Federal power to purely local bodies is extremely doubtful, he added.

Titian Masterpiece Attracts Attention

ART EXHIBIT OPENS—Visitors to the National Gallery of Art, where 202 famed masterpieces from Germany went on exhibit yesterday, view Titian's "Venus With the Organ Player." Exhibit will continue through April 17, 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily and 2 p. m. to 10 p. m. Sundays lection yesterday gave ample evidence of the impression the paintings were making.

"They are perfectly marvelous," said Mrs. Edward N. Kendall of 3712 Military rd. nw. "It is simply out of this world to think of five Van Eyck's in one collection." Mrs. Kendall, who does some painting, said that several of her friends who live in other cities will make special trips to Washington before the paintings are removed April 18 in order to see them.

"But," she added, "I suppose people from all over the United States will be making special trips for this. It certainly would be worth it."

The more than 8000 persons who viewed the collection yesterday did not constitute a record for the gallery, according to Col. H. A. McBride, administrator of the gallery. Colonel McBride pointed out that Sunday attendance sometimes has been as high as 25,000. But, he added, "the figure yesterday represents about twice as many people as we normally have on a good weekday."

One of the most often heard statements yesterday was, "I wish they were our paintings. I wish we could keep them."

But to two solemn-eyed New Jersey students, in town only for two days, there was a variation to this sentiment. Neils Young of Princeton said, "It's amazing to have so many foreign paintings in the country at one time. But it's a crime for us to have them when the people who own them want them back."

After their display here, the paintings will be recrated for shipment to storage points in the American Zone of Occupation in Germany. There they will be held by United States Army authorities until terms of the peace are finally settled. They will then be returned to the German government.

Two Damaged by Salt

Colonel McBride explained that when the paintings reached the gallery here many were still encrusted with salt. But only two were damaged by salt. The rest are as smooth and in as good repair as though they had been painted yesterday. The paintings that suffered salt damage are Simon Marmion's "Altar of St. Omer and Life of St. Berten" and Pieter Brueghel the Elder's "Flemish Folk Sayings."

Lieut. Col. William I. Russell, 4836 Landrum lane., Chevy Chase, Md., who led the detachment of men into the mine where the paintings had been hidden, was on hand yesterday when they were shown publicily here for the first time.

Colonel Russell explained that the Third Army had been notified by two French women, impressed into labor in Germany, that there was "gold" in the salt mine, and that they had no inkling of the huge store of art works until the detachment actually entered the mine.

The curator of all of Berlin's museums was working in the mine, cataloguing paintings at the time the American forces moved in, and he turned over his listings to Third Army personnel when the works were removed from the mines.

Senate to Take Up Tax Cuts Today Despite Truman Speech

By The Associated Press

The Senate will begin debate today on the $4,800,000,000 tax-reduction bill despite President Truman's plea for a mightier military America.

Republican sponsors of the bill said they saw no reason for not going ahead as planned. Some Democrats, however, believed the President's message to Congress today called for "another look" at the bill.

Senator Millikin (R., Colo.), chairman of the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee, announced after Mr. Truman's speech that the Senate definitely would take up the legislation tomorrow.

Sees Situation Unchanged

He said Mr. Truman's message "presented no reason for not going ahead."

Senator Edward Martin (R., Pa.), another member of the Finance Committee, agreed. "We've got a surplus sufficient to make a reduction in taxes," he said.

But Representative Gearhart (R., Calif.) said: This changes tax reduction considerations. We are going to need more revenue—not less."

And Representative Doughton of North Carolina, senior Democrat on the tax writing Ways and Means Committee, said: "We are going to have to take another look at the tax bill."

House Figures Trimmed

The House already has passed a bill to trim taxes $6,500,000,000. The Senate Finance Committee whittled this figure down to $4,800,000,000.

The committee trimmed the House figure in an effort to win enough Democratic votes to override an expected presidential veto.

The Senate tomorrow will begin a debate on whether to approve this figure, or a lower one, around four billion dollars, asked by Democrats.

The Senate measure as it now stands provides cuts ranging from 12.6 per cent for the lowest income taxpayers to 5 per cent in the highest brackets.

School Fair Tomorrow

Woodrow Wilson High School students will hold a county fair in the school gymnasium from 2:30 to 5 p. m. tomorrow.

the margarine problem was termed "pure bunk" by Abernathy.

The subcommittee must report its findings by December 31. The present Congress goes out of office January 3.

"The committee has killed the bills and it is now proposed to soften the impact and quiet Nation-wide resentment by setting up this subcommittee to confer with the big interests," Abernathy said.

After voting to set up the committee, the Republican majority defeated three attempts to have the group report back on May 1, May 15 or June 1. The vote in each case was 14 to 10.

Italy to Move Army Units Near 4 Cities

Troops to Guard Against Communist Seizure of Power Before April Election

Rome, March 17 (U.P.).—Regular Italian army troops will be moved into camps near four strategic Communist-controlled cities in north Italy before the April 18 elections to guard against any Communist attempt to seize power illegally, official sources said today.

Troops will be moved into six camps now occupied by 8000 displaced persons at Milan, Turin, Bologna and Cremona. The first three cities are the biggest Communist strongholds in Italy.

Defense ministry officials would not specify the number of troops involved. Altogether, the army totals 175,000 men.

The government long has feared a Communist coup, sources said, a ' has prepared a plan it believes will meet any leftist attempt to seize control. It believes Communists will strike first in northern Italy and that the critical period will come immediately after the April 18 elections.

Government spokesmen declared, meanwhile, that Italy will not consider paying her 100-million-dollar war reparations to the Soviet Union now because such payments would mean using American supplies to aid the Russian economy.

The foreign office in a note to the Soviet Union, said in addition that reparations payments would work "only to the advantage of the Soviet Union." The note was in reply to a Russian note of March 9 which asked for a simultaneous discussion of a trade agreement and reparations.

Oil Set-up in Saudi Arabia And U. S. Being Rechecked

By The Associated Press

Uncertain world conditions yesterday led the United States to double-check the oil set-up at home and in Saudi Arabia:

1. Secretary of Defense Forrestal told a Senate Small Business Committee that he has asked military experts if it is advisable to continue shipping steel to build pipelines in the Middle East.

2. The National Petroleum Council said the American oil industry must have 15,571,500 tons of steel during the next 18 months and must drill a record total of 37,600 new wells this year.

Harriman to Defer Quotas

3. Secretary of Commerce Harriman promised he will not grant export quotas for the second quarter of this year until Forrestal has completed his study.

4. Harriman said an American-owned company building the Saudi Arabian pipeline has changed the design and routing of the line so the entire flow could go to Persian Gulf ports instead of Lebanon "if conditions required." The concern is the Trans-Arabian Pipeline Co.

Senator Taylor (R., Idaho) bluntly asked if it would be possible to keep oil flowing from the Middle East to western Europe in case of war with Russia.

Forrestal said he was not qualified to answer that.

The Defense Secretary said the survey he has requested deals only with the broad question of whether it is more desirable to employ a pipeline or tankers to carry oil to the Mediterranean. He said he expected an answer before the end of the week.

Steel Proposal Explained

Forrestal said he was influenced by the world scarcity of oil last October when he recommended that steel be shipped to Saudi Arabia to complete the pipeline.

"In the light of events of the last several weeks," he said, he had asked for a new survey.

Even if the steel exports are stopped, he said, there is no guarantee that it will increase oil output here because there are no controls to route the material to the oil industry.

But Walter S. Hallanan, chairman of the National Petroleum Council, indicated in his estimate of needs for domestic use that an increase in steel here could help solve the shortage.

The council advises the Interior Department on oil matters. Its 15,571,500 ton steel figure was designed to cover the period from April 1, 1948 to September 30, 1949.

The council worked from estimates by the Interior Department that the United States will use oil at the rate of 6,250,000 barrels a day this year, 6,550,000 next year and 6,800,000 daily in 1950.

U. S. Oil Consumption

United States oil consumption in 1946 was 5,321,000 barrels a day, and in 1947 it was 5,900,000 barrels daily.

To meet their share of the national demand, American producers must drill 37,600 new wells this year, the greatest drilling development in United States history. The present record, set in 1937, is 35,213 wells.

Harriman defended current licensing of steel tube shipments to Saudi Arabia. He said it would ease oil supplies in this country and elsewhere in the Western Hemisphere.

He said every ton of steel used for casing and connecting an oil well in the United States boosts petroleum production by about 100 barrels a year. But for each ton used in Saudi Arabia, it will produce "over 6000 barrels a year."

Athens Decree

Strikers Told They've Been Conscripted

Athens, March 17 (NYHT).—Premier Themistocles Sophoulis decreed tonight that all 80,000 Greek government employes were conscripted in the fight against the Communist junta of General Markos, thereby depriving them of the right to strike.

By utilizing a prewar decree amended by parliament last year, Sophoulis sought to prevent a repetition of today's one-day strike by 20,000 government workers who resented nonpayment of holiday bonuses.

Simultaneously, he called for a "national rally" of all citizens to alleviate privations of families of men called to military service. He directed local prefects to prepare lists of all wealthy persons, who will be obliged to visit needy families and "contribute in so far as possible by their own means." Physicians will be obliged to treat families of servicemen without charge, and pharmacists must supply medicines without charge, or at cost price.

Sophoulis ordered "a spiritual rally through churches, schools, the press, men of science and letters stressing the importance of the struggle, the causes which provoked it and the consequences for our race in the event the struggle fails."

Chest Federation Annual Meeting Set Today

First annual meeting of the Community Chest Federation, National Capital area, is to be held today at 4 p. m. in the auditorium of the Commerce Department Building.

Members will hear highlights of the first year of the federation, the treasurer's annual report, a statement on last fall's campaign, and will consider recommendations for operation in 1948.

Daniel W. Bell, federation president, in a letter to members said the Washington Chest and Washington Council of Social Agencies are creating a single new organization, which "should form a sound basis for better understanding and remove the obstacles that have stood in the path of the federation in its fund-raising responsibility."

Mannerheim Denies Going Into Exile

Stockholm, March 17 (AP).—Baron Carl Gustav Mannerheim arrived here today from Finland to see his personal physician and strongly denied published reports that he was going into exile.

Mannerheim

Mannerheim, former President of Finland, said he would continue to Switzerland to take care of his health. He is suffering from a duodenal ulcer. "I categorically deny all rumors that I am going abroad as an exile," he said.

Reports published abroad said he was going into exile as a dramatic gesture to awaken world opinion to the perils confronting his country."

VA to Withold Viers Mill Okay Until Completion

Veterans Administration will withhold approval of GI loans on the controversial Viers Mill Village low-cost housing project pending a satisfactory inspection of the complete homes, a VA spokesman said yesterday.

Morgan B. Callahan, loan guarantee officer for VA, pointed out that before GI loans are guaranteed, two steps are taken. A "compliance" report must be received from Federal Housing Administration certifying the builder has complied with building requirements and a VA appraiser also inspects the final product.

"Then, and only then, will we approve GI loans to veterans and they are thus assured of a double check," he said.

Viers Mill Village, near Wheaton, Md., on a 325-acre tract, currently is the object of a congressional subcommittee probe. A total of 1400 homes, selling at $8700 to veterans with no down payment are planned.

group which seeks sovereignty for Slovakia.

Chile charged—as did Papanek—that recent changes in the Czechoslovak government were brought about by the intervention of Russia. Chile asked the Council to investigate the situation.

Gromyko declared that the authors of the joint Chilean-Papanek document were trying to use the Security Council to carry on hostile attacks on the Soviet Union.

Gromyko also blasted at what he called certain "cheap boulevard American newspapers." Gromyko said the Chilean document was written in the language they use.

Gromyko called Papanek, who was sitting in the advisers section of the Council chamber, a "traitor" to his people and to his country.

3 Germans, Agents of Soviet, Convicted in Zone Kidnap Try

Berlin, March 17 (U.P.).—Three Germans, self-confessed secret agents of the Russian criminal police, were convicted in an American Military Government court today after being caught trying to kidnap a former Communist-front member who fled to the United States ocupation zone.

Col. Frank L. Howley, American military governor for Berlin, told newsmen in announcing convictions of the two men and one woman that the attempted kidnaping was the most recent incident in a Communist "reign of terror."

Otmar Lutz, 33, Kurt Muller and a Mrs. Schmidt were sentenced to five years' imprisonment, but Lutz and Muller received suspended sentences of one year.

Howley said information had been given him by Social Democratic Party leaders showing that more than 1600 Germans had "disappeared" from Berlin in the past 30 months.

Howley said that Communists were trying to hide their "reign of terror" behind "smoke screens" consisting of violent attacks in the Russian-controlled press on American Military Government and the United States Army.

Meyerovitch Left $39,000 Estate To 3 Daughters

A total of $27,000 in cash and $9000 in insurance comprised the estate of Meyer Meyerovitch, grocer, slain March 1 in his store at 90 O st. nw., it was revealed in District Court Tuesday.

The figures were disclosed in a petition for letters of administration filed in behalf of a sister, Mrs. Betty Taishoff, 435 Ingraham st. nw., by Attorney Jacob Sandler. Meyerovitch also left a half-interest in the grocery, valued at $3000.

Sole beneficiaries of the estate are Meyerovitch's three daughters, Clara Kay and Louise Ray, 10, twins, and Rochelle Lorraine, 7. Meyerovitch's wife, Celia, died in 1940.

Of the search for the grocer's slayers, Capt. Robert Bryant, acting chief of the detective bureau, said yesterday: "We are still trying. There is nothing new."

Government Units Aid Mukden

Peiping, March 17 (AP).—Mukden's long blockade has been eased by government troops who have opened a highway leading to China proper, press dispatches said today.

These accounts said the government wedge in Manchuria also had been widenedy by the capture of Sinlitun, a main bulwark 70 miles west of Mukden. They predicted a railroad link to Mukden soon would be reopened to supplement the new highway route.

Against these successes, the Peiping press reported the outer defense of Changchun, Manchuria's capital, were being harassed by Communists who may be preparing a full-scale attack.

In north China, martial law was proclaimed in Tsinan, capital of Shantung Province. Communist troops were advancing on the city from positions 15 miles away.

Two Get Poetry Posts

Mrs. Leonie Adams Troy of New York City and William Carlos Williams, Rutherford, N. J., were named yesterday consultants in poetry in English at the Library of Congress for the next two years.

Mrs. Troy, frequent contributor to the Saturday Review of Literature and the New York Herald Tribune, will serve from the fall of this year to the fall of 1949. Williams, who has written 11 volumes of prose in addition to poetry, will take up his duties the following year, the library said yesterday.

Boy, 11, Hurt by Explosion in 'Jet' Racer

An 11-year-old District Heights (Md.) boy was in Casualty Hospital with a broken nose and severe cuts in his face yesterday following the explosion of a carbon dioxide tube in his model auto racer, which he planned to enter in a YMCA contest.

Gerald Baldwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Baldwin, jr., 600 Avenue E, District Heights, was working on his "jet-propelled" racer with a soldering iron about 5 p. m. Tuesday when the tube exploded, his mother said yesterday.

A friend, Joseph Cosimano, 10, of 205 Avenue F, District Heights, was also cut on the face and hands, said Mrs. Baldwin, who declared the 10-cent tube which exploded was not marked to show it was dangerous.

Mrs. Baldwin, who has three other young sons, said this was the most recent of a series of accidents which have injured the children and have caused her, their doctor and their minister to urge the return of her husband, a civilian attache of the American Military Government in Korea. She received word yesterday that he was returning on the next ship.

The other children, whose recent troubles have included cuts, the loss of part of a finger and injuries from getting caught in a wringer, are Walter 3d, 12, Bruce, 6 and Roger, 2.

Mrs. Baldwin said she hoped the accident to Gerald, who was reported in fair condition at the hospital, would serve as a warning to other families with "jet" racers.

27,000 Residents of District Aided by Red Cross Last Year

More than 27,000 Washington residents were aided by the Red Cross Home Service here last year, according to information made public yesterday.

The services—30,345 all told—cost the Red Cross $266,731.01. Virtually all of the persons assisted, outside of disaster cases, were veterans or service personnel and their dependents.

Home Service budget requirements for the coming fiscal year are estimated at $257,000 and are included in the $1,080,000 now being sought in the Red Cross campaign here.

It will be "city division day" at the report luncheon scheduled for 12:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Chamber of Commerce building.

O. H. Ritenour, city division chairman, in a bulletin yesterday, urged an all-out effort to bring in the remaining 50 per cent of the division quota. John L. Sullivan, Secretary of the Navy, will be speaker at the meeting.

Recent plus-quota achievements for the Red Cross find the State Department at 125 per cent of its goal. Navy divisions which have gone over the top include the Bureau of Naval Personnel, Bureau of Yards and Docks, United States Marine Corps, the Bureau of Ordnance and the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery.

A total of $589,769, or 54.61 per cent of the area goal, has been subscribed so far.

3 Cancer Study Projects Here Get $24,305

Three cancer research projects here have been awarded grants-in-aid totaling $24,305, it was announced last night.

Two of the projects were reported under way at George Washington University School of Medicine, the third at the Army Institute of Pathology.

The three awards were among 51 research grants totaling $588,032 being distributed through National Cancer Institute of the United States Public Health Service. Announced by Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security Administrator, the awards were termed the largest number of grants-in-aid to non-Federal institutions ever given by USPHS.

The Geofge Washington University awards included $10,800 for special studies towards the control of tumor growth, and $8505 for comparative studies, cytologically and cytochemically, of certain features of senile tissues with those of malignant growths from such tissues.

The Army Institute of Pathology grant, civilian branch work administered by the National Academy of Sciences, is $5000. It is to be used to assist in the pathologic and roentgenologic phases of the study of steroid treatment of breast carcinoma, a project undertaken for the American Medical Association.

Sharpe to Speak

C. Melvin Sharpe, member of the District Board of Education, will address the Public Schools Association at 8 p. m. tomorrow in the District Building.

Cadillac

PRESENTS

THE New STANDARD OF THE WORLD!

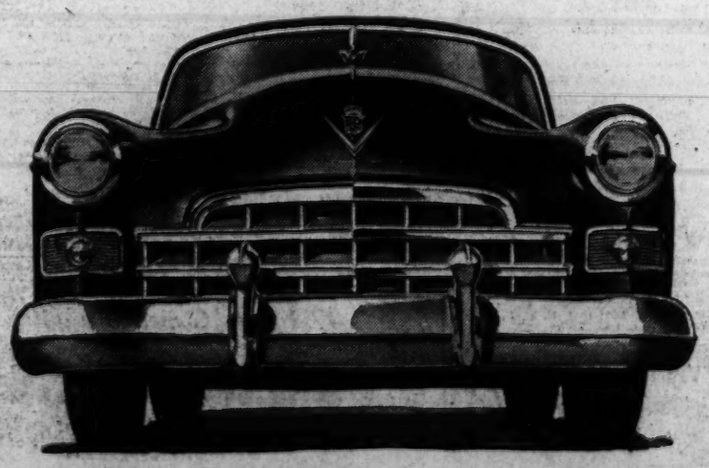
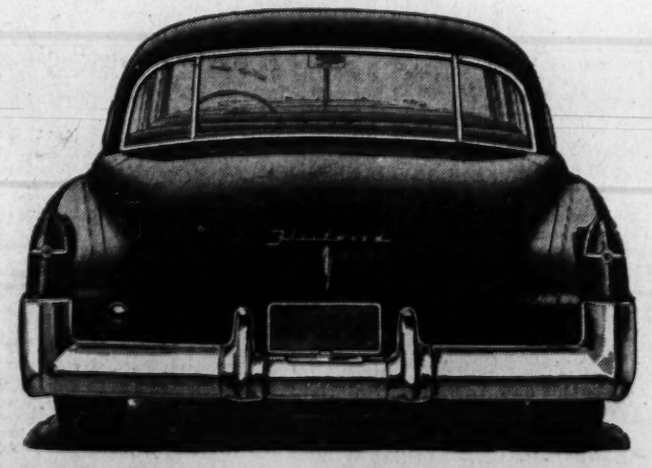
White Sidewall Tires available at additional cost.

Today, the world has a new standard by which to measure motor cars. For Cadillac, long the world's standard, has taken a great stride forward—one of the greatest, perhaps, in its entire history of automotive pioneering. As is always the case when a new Cadillac is introduced, the advancement embraces every phase of automotive goodness. The exterior appearance is wholly new, and represents the soundest principles developed in years of continuous research. Interior design and finish are a complete departure, and add immeasurably to comfort, beauty and convenience. Performance is finer in every way, for the great Cadillac chassis and engine have been thoroughly refined. And vital improvements in factory equipment have raised even Cadillac's high standards of manufacturing. In fact, all the attributes which have contributed to Cadillac's reputation as the world's premier motor car have been made more pronounced. Regardless of the price class from which you expect to select your next car, you are cordially invited to view the new Cadillac—now on display in our showrooms. When the standard of the automotive world has been so decidedly raised, it should be of interest to everyone.



While the over-all impression is strikingly new, Cadillac's basic characteristics of design are fully apparent in the front view of the 1948 model. Bumper and grille are even more massive, emphasizing power and stability. The symbolic V ornament and crest have been pleasingly refined to harmonize with new low hood lines. Larger, lower-pressure tires add to both appearance and comfort.

Viewed from the rear, the 1948 Cadillac represents a complete departure in design. The full-width, divided rear window improves appearance and safety. Smart aircraft "rudder-type" fenders, protected by sturdy bumper uprights, give an appropriate touch of fleetness to long, flowing body lines. Note the wide, low rear deck.



If you are waiting for a new Cadillac—please be patient for every effort is being made to further production. Demand is so great, however, that some delay in delivery is still inevitable. But hold to your purpose! There is no substitute for a Cadillac.

UAL Reports Loss Despite Record Gross

By S. Oliver Goodman

United Air Lines went $3,774,366 in the red last year despite a record volume of passenger-cargo traffic, President W. A. Patterson reported yesterday.

Patterson

At the same time Patterson revealed plans to raise additional capital this year. In a proxy statement accompanying the annual report to stockholders, Patterson proposed an increase from 94,968 shares to 300,000 shares of UAL's cumulative preferred stock and an increase from 2,500,000 to five million shares in common stock.

The statement also proposed a reduction in UAL capital by retransferring to surplus $6,855,538 which was transferred from earned surplus to capital a year ago. These measures will be acted upon at the annual meeting on April 13.

Last year's earnings deficit contrasted with 1946 net income of $1,086,961. Operating revenues for 1947 totaled $69,038,174, up 6.3 per cent while operating costs of $73,877,267 jumped 18 per cent.

Borden's Net Holds Steady; Sales Mount

The Borden Co. reported earnings of $19,793,276, equal to $4.61 a share, for 1947, compared with $19,581,006, or $4.64 a share, in the previous year.

Dollar sales of $602,959,406 represented an 11 per cent increase over the $542,998,805 reported for 1948.

Theodore G. Montague, Borden president, said a decline in profit on the sales dollar "came at a time when general conditions called for, and justified a higher return."

"An adequate profit could not be earned," he said, "because of heavy increases in operating costs."

In addition to 1947 depreciation charges of $7,703,212, the company said it was necessary to use an additional nine million dollars from earnings and three million dollars from working capital, a total of almost 20 million dollars, for capital expenditure. Most of this amount went for sorely needed replacements, Montague said.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, March 17 (AP).—Selling got the better of the market in the last half hour today and grains ended lower on the Board of Trade. Most of the session prices were ahead of the previous close but the late selling found buying orders few and sales could be made only at price concessions.

Wheat closed 1¼ to 3 cents lower, May $2.38¼@2.39; corn was 2¼ lower to ⅛ higher, May 2.18¼@2.18; oats were ⅛ to ¾ lower, May 1.12⅝@1.12¾, and soybeans were 3 to 3½ higher, May 3.46¼.

Traders found some difficulty in accounting for the late liquidation. One explanation was that the Government was finding it easy to get the approximately one million bushels of wheat it wants to buy each day. More grain was being offered the Commodity Credit Corporation than was wanted, traders said.

Rochdale Members Ballot on Closing One of Stores

More than 3000 members of the Rochdale Cooperative, Inc., which operates four food stores and a gasoline station in Washington, are balloting this week on a proposal to discontinue the store at 2101 Alabama ave. se.

In December, the cooperative's Bethesda store was closed.

Jesse Yaukey, president, in a letter to members said the cooperative has suffered "heavy losses" in the past three years and that "drastic steps needed to be taken immediately to stop these losses."

In spite of Rochdale's losses, Yaukey feels that the cooperative movement "is making progress in Washington." President of the corporation for less than a year, Yaukey is statistician for the United Mine Workers welfare and retirement fund.

Rochdale was founded in 1937. Its aggregate sales last year were in the neighborhood of a million dollars and it showed a net deficit of $42,000, Yaukey reported.

Soviet Asks Liths in U. S. To Register

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Lithuanians from four provinces have been advised to register as Soviet citizens if they have not been naturalized in the United States, the Soviet Embassy said yesterday.

An embassy spokesman said advertisements calling on Lithuanians from Memel, Klaipeda, Shilut and Pageg to register with the nearest Russian consulate were run last week in two Lithuanian newspapers in New York and one in Chicago. Compliance, it was said, was voluntary.

News to Legation

A search of all available New York and Chicago Lithuanian newspapers through March 15 failed to disclose such advertisements. However, the registration appeal was published early this month in a Winnipeg, Canada, Lithuanian language paper.

The Lithuanian legation here said it had not heard of the notice and the editor of the anti-Soviet newspaper Naujienos, published in Chicago, said it had not come to his attention. It was news also to the State Department.

The Republic of Lithuania maintains a legation here, since Soviet absorption of that country has not been recognized by the United States. This country, therefore, does not regard unnaturalized Lithuanians living here as Soviet citizens.

Few Responses Expected

It was expected here that few Lithuanians now in the United States would respond to the Russian invitation. Those here on permanent immigration visas generally have sought naturalization as soon as possible and those who have not would have nothing to gain by registering unless they expected to return to Lithuania.

Lithuanians here on temporary visas as political refugees would lose that status once they became Soviet citizens and would have no excuse for remaining here longer. Practically all in that category came here originally to escape Soviet rule.

Men Leave Revival To Fight Forest Fire

Martinsburg, W. Va., March 17 (AP).—Half a dozen men were called from a revival service at their church recently and helped fight a 50-acre forest fire which was brought under control near Gerardstown, southwest of here.

Game Protector W. W. Parsons also reported a 30-acre fire near Falling Waters. They were the first woodland fires reported this season.

Hero's Medals Duplicated For Mother

The mother of a World War II hero, who escaped Japanese violence only to lose his life in a plane crash here in the fall of 1946, has been awarded a "duplicate" set of decorations bestowed upon him by the Army.

Millar

Mrs. Frances J. Millar, of 1734 P st. nw, revealed yesterday that 11 decorations won by her son, the late Maj. Edward G. Millar, 29, have been given her by Maj. General Hobart R. Gay, commanding the Military District of Washington. His wife has the original set, Mrs. Millar said.

Major Millar piloted a plane in the first B-29 raid on Japan and then participated in an attack on the Yawata steel works. A raid over Singapore in March, 1944, brought him to a Japanese prison camp after his plane was shot down. For more than five months he was held in solitary confinement—awaiting execution.

Major Millar and his brother, Lieut. Comdr. Charles M. Millar, 38, were killed in the crash of a B-25 October 13, 1946, at Franconia, Va.

Decorations awarded Mrs. Millar included the Distinguished Flying Cross with two Oak Leaf Clusters, the Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters, the Army Commendation Ribbon and the Purple Heart with two Oak Leaf Clusters.

Arab Explosive Truck Blasted, 10 Die; 39 Jews Are Wounded

Jerusalem, March 17 (AP).—Jews manning a road block near Haifa today blew up an Arab truck packed with explosives, killing 10 Arabs and wounding 48 other persons, police said.

The wounded included 39 Jews, 7 Arabs and 2 British soldiers. Many of the victims were believed to be passersby.

The blast and other violence in the Holy Land brought to 180 the unofficial death toll since the November 29 U. N. decision to partition Palestine.

Abdul Kader Husseini, commander of the Palestinian Arab army, told newsmen Arabs would capture or destroy Hebrew University and Hadassah Hospital on Mount Scopus outside Jerusalem if the Jews continued to use them as bases for attacks.

[According to the United Press Kader claimed full Arab responsibility for the recent Ben Yehuda st. and Palestine Post bombings and said "no Britons had a hand in these attacks."]

Good 'Briefing' Of Wallace Seen By Steinhardt

Prague, March 17 (AP).—United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt said today "Henry Wallace appears to have been well briefed by his Communist associates" on affairs in Czechoslovakia.

Steinhardt issued a formal statement denying that he had helped provoke the government crisis in which the Communists seized power in Czechoslovakia. He wasn't even there at the time, the Ambassador said.

Wallace, third party candidate for President, told a news conference in New York Monday that Steinhardt had issued a statement the day before the Communist coup "hoping to precipitate a crisis."

Orchardist Killed

Romney, W. Va., March 17 (AP).—Jules Frederick Schwalb, 29, manager of the Grandview Orchards, 10 miles east of here, was killed today when a tractor he was loading onto a truck overturned.

Rich Draft-Dodger Rubinstein Loses Parole Appeal

The Federal Parole Board yesterday refused a parole for Serge I. Rubinstein, international financier now serving time for Draft Act evasion in World War II.

Rubinstein, who had offices in Wall Street and luxurious homes on Fifth ave., New York and at Redbank, N. J., was convicted in New York City last April of evading Selective Service by making false statements to his draft board.

He was fined $50,000 and sentenced to 2½ years in Lewisburg (Pa.) Federal Prison.

Rubinstein became eligible for parole last month, and immediately applied for his release from prison. Fred S. Rogers of the parole board held a hearing for Rubinstein at Lewisburg last Monday. He recommended against parole, and the board said today that recommendation had been adopted.

Wallace to Administer Md. Fisheries Dept.

Annapolis, Md., March 17 (AP).—Administrative charge of the Department of Tidewater Fisheries was given to David H. Wallace, executive secretary, at a meeting of the Tidewater Commission today.

One of the tasks for Wallace will be deciding the duties of Capt. Amos S. Creighton, commander of the Tidewater fleet.

Creighton's duties have been the kernel of a controversy within the commission. It was this fight which led Governor Lane to ask for the resignation of Chairman John E. Clark.

'Senator' Isn't Risking Cloture

By Richard L. Coe

"THE SENATOR WAS INDISCREET," at Keith's, is grand fun. It's broad farce from start to finish and William Powell's stuffed-shirt dimwit who spouts political gobbledegook is sheer joy.

So broadly farcical, in fact, is this picture, which its producers have been timid about releasing, that it would be utter madness for even the most thin-skinned politician to object. To admit that one saw oneself as this presidential aspirant would be self-revelation of the most disastrous sort.

If you follow politics at all—and who in Washington can avoid it?—you'll recognize all the wonderful imbecilities of homo non sapiens. The fantastic campaign promises that are made again and again with bigger and better variations to dwarf potential rivalry, the engrossing self-complacency that comes with gnawing ambition, the behind-scenes jockeying for position, are all neatly spoofed.

Powell plays a geographically anonymuos Senator whose wife wants him to be President. The inner council of The Party laughs at him, until he tells them he has a diary. "Does it tell what happened in Boston?" It does—and in a lot of other places.

This sets Senator Melvin G. Ashton on a Nation-wide tour and gives him the chance to utter those quadrennially familiar words: "I am not under any circumstances a candidate. BUT."

"Let us not be disrespectful," says the Senator, "of labor's right to strike . . . And of management's right to object to strikes."

"I have never put a man or woman on the public payroll," he exudes, "who was not my own blood kin."

Mysterious Train Wreck

"No member of the Party," one of the bosses tells him, annoyed at the Senator's ill-concealed ambitions, "has a right to deny he's a candidate unless he is."

From his train, Senator Ashton raves about the virtues of Minneapolis—and as the train pulls away you see the station sign: "St. Paul."

Yes, it's broad, slambang humor a sharp trio has poured into the picture. Nunnally Johnson, the producer, has allowed Director George S. Kaufman to be merrily frisky with the Charles MacArthur script, and the results are often reminiscent of the tricks Kaufman used (with Moss Hart) for "Of Thee I Sing" and its successors of the musical comedy stage. You get an inserted newsreel, the Senator in those aspects of labor which candidates assume for the cameras and a most amusing train wreck—"mysterious" is what the papers call it.

The Senator's Wife

There are some other neatly burlesqued touches: the pinko waiter who's suspected (naturally) of stealing the diary; the frenzied plan for "Honest John," "Smiling Joe" and "Honest Pete" to skip to Patagonia, Little America and Siberia once the diary is published; finally, there is one of those gagged-up fadeouts when you see the Senator and his wife on a South Sea island—having to move again. Don't miss your glimpse of the wife.

Powell is superbly fatuous as the Senator. The man just oozes good will, confused thoughts and a prize for all who'll give him their vote. Notable in the supporting cast are Peter Lind Hayes, as his public relations counsel; Ella Raines, as a wise newsgal, and Claire Carleton as a bewitchingly dopey blonde.

In the large cast, too, Washingtonians will get a quick glimpse of a real Senator's granddaughter. Nina Lunn, whose grandfather is Maine's Senator Wallace H. White, shares an elevator with Powell in one of his more frenzied moments.

Keith's also affords "This Is America," a trip abroad, "Switzerland Today," an interesting treatise with a timely angle on military training, and a mighty fine Donald Duck, who has a tough time getting to sleep. It's a good bill.

DRIVE-IN DIVISION: Sidney Lust's open-air drive-in on the Baltimore Pike at Beltsville crashes through with the news that it will open Friday, April 2 . . . The theater has replaced its individual car speakers with the latest in sound mechanisms, and there's to be light of greater intensity "behind the film, assuring higher quality screen reproduction." . . . So that brings the drive-in theaters up to date . . . The Airport opens tomorrow night with Danny Kaye in "The Kid from Brooklyn" and E. M. Loew's on the Richmond Highway has settled on Easter for its seasonal bow.

TONIGHT: Betty Sanders, Lead Belly and Peter Seeger unpack their guitars and folk songs at Turner's Arena for a "Hootenanny" presented by the new firm, Entertainment Unlimited . . . The new Dupont Theater opens its doors with a benefit for the D. C. Society for Crippled Children; the new house's first picture is "The Roosevelt Story."

"THE SENATOR WAS INDISCREET." Universal-International release of a Nunnally Johnson production. Screen play by Charles MacArthur from a story by Edwin Lanham. Directed by George S. Kaufman. Music by Daniele Amfitheatrof. Photography by William Mellor. At Keith's.

Langer Files 2 Bills Benefiting War Service, Non-Veteran Employes

CHANGES? Two major bills to reverse present Civil Service Commission policies that would affect hundreds of thousands of Government people were introduced in the Senate yesterday by Chairman Langer of its Civil Service Committee. The bills would:

1. Allow a war service or temporary employe who has had a minimum of five years of satisfactory service to get a permanent Civil Service status by merely passing a "suitable noncompetitive examination." In addition, the bill would give him five additional points on his noncompetitive test "if his name now appears on a roster of eligibles as a result of a regular Civil Service examination;" and,

2. Overhaul present layoff regulations which give super-preference to veterans. Veterans would still be given preference when reductions are ordered, but only up to a certain point. The Langer bill carries these provisions:

That a veteran whose efficiency rating is "good" or better shall be retained in preference to all other competing employes with less than 10 years of experience, and,

That a veteran whose rating is below "good" shall be retained in preference to a competing nonpreference employe with less than 10 years of total service who has an equal or lower rating.

In other words, under the bill, a veteran would be on his own during a lay-off in competing with nonveterans who have had 10 or more years of service. Also, if the veteran's combined years of civilian and military service totaled more than 10 years he wouldn't have any special preference when reductions were made.

Langer introduced this bill because of what's happening in the Veterans' Administration. A number of long-service nonveterans are being fired and demoted in VA while veterans who have less service are retained. The present lay-off system permits a permanent-status veteran with a year or so of service to displace a nonveteran with unlimited service.

Veterans' organizations are sure to fight the Langer bill. A measure similar to the Langer bill is reported being drafted in the House.

The first Langer bill—to make it simple and easy for five-year-war-service and temporary workers to get permanent status—is a jab at the Civil Service examining procedure. Langer is only one member of Congress who believes Civil Service is slow-pokey in the conversion of Federal personnel from war to peace. He says that if any person has held a job satisfactorily for five years this should be ample proof that he's qualified to handle it; that no written examination ever invented is better than experience in testing a man's abilities.

The other side of the story is this—Civil Service says it's well ahead of its examining schedule, and that veterans wouldn't get a fair shake at Federal jobs unless open competitive tests were given. The commission, by the way, is sure to oppose bills.

EXPANSION: The President's defense plans aren't apt to bring about any sizable expansion in the Federal service. This much is sure—no new employes will be hired soon.

It took about 45,000 paid employes to operate the Selective Service system during the war. This agency has about 5000 employes now. But if either Selective Service, UMT, or both, were voted by Congress as requested by the President, the Army and the Navy would need to hire tens of thousands of additional employes to rebuild camps, operate laundries, operate power plants, and otherwise service the trainees. However, much of this work would be done by contract and the increased personnel wouldn't show up on the Federal payroll. In any event, it would take months to get Selective Service under way.

PAY PROGRESS: A new pay-raise bill is being drafted at the instance of several members of the House Civil Service Committee. It will carry these main provisions:

1. To make permanent the proposed revision of the Classification Act as suggested by the Administration. The revision would cost about $8 million dollars a year and it would increase the average salary of the 880,000 people under the act by $100, and,

2. A temporary pay raise that would increase the average salary by $400 additional. This part of the bill would expire June 30, 1949.

OPPOSITION: The committee was told yesterday that the President only this week had reaffirmed his opposition to cost-of-living pay raises for Federal workers at this time. The statement was made by Joseph Winslow of the Budget Bureau. Winslow also told the committee:

That he supported Classification Act revision to make it simple and efficient. He said it was now distorted and ouf of balance.

That Federal agencies would be unable to absorb the cost of any pay raise. He wouldn't comment on the size of a pay raise, and whether it should be permanent or temporary.

Earlier, Civil Service Commissioner Arthur S. Flemming testified there was a move on in the Senate to add a rider to the pay bill to increase the leave of postal employes to 26 days annual and 15 days sick. These employes now get only 15 days annual and 10 days sick. Flemming said he favored giving them the same leave benefits of other Federal workers.

Board Blames Code Violations In Collapse of Empire Building

Factors Involved Said to Prevent Fixing of Degree of Responsibility

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

Failure of a first-floor wall section, which had not been reinforced to comply with District regulations, was the "principal cause" of collapse of the Empire Building, 9th st. and New York ave. nw., on December 16.

This was the verdict reported to the Commissioners yesterday by a five-man investigating board after three months of examining wreckage and questioning witnesses concerning the collapse, which killed 4 and injured 12.

Contributing factors over "many years" and "the involvement of so many persons," said the board, "make it impossible . . . to fix the degree of responsibility for the collapse."

The report noted, however, that the late Moss C. Lee, contractor for 1932 alterations, did not rebuild the wall section, or "pier," in accordance with "code requirements" or a "note stamped on the plan" by the building inspector's office.

Held Part of Plan

But reports by inspection department field inspectors Oscar Estep and William Newman, the board said, "indicate that the work was performed in accordance with the drawings."

(Stewart Beall, chairman of the board, said "any note or stamp on the drawing is considered part of the drawing.")

The board listed these conclusions regarding causes of the pier failure:

1. The pier was "the remaining portion" of a wall originally 33 feet long, in which two previous openings had been made about 1908 or 1909.

2. Alterations in 1932, under District permit, further reduced the pier's size so "it was supporting loads in excess of those allowed under the District . . . regulations for ordinary brick laid up in lime-mortar."

3. The pier for many years was subjected to vibration from heavy traffic at the intersection.

4. A recess about 2 inches wide and 5 inches high occurred on the north side and extended "the full east-west dimension of the pier."

5. During redecoration of the City Finance Office on the first floor in 1947, an opening was made in the pier large enough to install an electrical conduit and two electrical outlets.

6. At the same time, a new lath and plaster ceiling was installed (without a permit) in the office, adding approximately a ton to the load carried by the pier.

7. A plumbing leak in the second floor above the office, which occurred the Sunday before the collapse, brought enough water "to have caused a partial or possibly complete saturation of the pier."

"However, the water leak would have had no appreciable affect upon a pier properly designed and constructed in accordance with the building regulations," the board pointed out.

"The principal cause of the failure . . . was the enlargement of the opening in 1932 and the failure at that time to provide a support conforming with code requirements," the board concluded.

Included in the report was an exhibit listing permits issued for the Empire Building. The board noted there were "five permits . . . not found in the D. C. records and for which the card index did not carry a description of the work to be performed thereunder."

To avert future failure of this type, the board recommended:

1. Structural engineers should be registered by a board of registration.

2. General contractors should be licensed and required to post bond to insure performance of work in compliance with the Building Code.

3. The director of inspection should be given power to require that buildings involving public safety be designed only by registered architects and structural engineers and built only by licensed general contractors.

D. C. Seeks New School Tuition Law

Board Votes to Ask Congress to Oblige All Nonresident Students to Pay

Legislation to require all students living out of the District but attending schools here to pay tuition was requested yesterday by the Board of Education. A limited group of nonresident students now are exempt.

The board agreed to reconsider the closing down of the auditoriums of the Sumner Elementary and Hine Junior Hig Schools and to study whether the auditoriums at Terrell Junior High and Bell Vocational Schools should be continued in use.

Steps were taken to set up a central director to manage and purchase for school cafeterias.

Present Law "Unworkable"

Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning told the board the present law affecting tuition payment is "impossible to administer in justice and fairness to all." The board voted to ask Congress for a law to require all nonresident students to pay after July 1.

Children of parents employed in the District, who were enrolled in District schools before July 25, are now exempt from tuition under provisions of the 1948 District Appropriations Act. There has been disagreement over interpretation of this act, with school officers ruling a student actually had to be in attendance before July 25 to be exempt from payment. The District Court ruled, however, that 38 students who had never attended schools here but who had registered for classes before the deadline were exempt.

Dr. Corning said a number of nonresident students, whose position was similar to that of the 38, dropped out of school here when told they would have to pay.

Closed Last Week

Auditoriums at Sumner and Hine were closed by Corning last week after it was brought out that they are on the third floors and would be in violation of the new District fire code not yet in effect. The board voted to ask the building inspector, District architect, District engineer and Fire Department to join board members in studying the buildings to see if use of the auditoriums is hazardous.

Corning asked that the study include Terrell and Bell, since these schools also have third-floor auditoriums. The school head reported it is at present impossible to make many schools conform to the proposed building code.

Sufficient money is not available to accomplish all of the changes desired," he said. The present budget for this purpose is $30,150, while the changes called for would cost $391,000, he said. These changes include providing 37 fire alarm systems, enclosing stairways in 29 schools and providing new exits in nine schools. Materials for all recommended changes are not available, Corning said.

Cafeteria Report Submitted

The superintendent submitted a report prepared by 10 principals, comprising the Cafeteria Board of Control, which called for a central director to operate all school cafeterias, a uniform accounting system, and central purchasing. At present schools operate cafeterias individually.

The board postponed action after Board Member Adlebert W. Lee asked for a ruling by the corporation counsel if the board could legally run cafeterias.

Earle L. Vail, 11116 Hillside dr., Kensington, Md., a teacher at Calvin Coolidge High School, was named principal of Central Night School, and Lemuel A. Penn, 5208 Blaine st. nw., teacher at Armstrong Veterans Center, was appointed director. Mrs. Helen K. Cole, 114 2d st., Laurel, Md., kindergarten teacher at Ludlow School, was retired after 32 years as a teacher, and Mrs. Sarah A. Collins, 1924 2d st. nw., John F. Cook School, after 35 years.

'Friendship' Furnishings Expected to Bring Million

The Washington Post

OBJET D'ART—This jeweled casket, said to be worth $2000, is one of the thousands of articles to be auctioned when the contents of Friendship House are put up for sale. Purchased by the late Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean on her honeymoon in Turkey, it is set with baroque pearls, imitation rubies and emeralds

A million-dollar mountain of varied objects—from silver champagne coolers to delicate Dresden figures—is scheduld for the auctioneer's gavel at Friendship, home of the late Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean.

Attorney Thurman Arnold, executor of the estate, said no date has been set for the sale. Yesterday, however, auction agents were going through the fabulous mansion at Wisconsin ave. and R st. nw., checking the thousands of furnishings and art objects.

Many of the possessions have been selected for return to the estate of John R. McLean, her father-in-law and once owner of The Washington Post.

Although the McLean possessions are valued by a court inventory at about $700,000, they are expected to bring nearer one million dollars, said Miss Nannie Chase, who was Mrs. McLean's social secretary for six years.

Among the articles awaiting disposition are four huge carved wooden columns standing in the ballroom; a collection of nearly 300 animal figures; Mrs. McLean's bed, an extra-size English Hepplewhite four-poster, dating to 1775; a large jeweled casket; a complete bar; countless antique chairs, and hundreds of pieces of silver. A collection of paperweights, encased in specially lit low tables and one of the largest in the world, has already been sold.

Search Renewed For Crash Victims

Police and Coast Guard boats yesterday renewed a search of Baltimore harbor for bodies of crewmen aboard a Coast Guard plane which crashed in the bay two months ago.

The search, abandoned two weeks ago, was resumed after the body of one of the crewmen—Radioman 1/c Rudolph H. Schoening, 40, of Temple, Pa.—floated to the surface Tuesday. Discovery of the body gave searchers a new clew as to the possible site where the plane sank after becoming lost in a snowstorm.

Three Greater Washington men were aboard: Lieut. Comdr. Charles W. Schuh, 4631 36th st. S. Arlington, Va.; Lieut. William N. Killebrew, 715 Princeton pl. nw., and Machinist's Mate 1/c Charles H. McArthur, 4519 Yuma st. nw.

Police Can't Find Woman Who Told Of Suicide Attempt

Police and virtually all Washington radio stations yesterday tried to find a woman who telephoned The Washington Post to announce that she was attempting to take her own life.

The woman, who refused to give her name or address, telephoned The Post's city desk about 9:30 a. m., sobbing that she had just taken nine sleeping pills.

Police had no reports of a suicide. Medical authorities said nine of the barbituates would hardly be enough to cause death.

The woman said she had pituitary gland disorders and that although she was only 5 feet tall, her weight had been increased by the ailment until she weighed 300 pounds. "My husband has taken it very well," she said, "but it has been increasingly embarrassing for me."

Federation Planned

Seven Fairfax County civic groups yesterday announced plans to form a Federation of Civic Associations in the southeast part of the county.

Representatives of civic associations from Belle Haven, Fair Haven, Groveton, Jefferson Manor, Tauxemont, Vernon Heights and Mount Vernon, meeting at Groveton School Tuesday night, appointed a committee to draw up a preliminary charter for the new organization.

Members said the organization will have no connection with the existing Federation of Citizens Associations in the county. No date was set for a future meeting.

Fee Alternative Suggested by Group Health

Plan Submitted After Members Protest Proposed Dues Hike

Group Health Association yesterday offered its 14,700 members a fee plan as a financing alternative to the proposed dues increase the membership balked at last month.

Members had asked "reexamination of finances" last month after the board of trustees' recommended that dues be increased 50 cents a month for adults and 25 cents monthly for children.

William E. Warne, GHA president, advised the members that the new plan might defeat the purpose of nonprofit medical cooperatives. He asked their "reaffirmation of confidence in prepaid medicine," by voting the original dues increase to meet estimated monthly deficits of $8150 this year.

Under the new plan, present dues for coverage of hospital and doctors' bills would remain at $3 a month for adults and $2 monthly for children. Added charges would be:

Each clinic visit, $1; each home call by physician, $2.50 (presently, $2 is charged for the physician's first visit only); injection, 25 cents for the service plus the present charges for serums, and laboratory work, 25 cents for service plus present material costs.

Both the dues increase and its alternate plan would decrease discounts for dues paid in advance and would raise the member's minimum liability for maternity care from the present $50 to $100.

Membership was notified to attend a special meeting on March 30 at the Federal Security auditorium to discuss the two proposals. Officials of GHA said they expected to conduct a preference vote by mail the first week in April.

Public Relations Topic

"Management in Public Relations" will be the discussion topic at a joint dinner meeting of the Washington Chapter, Society for the Advancement of Management, and the Washington Forge, American Public Relations Association, tonight at 6:30 o'clock in Barker Hall, YWCA, 17th and K sts. nw.

Leonard Trester, director of public policy for the General Outdoor Advertising Co., and chairman of the advertising committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce, will be the principal speaker.

Rep. Dirksen Seeks Ruling On Friede

House District Committee Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) said yesterday he will call on the Commissioners for "an early determination" on continuing Herbert A. Friede as a District employe.

Friede is former director of the District fire alarm system and now superintendent of communications in the electrical division of the District Engineer Department.

A report by a House District Subcommittee headed by Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.) last summer cited a close personal association between Friede and the Gamewell Corp., makers of fire alarm equipment, and the fact that the Commissioners transferred the alarm system to the Fire Department.

The report said there was no evidence to warrant prosecution of Friede but that it was beyond the subcommittee's comprehension why he had been left on the District payroll.

Dirksen cited this report yesterday and told the District Committee in a meeting that he would call on the District Commissioners for an early report about it.

Acreage-Cut Exemption Urged For Va. Tobacco

By The Associated Press

Other tobacco growers would not be hurt if the Virginia-type dark-fired tobacco is exempted from an acreage cut, a Senate committee was told yesterday.

Dr. J. L. Maxton, economist of the Blacksburg, Va., extension service, said the Virginia type 21 should be separated from other types.

"We won't be tramping on other toes, when all we ask is separation so we can stand on our own feet," he told the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Separation of the Virginia type from the types grown in Kentucky and Tennessee would allow supply to be the guiding factor in making acreage allotments, he said.

Senator Byrd (D., Va.) has offered a bill to separate type 21. A 35-per-cent cut has been ordered for all dark-fired tobacco this season.

Bates Opposes New Pay Hike For Teachers

Hearings Open Today On Raising Funds for Record City Budget

Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.) said yesterday he was "absolutely opposed" to giving Washington public school teachers a new pay increase this year.

Bates is chairman of the House District fiscal affairs subcommittee that handles teachers' pay legislation here.

He declared his opposition to more pay hikes for District teachers on the eve of joint congressional hearings beginning at 10 a. m. today on proposals for boosting District revenues to underwrite a record 101-million-dollar city budget to run Washington in the year beginning July 1. The hearing will be in the Senate District Committee room in the Capitol.

District Commissioner John Russell Young, Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, District engineer commissioner, Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler, and Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West are slated as first witnesses in the hearings.

Bates said he would oppose a teachers' salary boost even if the pay of other District employes were raised this year by inclusion in a Federal pay increase bill.

Last year's teacher pay bill fixed two main scales for teachers: $2500 to $4000 for teachers without a masters' degree.

"The whole salary adjustment of last year was based on cost of living," said Bates "and teachers have fared better than any other group."

Guilty of Perfume Theft

Cybert R. Campbell, 27-year-old Panamanian, yesterday was convicted of stealing a bottle of perfume.

A Municipal Court jury deliberated 30 minutes at the conclusion of a two-day trial before Judge John P. McMahon, Campbell, one-time scholarship student at Xavier College, New Orleans, and a former Howard University student, was arrested Christmas eve on a petty larceny charge.

J. Warren Wilson, of the United States Attorney's office, said the man has been indicted for assault with intent to commit rape on a 10-year-old girl and that information is being prepared toward his possible deportation as an undesirable alien.

As Constituents Wait

16 Congressmen Spend Two Hours on District Business

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Sixteen members of the House worked together for two hours yesterday on their job of running the District.

They approved seven bills, including a 30-day District rent-control extension and an armory control bill—then rushed from the District committee room to hear President Truman address a joint session of Congress.

Of the eight members absent, all who were reached explained they had been kept from the District meeting by meetings of other committees. One member, Representative J. Glenn Beall (D., Md.), mentioned later he had had to keep a group of constitutents waiting half an hour while he attended the District meeting.

The meeting opened with Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) asking Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.) for a progress report on the home rule bill.

Auchincloss, chairman of the District Home Rule Subcommittee, said his group has been re-writing the bill on the basis of testimony in the home rule hearings, has made a number of changes, and hopes within 10 days or 2 weeks to have a report ready for the full committee. The home rule plan aims to relieve Congress as much as possible of the burdensome housekeeping functions of the District."

Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) asked whether the District Committee has jurisdiction to act on a Commerce Department bill to get the Federal Government out of the position of having to enforce Virginia race segregation practices at the Washington National Airport. He said it should go to the Judiciary Committee.

Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) said the Federal Government could do nothing about it without concurrence of the Virginia Legislature. He said the matter should be laid on the table and forgotten. Upshot was that Dirksen said he would seek again to have the bill transferred to another committee, even though Chairman Earl C. Michener (R., Mich.) had told him the Judiciary Committee did not want to take the bill.

Then the committee accepted and filed the report of Beall's subcommittee deciding not re-try Fire Chief Clement Murphy on charges of disrupting his department. Murphy was cleared by a special trial board.

Rep. A. L. Miller (R., Neb.) presented the report of his subcommittee on its investigation of school textbooks. It said the textbook "Building Citizenship" would be all right with revisions being made by the author. He urged continued vigilance by the public and the schools to see that "only the highest quality of Americanism, integrity, morality, and good citizenship is taught in the public schools."

Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.) wanted to know if it wasn't setting a dangerous precedent for a Congressional committee, whose members are not educators, to say what books the schools should use.

Representative Harold F. Youngblood (R., Mich.) told Klein sharply that if he had attended the hearings he wouldn't have made his statement.

Representative Smith said he didn't think Klein knew the situation—that Miller's group turned up one book filled with blasphemy and filthy language "and it didn't take an expert to understand it."

The book report was filed.

The committee then turned to its stack of eight local bills—each representing previous hours of testimony and discussion by subcommittees.

Six were quickly approved; for the 30-day stop-gap District rent control extension from March 31 to April 30; to fix the pay of Alcoholic Beverage Control Board members by the Federal Classification Act; to permit increased use of the National Training School for Girls; to let out-of-town doctors into District practice without examination if they have passed a suitable National Board examination; to permit increasing the driver training program in the public schools; and to let the Imperial Palace, Dramatic Order Knights of Khorassan, hold $5,000,000 instead of $100,000 worth of property.

The armory control bill, sponsored by O'Hara's subcommittee, ran into debate. O'Hara said it was the best compormise that could be made after other efforts "blew up in our faces."

Representative E. Teague (D., Tex.) said the bill "does an excellent job of buck passing." He said the proposed armory control board—made up of the Commending General of the Guard, President of the District Commissioners and the Architect of the Capitol—"puts Lynn (David Lynn, Architect of the Capitol) right in the middle."

Representative Oren Harris (D., Ark.) strongly defended the bill, saying it would provide a "happy solution." The bill was approved by a voice vote.

An eighth bill—calling for building an Arizona Avenue freeway to connect Canal rd. and Wisconsin ave. near Tenley Circle nw.—was discussed in executive session. Gen. U. S. Grant, 3d, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, waited outside with the draft of a substitute bill that would give the job of designing and building the highway to the Federal Park Service instead of the District Highway Department. Dirksen announced he would confer with Grant and Representative Beall later, then poll the committee.

Next step for the bills is House action on them in Monday's District Day.

Woman Out $4450 In 'Blessing' Racket

A new wrinkle has been added to the age-old gypsy blessing racket, it was disclosed yesterday.

First local victim was Mrs. Viola Michael of 1315 North Capitol st., who gave up her $3000-insured mink coat, her $600 diamond wedding band, and $850 in cash.

The "gypsy" woman who received them, Mrs. Michael told police, had promised to bring them back after especially blessing them at St. Patrick's Church here. The Pope, himself, she was persuaded by the stranger, had granted such blessing dispensation.

Mrs. Michael, a Protestant, said she was told the blessing would increase the cash and add length of life to the fur coat. As to the wedding band, she said she couldn't recall that any miracle had been promised. She did tell police, however, she had been estranged for six months from her husband, whom she identified as "a southern Maryland businessman."

The victim told police she met the red-haired woman in a beauty salon at 2621 Bladensburg rd. ne., on Monday. They met again, by appointment, at Hotel Annapolis on Tuesday, where Mrs. Michael turned over the money, ring and coat in the presence of the beauty parlor operator.

Yesterday Mrs. Michael told police of her losses.

The "gypsy," said the victim, was wearing a silver muskrat coat, when last seen Tuesday. She was further described as 25 to 30 years old, 5 feet 5 inches tall, weighing about 120 pounds, red hair arranged in an upsweep. She wore the coat, a black dress, black suede shoes, and "very black" nail polish.

Cairo Case Studied

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday took under advisement decision on whether Cafe Cairo broke regulations in advertising its nonalcoholic attractions.

Samuel Schanker, owner of the residential area cafe at 1615 Q st. nw., told the board in hearing yesterday he thought he was within the law with his outdoor sign since it omitted mention of liquor.

An official police photographer's picture of the sign extolling Belle Baker, show hours and dining hours was admitted in evidence. Under board licensing regulations, license holders are forbidden to advertise outside in residential areas.

Ex-Janitor Is Indicted In Robbery

A 36-year-old former janitor was indicted in Alexandria yesterday for the $27,000 robbery of the First National Bank of Alexandria last June.

The indictment was handed down by a special grand jury in Alexandria Corporation Court less than 12 hours after David Briggs, the former janitor, reportedly confessed to the robbery in Detroit after being arrested on a housebreaking charge.

Briggs was charged specifically with grand larceny.

Commonwealth's Attorney Howard W. Smith said the charge was handed to the grand jury only a short time before it convened at 10 a. m. yesterday, on the basis of information from Detroit police that Briggs had readily admitted robbing the bank when questioned by police.

Was Principal Suspect

Smith said Briggs had been regarded as the principal suspect in the bank robbery since last December when John Holzworth, a Washington and New York attorney, told police one of his clients had been "framed" on a rape charge because of his knowledge of the robbery.

Holzworth's appearance at Detroit police headquarters, where he identified Briggs as the man he suspected of the robbery, led to questioning which in turn produced Briggs' reported confession.

Alexandria police said they gave Holzworth full credit for information which established Briggs as the first "real suspect" in the case.

To Waive Extradition

Shortly after Briggs was indicted, Alexandria police received word that he had agreed to waive extradition from Detroit on the bank charge. Immediate arrangements will be made to return him for trial.

Both police and bank officials said there were a number of discrepancies in Briggs' reported confession. Police said the "true story" would not tbe known until the suspect has been questioned by an Alexandria officer.

The missing funds, including $19,000 in cash and $8000 in checks, represented a deposit of the J. C. Penny Co., which company officials said was placed in the night depository of the bank around 6 p. m. June 18 by three messengers.

Burial of Food, All Spoiled, Spoils Day for the Navy

The Navy spent a hectic hour yesterday explaining away the burial of about 80 cases of canned food in the face of the world's food shortage.

It all started when an unidentified citizen saw a Navy bulldozer covering up a large quantity of canned food on the Bethesda Naval Hospital property.

Lieut. Comdr. C. L. Crawford, public relations officer of the hospital stated the Navy's version:

"The food, about 80 cases of it, was all spoiled and had been condemned by our sanitary officer."

The stock had been sent to the hospital from Norfolk, Va., for possible salvage after being removed from decommissioned ships.

"We salvaged about 90 per cent of it," Crawford said, emphasizing that all of the food which was buried was spoiled. The stock included canned sardines, herring, tropical butter and some vegetables.

Md. Bar Carries Fight on Orphans Court to Council

Baltimore, March 17 (AP).—The State Bar Association carried its fight for abolition of Maryland's orphans courts before the legislative council today.

President Frederick W. Brune declared the burden now carried by Orphans Court judges could readily be assumed by the circuit judges and that the routing now handled by Orphans' Courts should be taken over by the registers of wills in the counties.

There are three orphans' courts in each county and they handle estates and wills. Judges need not be lawyers.

Trained lawyers and judges should conduct the more complex matters involving probate, Brune said.

The step would involve a constitutional amendment. A similar move was defeated in the 1947 general assembly.

2700 Miles Of Va. Roads Eligible for Aid

Richmond, Va., March 17 (AP).—The State Highway Department estimated today that 2700 miles of streets in cities and towns of more than 3500 population would be eligible for the $300-a-mile State aid provided in the Baldwin bill enacted by the General Assembly.

The total cost of the plan was estimated at about $810,000 based on a survey made 10 years ago.

It would be virtually impossible, the department said, to make any accurate breakdown on just how much the various cities and towns will receive until the traffic and planning division makes a survey of the roads eligible.

The Baldwin bill, passed as a compromise to the proposal to boost State aid to localities to $10,000 a mile for primary highways within their corporate limits, sets up standards which the streets must meet. To receive the $300 a mile, a city street must have a 40-foot right-of-way, of which 20 feet must be hard surfaced. Streets built subsequent must have 50-foot right-of-way with 30 feet of pavement.

This amount of State aid is in addition to the $4000 a mile the localities receive for primary highway mileage. The $300 a mile will come out of primary construction funds and will be increased, or decreased, according to the rise or fall of revenues for primary construction.

A breakdown giving the localities' shares probably will take two months to complete.

Mayor Canning, who received a verbal summons from Justice of the Peace George Phillips after the assault warrant was issued, was released under $100 personal bond pending the hearing.

Barrett Puts Police Behind Courtesy Drive

Police Chief Robert Barrett yesterday placed the entire Metropolitan force behind the courtesy campaign.

He issued a lengthy "general order" outlining do's and don'ts for police personnel, "with a view to bringing about a closer and more pleasant relationship with the public through courteous treatment of citizens."

Barrett emphasized that "pleasant mannerisms and gentlemanly conduct are traits which should be practiced consistently—not only by officers in their relationship with the public but also in their dealings with one another . . ."

Often Inadvertent

He pointed out that "in making arrests for minor offenses or in issuing traffic violation notices, officers must bear in mind that in many such instances the offense was inadvertent . . . an officer should never refuse to tell a person why he is being arrested . . . and instances of officers ordering persons to accompany them to a precinct and refusing to tell them why they are being taken there are not to be tolerated."

Meanwhile Joseph Manion, 16, of 1617 N. Taylor st., Arlington, was nominated in the carrier boy courtesy contest sponsored by The Washington Post.

JOSEPH MANION

The ninth grade student at Washington-Lee High School delivers the paper "early," is quiet and "has a pleasing personality," P. M. Southwell of 2040 N. Vermont st., Arlington, wrote. "And in bad weather he always delivers a dry paper." The contest closes at midnight today.

The Greater National Capital Committee of the Board of Trade wound up its courtesy contest last midnight with more than 1100 letters on hand describing acts of courtesy. The three-week program will be climaxed with a rally Monday night at 8 in Constitution Hall.

"President Truman's speech was magnificent," Tydings said in a statement issued through his office. "It clearly portrayed conditions in the world and frankly, courageously, and without equivocation asked for appropriate remedies."

Showdown On Secret Files Takes Shape

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

A House committee yesterday moved toward a final showdown between Congress and President Truman on whether congressional committees can secure confidential Government files.

The Committee on Executive Expenditures voted 14 to 6 to approve a measure sponsored by Chairman Clare Hoffman (R., Mich.) requiring Government departments and agencies to turn over such files.

Hoffman, who said he intends to bring a clear legislative test on the authority of executive departments to withhold information from Congress, was given two days to file a report with the House.

House committee action came in response to an executive order issued this week by President Truman directing Government agencies to ignore congressional demands for information on loyalty investigations.

Courts May Settle Issue

The President's order came on the heels of a refusal by Commerce Secretary W. Averell Harriman to make Commerce Department records concerning atom scientist Dr. Edward U. Condon available to House Committee on Un-American Activities.

The Hoffman bill may reach the House floor early next month, it was reported.

Members of Hoffman's committee declared that even if Congress passes this or a similar bill, a test of the measure in the Supreme Court may be expected to follow.

The Hoffman measure is limited to confidential files from executive departments and agencies created by Congress, and for which appropriations are made by the Congress.

The bill would not affect the office of the President, the Courts, or any agency established by executive or judicial order.

Committee Would Determine

Under the measure any congressional committee refused files would ask the Speaker of the House or the President Pro Tempore of the Senate to request them from the department involved.

The committee would then determine by majority vote whether in fact the files were confidential or whether they should be made public.

Any committee member or employe who leaked information the committee decided was confidential would be subject to a $1000 fine or a year's imprisonment or both. An employe of the executive branch could be discharged for releasing confidential information.

Hoffman declared this safeguard is similar to that under which individual income tax information is given to the House Ways and Means or Senate Finance Committees.

Army Sleuth Missing for Three Days

The Army yesterday appealed to police to help locate one of its special investigators who worked this area but has been missing for three days.

"Foul play feared," the Army lookout notice said in reporting disappearance of Russell V. Harper, 35, of San Bernandino, Calif. Though standard operating procedure of such agents is to make their daily report, Harper last contacted his superiors on Sunday.

Out of Camp Lee

Attached to the Criminal Investigation Division of the Army, his latest assignment was out of Camp Lee, Va., "working the vicinity of Petersburg, Va." Nature of the assignment was not disclosed, but in his work he affected the sporty garb of a race track follower.

For identification in his work around Washington, the Army lookout stated, he carried credit cards of Household Finance Co., 711 King st., Alexandria; Marvin Clothing Store, 730 7th st. nw., and the Franc Jewelry Co., 627 7th st. nw.

Broadcast Over East

The alarm was broadcast over eastern United States from the Pennsylvania State Police Barracks, at Carlisle, Pa. Police locating Harper were asked to hold him and notify Capt. Paul Logan, chief agent, Army Barracks, Carlisle, Pa.

He was described as 6 feet 2 inches tall, weighing 185 pounds, of ruddy complexion, blue eyes, brown hair, with a pronounced jaw. Harper, said the description, can speak Japanese fluently, and has a cross-type scar on his right leg above the knee.

Cabbie Lauded in Arrest

Wilbur T. Cook of 1602 Isherwood st. ne., taxicab driver, was publicly commended yesterday by Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett for his aid in the arrest of an alleged coat lifter.

Cook, said Major Barret, showed "alertness and quick thinking" in notifying police of his suspicion about a man who hailed his cab outside a restaurant in the 1100 block of Pennsylvania ave. nw., on March 6.

Police arrested the fare on the cabbie's information after a restaurant diner, Miss Marjorie Warner, of 501 Alabama ave. se., reported the disappearance of her $350 fur coat. Barrett said copies of the official commendation would also be sent to the driver's employer, Diamond Cab Co. and the hack inspector's office.

Lamont Tells of Investing in Soviet Government Bonds

Corliss Lamont, son of the late Thomas Lamont, one-time chairman of the board of J. P. Morgan & Co., yesterday testified in District Court that in 1938 he had invested in Soviet government bonds.

Lamont, a defense witness in the contempt trial of Richard Morford, executive secretary of the National Council of Soviet-American Friendship, made the revelation under questioning by Prosecutor Charles Murray. The latter was trying to show possible underlying motives in Lamont's sponsorship of the "friendship" groups.

Lamont is a former chairman of the council. Morford is accused of contempt of Congress because he had refused to turn over records including names of those who wrote for the council's various publications to the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

"Did not the Equitable Insurance Co., a Morgan-controlled company, have holdings in Russia involving claims for 900 million dollars?" asked Murray.

"I never heard of that in my life," the witness replied. He also replied in the negative to Associate Justice Edward M. Curran's questions as to whether Thomas Lamont or any other members of the family had holdings in the Soviet. "To the best of my knowledge, no," Lamont said.

The witness testified that the council had criticized the Soviet as well as praised it in various publications. From one book on Russia recommended by the council, he read: ". . . Severe even ruthless methods are used to force compliance with these principles." Another quotation said in part: ". . . However, great the restrictions on individuals . . . there can be no doubt of the faith of Soviet citizens in their cause . . ."

These quotations were brought out in a defense move to show that reasonable grounds did not exist for the suspicion on the part of the House Committee that the council was subversive.

Irish Tippler Freed By Irish Magistrate

Baltimore, March 17 (AP).—Three Irishmen met in Police Court today. Patrolman John O'Brien brought Mark McNulty, 23, before Magistrate James R. Cadden on a charge of drunkenness.

"What's the idea?" the magistrate frowned.

"I was doing a bit of premature celebrating," replied McNulty. "I hope your honor won't send me to jail on St. Patrick's Day. It's a great day for the Irish."

Cadden said: "That's something to think about. Here the prisoner, officer and magistrate are all Irish." Case dismissed, the magistrate said.

Labor Dept. Official Blames GSI in Strike

Government Services, Inc., was again publicly blamed, yesterday, for the current stalemate in the CIO strike against its 42 Federal building cafeterias.

Assistant Secretary of Labor John W. Gibson said the corporation acted in "bad faith" during efforts by Conciliator George E. Strong to settle the strike.

Strong himself attributed his failure to obtain settlement partly to GSI's refusal to accept his peace formula after the union had accepted it and it had been revised to meet GSI objections.

Gibson told a delegation of striking members of Local 471, United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers, that he deplored GSI's rejection of the Strong proposal, "particularly after having investigated Strong and then accepting him" as conciliator.

The Federal Works Agency, meanwhile, continued studying the advisability of settling the 73-day-old strike by terminating GSI's contract with the Government to operate the cafeterias.

Miss Strauss to Speak

Miss Anna Lord Strauss, president of the National League of Women Voters, will speak at a meeting of the Arlington league tonight at 8:15 p.m. in the Colonial Village ballroom, 1913 Wilson blvd. The local group also will elect new officers.

Coop to Hear Reuther

Victor Reuther, director of education for the UAW-CIO, will discuss how unions and co-ops fight inflation before the Potomac Cooperative Federation at the Friends' Meeting House, 2111 Florida ave. nw., at 8 o'clock tonight.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

ORLANDO, FLA., March 17.—There was a striking dissimilarity in Bucky Harris' statements of yesterday and last December, as he renewed discussion of the Red Sox, who are being boomed as the club that will take the pennant away from Harris' Yankees.

POVICH

"They are rugged," said Mr. Harris, "and the rest of the clubs are going to have a time getting those Red Sox out. They're a good ball team, with all that power."

Hadn't Mr. Harris said something quite otherwise three or four months ago when he took due note of Boston's raids on the St. Louis Browns? That was when the Red Sox paid something like $350,000 for Infielder Vern Stephens and Pitchers Jack Kramer and Ellis Kinder.

"Oh, that was midwinter talk. I was just having some fun with the Boston people, who were getting high and mighty and talking pennant last December," said Harris. "Sure I remember what I said. I said, 'Looks like the Red Sox are strengthening themselves so they can beat out Detroit for second place.' I just didn't want 'em to get too cocky."

BUT NOW HARRIS says he is properly respectful of the Red Sox, particularly those hitters Joe McCarthy can send up to the plate in solid file—Dom DiMaggio, Sam Mele, Stan Spence, Ted Williams, Vernon Stephens and Bobby Doerr.

"Imagine that," said Harris. "Look at the luck of Joe McCarthy. I'd like to have the kind of a batting order in which Bobby Doerr bats in seventh place. When you put Doerr in that spot, and he belongs there on that Boston team, then you've got power. Nobody's kidding themselves about the way Boston will hit that ball."

But Harris nevertheless isn't surrendering the pennant to the Red Sox without playing a 154-game schedule. He smiled when he said that. "The Red Sox have been getting all the preseason publicity," he said, "but I've got the club that won by 12 full games last season. They've still got us to catch. I'd rather be the manager of the club that won the pennant by 12 games than the manager of a club that is trying to load up and win."

Harris is a realist, though. "We had a lot of luck last year. Those 19 in a row we won were enough to break the back of the rest of the league. I doubt if we can come up with another streak like that. I'm not counting on it."

HARRIS HAS ENJOYED his first meeting with the Red Sox this season, incidentally. That was the other day in an exhibition game, with Joe McCarthy leading another American League club against the Yankees for the first time. McCarthy apparently was eager to win that one. He was even doing a bit of verbal jockeying from the bench against his former Yankee hands.

"They came up to the last of the tenth leading us, 2-0," said Bucky, "and we know they wanted to win that one badly. McCarthy used to say he never thought exhibition games were important, but all of a sudden that one became important to him. We had the tying runs on first and second with none out, and I guess I may have bunted, but I said the hell with that, we'll ram it down their throats, so I told Sherman Lollar to hit away.

"Lollar hit into a double play, and now we were looking bad, but the next man walked, and then Tommy Henrich tripled the tying runs home. Joe DiMaggio walked up and knocked the ball out of the park to win it, and we were showing McCarthy the Yankees weren't afraid to match power with the Red Sox. They were a pretty disgusted bunch when they walked off the field, and I hope they stay disgusted with the Yanks."

RIGHT NOW Harris is frank about his one big worry. It's Charley Keller and his celebrated lame back. "If Keller comes around, we'll breeze home again, I think. If Charley can't help us, then it will be a struggle, but I think we'll do all right.

"Look at our pitching. We had better pitching than the Red Sox last season, and since that we've added Ed Lopat and Red Embree. That moves us up a whole lot. I wouldn't trade my worries for Joe McCarthy's, especially in the pitching department. He's taking the bigger gamble there."

Harris views the Red Sox as improved in one department—first base. "Stan Spence will be a big help to 'em there, and it looks as if that's the spot they've picked for him. He's got a new spirit with the Red Sox, and he's hustling. Even the photographers are remarking about that. He used to brush 'em off when they wanted him to pose for pictures. Now they tell me he's even offering to hold the flash bulbs for 'em when they want to shoot."

Caps Whip Providence, 82 to 67

After trailing by eight points late in the first quarter, the Washington Capitols bounced back with a rush to trounce the Providence Steamrollers, 82-67 at Uline Arena last night.

The defeat was the fortieth of the season for the hapless Rollers who have won only six games this year.

The victory left Washington only one game behind the third-place Baltimore Bullets, whom they meet tonight in Baltimore.

Rollers Lead Early

Vaulting into a 4-0 lead in the first 50 seconds and increasing their margin to eight points at one stage of the first period, the Rollers held a 21-20 advantage by the end of the round.

Shortly thereafter, however, their domination ended. The Caps, abandoning their set-shooting game for a fast break, raced up and down the court, scoring 18 points against only four for Providence and owned a comfortable 38-25 margin by half time.

Only Jack Toomay, recently acquired from the Chicago Stags, prevented the Rollers from being shut out in the second period, Toomay did all the Providence scoring with two baskets.

Settle Issue in Third

The Caps removed all doubt about which team was going to win in the third period when they registered 28 more points against 14 for Providence and held a 66-39 lead as the final quarter began.

Johnny Norlander, Johnny Mahnken and Dick O'Keefe were the big guns of this fast-breaking attack, Mahnken getting 9 of his 11 points and Norlander all eight of his. The Rollers just couldn't do a thing.

With Mahnken getting the rebounds and he and Feerick setting up Hertzberg, Sonny threw in two fast baskets to give Washington a 24-23 lead and they coasted from there.

In a preliminary game the Washington Cliftons defeated the Richmond (Va.) Barons, 52 to 36. The Barons defeated the Washingtonians twice previously.

W. Kentucky Wins Thriller

New York, March 17 (AP).—Western Kentucky defeated DePaul, 61 to 59, tonight in a rousing overtime contest to win the third place consolation in the National Invitation basketball tournament.

The regulation playing time ended with the two teams knotted 53-53.

Twenty-seconds before the final whistle DePaul trailed 53-52 and Whitey Kachan of DePaul came up with two free throws that could have given his team the victory.

Kachan made the first one and missed the second and the score was tied 53-53.

Western Kentucky pulled ahead, 59-53, in the five-minute overtime before DePaul staged another rally.

St. Louis Leads at Half

New York, March 17.—With Ed McAuley scoring 13 points, St. Louis University took a 25-18 halftime lead in the championship game of the National Invitation tournament here tonight.

2 Area School Coaches Hired By Virginia U.

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Two of the Washington area's top scholastic football coaches have resigned their positions to take over freshman coaching jobs at the University of Virginia in September.

They are Charlie Guy, athletic director and football line coach at Bullis Prep of Silver Spring, and Evan J. (Bus) Male, grid and basketball coach at Episcopal High of Alexandria.

Male, 33-year-old former football, basketball and baseball star at Virginia in 1934-38, will take over a freshman, coach of these three sports.

Guy, 24-year-old former football, wrestling and All-America lacrosse star at the Naval Academy in 1942-45, will become freshman football line coach and freshman wrestling coach. He will also coach lacrosse.

R. P. Williams, principal at Episcopal and Al Grossman, headmaster at Bullis, yesterday confirmed the resignations. No prospective successors have been appointed at either school, Williams and Grossman said.

Male has been football and basketball coach at Episcopal since 1939. He also coached baseball during the 1943 and '44 war years. Last season, his football team went undefeated.

Guy came to Bullis last Fall as athletic director. He served as line coach of the football team that went undefeated, and played Marianapolis, Conn., Prep to a 6-6 tie in the Shoe Bowl Game in Lynn, Mass.

Guy also introduced wrestling and lacrosse to Bullis this year.

Miami's Sid Gillman Succeeds Hickman as Army Line Coach

West Point, N. Y., March 17 (AP).—Sidney Gillman, head football coach at Miami (Ohio) University the past four seasons, was appointed line coach today at the United States Military Academy.

A native of Minneapolis, the 36-year-old mentor replaces Herman Hickman, who yesterday was named head coach at Yale.

Gillman played football at Ohio State, where he was a regular end in 1931, 1932 and 1933 and served as co-captain in his senior year.

He later was assistant coach at Ohio State and head coach at Dennison College in Granville, Ohio. He went to Miami in 1942 as assistant under STU Holcomb, himself a former assistant at Army and now head coach at Purdue.

Gillman stepped into the head coaching job at Miami when Holcomb entered the Army in 1944. His teams at Miami won 31 games, lost six and tied one.

Murray 'Dooms' Football

Milwaukee, March 17 (AP).—Frank Murray, veteran Marquette football coach who asserted last night the sport is doomed within 25 years unless remedies are applied, elaborated on his remarks in an interview.

Gambling, over-emphasis on athletics and lack of teeth in the NCAA sanity code were listed in that order by Murray as the basis for his forecast.

Dakota Coach Quits

Fargo, N. Dak., March 17 (AP).—Stan Kostka, football coach at North Dakota Agricultural College, resigned today, effective July 1. The former All-America Minnesota player did not indicate whether he intended to seek another coaching position or enter private business.

Lavelli Sets Mark

New York, March 17 (AP)—Tony Lavelli of Yale set a new Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League scoring record of 236 points this season, the league announced today. Walt Budko of Columbia was second with 206 points.

Omaha Coach Named

Omaha, March 17 (AP).—Don Pflasterer today was named head basketball coach at the University of Omaha.

Colts Can Buy 4 Line Stars

Baltimore, March 17 (AP).—The All-America Football Conference came through today with its share of plans to keep a franchise in Baltimore by making available four outstanding linemen from other members.

The right to buy four good players from other loop teams was a stipulation by 15 Baltimore businessmen who said they otherwise were ready to finance the Colts.

The franchise was picked up by the league March 1 after Bob Rodenberg failed to show sufficient capital for another year's operation. Rodenberg and his Washington associates obtained the franchise last year and reported losing $166,000.

Names of the four linemen to be offered the Colts were not disclosed pending their signing.

Howard Busick, chairman of the Baltimore businessmen's committee, announced the conference offer satisfied him. All that remained to take over the franchise was completion of financial and legal details, he said.

Nats' B Team Shut Out, 4-0

Sanford, Fla., March 17.—The Washington Nats "B" team found American Association pitching too much for them and were shut out, 4-0, by the Minneapolis Millers.

The Nat rookies were held to only five hits in the seven-inning game, and the only encouraging notes were the pitching of the veteran Sid Hudson, and the hitting of Third Baseman Jay Difani.

Hudson, who started, hurled three scoreless innings. He gave up three hits, and hit one batter, but he didn't walk an opponent. He struck out one. Difani connected for a pair of singles in three trips.

Lou Boudreau Hikes Himself To 2d in Tribe Batting Order

Los Angeles, March 17 (AP).—Manager Lou Boudreau has put himself second in the Cleveland Indians' batting order in an attempt to increase Tribe run production.

In shifting from the clean-up spot, Boudreau reasoned: "I know I can do two things which the second batter ought to be able to do—bunt and hit to right field. As the team stacks up right now I think I can do it more good following the lead-off man than in any other position."

Lake Finally Signs

Lakeland, Fla., March 17 (AP).—Shortstop Eddie Lake came to terms today with the Detroit Tigers, settling the club's only holdout problem. Terms were not made public but were believed to call for a salary of $12,000. Lake hit .211 last year.

Mack Pitchers Ailing

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 17 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics are plagued with sore armed pitchers. Of the 13 hurlers in camp, only Phil Marchildon, Russ Christopher, Joe Coleman and Lefty Alex Kellner are fit for duty.

Riddle Surprises

Santa Monica, Calif., March 17 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates have already bobbed up with several pleasant surprises, and spring training is hardly three weeks old.

The biggest surprise is Elmer Riddle, the veteran righthander from Cincinnati. A sore arm kept him on the shelf most of last year with the Reds. In the first exhibition game of the season, Riddle blanked the St. Louis Brown with no hits for three innings, and more important, has indicated in subsequent drills that his arm ailment is no more.

Dobson Hurls Today

Sarasota, Fla., March 17 (AP).—Joe Dobson, ace of the Boston Red Sox pitching corps last year, will hurl for the Sox tomorrow in an exhibition game against the New York Yankees.

Southworth, Stanky Fans

Another Tribute to Ruth's Kindness

'You're a Candle in a Blind Man's House'

By Bob Considine

NEW YORK, March 17 (INS). Picture of quite a guy. It is drawn by my friend, and his, Comdr. J. Paul Carey:

"During Babe Ruth's recent vacation in Florida he was invited to participate as referee at a charity golf match in Coral Gables featuring Babe Didrikson and Sam Byrd. It was for the benefit of the Heart Fund and the youth center of Coral Gables. Babe, though he should be sitting down, readily participated.

"Babe got a great hand as he appeared on the first tee, and a fine introduction from Mayor Phillips of Coral Gables. Babe responded with, 'My voice is very bad, but I want you all to know that whenever I can help a worthy cause by my presence, and I'm able to walk, I'll always be happy to do what I can to help in my small way.'

"After the players drove from the first tee and Babe was walking along the fairway a man whom he didn't know came up beside him and asked, 'Babe, I wonder if you'd like to make a blind man very happy by stopping off at his house here in town and saying hello?'

"Babe said, 'Sure, kid, give me the address,' and wrote it down.

"It was a very warm day and walking around the course sapped a lot of strength out of Babe, so much, in fact, that he had to bow out after the fifth hole. He whispered to the mayor that he had to duck and asked him how to get to the address he had written down.

"The mayor offered to send him in his official car, but Babe refused, and just asked for the direction. He told me that he didn't want any fanfare. (Years ago, some sap kidded Babe about his visits to sick children and he resolved that he'd never tell anybody, in advance, that he was headed for a call on any ailing person.)

"Babe was in great pain by the time he reached the clubhouse, and, most certainly, should have gone back to his hotel. But he pulled himself together and got to the address of the blind man. The lady who answered his knock on the door recognized him immediately, with a start, and invited him in.

"'Wait a minute, I'll get my husband,' she said. 'He's been totally blind for seven years, but I know he'll get a great thrill when he knows you're here.' She left the room and Babe sat down, his head in his hands, for he was in great pain.

"But he was the old Babe Ruth when the blind man was led in. His wife had not told her husband the name of his visitor and he stood there with a quizzical look on his face. Then his wife said, 'Babe Ruth's come to see you, dear,' and I swear I never saw a look quite like the one that spread over the man's face. He seemed to be able to see Babe, and the tears came in his eyes—and in Babe's, too.

"'Babe, you've made me very proud,' the man said, haltingly. 'I saw you play a lot . . . in the old days. Saw you knock that old apple out of many a park. And I can still see that,' he added.

"Then he asked Babe how he felt, and Babe said great, and they talked over old times for a half an hour, and then Babe had to leave. Or else.

"Babe backed up to the door, shaking hands with the blind man, and as he stepped out of the place the man said, 'God bless you, Babe . . . You're like a candle in a blind man's house.'

"Babe and I left and for a long time he was silent. The big guy was crying, and I felt that I had w[illegible]ed a little scene I'd never forget.

"Just thought you might be interested.

"Regards. "PAUL."

Yanks Rally In 9th, Beat Reds, 8-7

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 17 (AP).—Jack Phillips banged out a triple and three singles today to lead New York Yankees to an 8-7 Grapefruit League victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

It was the World Champions' eighth win in nine starts—their ninth in ten, counting a "B" game—in the spring exhibition series.

The New Yorkers scored the deciding run in the ninth off Pitcher Walker Cress on two walks and Johnny Lindell's third single of the game.

The Reds' Johnny Vander Meer, who started on the mound, pitched only one ball. He was taken out after colliding with the Yanks' Lonnie Frey. Neither was seriously hurt, although Vander Meer was knocked unconscious for a while.

Lonnie Frey, the first Yankee batter up hit a ball down the first base line. Vander Meer attempted to field it. The two hit with a thud.

Vander Meer remained on the ground for several minutes before he was taken to the training room.

Robertson Also Clouts One in Rout Of Phillies

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Orlando, Fla., March 17.—Babe Ruth, who got in on a pass, got his money's worth today as he watched the Nats and Phillies stagger through an unreasonable facsmile of a big league ball game. The final score was 11 to 7, in favor of the Nats, who got seven runs in the second inning on two hits.

There was a faint Ruthian odor to the proceedings, however, with three home runs recorded—two by the Nats. Roy Cullenbine of the Phils banged one out of the park in the second inning and Sherry Robertson also pumped a ball over the same right field wall, but the most productive homer was slammed by rookie Gil Coan.

Coan timed his blow nicely. He waited until pitchers Charley Bicknell and Hen Hentzelman of the Phillies filled the bases with walks in the second inning, and then he smacked his four-base clout over the head of centerfielder Harry Walker.

Nats Walk to Victory

The Phillies outhit the Nats, 14 to 10, but that didn't matter much. Young Bicknell walked five men in the second nning and contributed a wild pitch before they got him out of there, and eventually all of the six men who walked in the inning scored.

Milo Candini who pitched the first three innings and Tom Ferrick who pitched the last were the only Washington pitchers of any worth today. Candini gave up Cullenbine's home run but otherwise held the Phils scoreless. They got back five runs off Rookie Southpaw Forest Thompson and at one point cut the Nat's lead to 7-6.

The Nats clinched the thing in the eighth when they camp up with five runs against Leo Christante, rookie righthander. Eddie Yost started it off with a double, Pinchhitter Larry Drake singled and so did Sullivan and Pinchhitter Early Wynn. Mickey Vernon drove in the last two runs with a line drive double at center.

Phils Have Hurling Woes

Manager Ben Chapman of the Phillies had little luck with his pitching choices. Young Bicknell couldn't get the ball over the plate, and when Heintzelman moved in, his first pitch was a wild pitch. His second was a home run. When Walt Dubiel got the pitching job in the sixth, the first pitch he threw was Robertson's homer.

Al Kozar snapped out of his batting slump with a well-kissed three bagger to right in the seventh inning . . . Rightfielder Ro Cullenbine got his glove on Sherry Robertson's drive in the sixth but it popped out and over the high wall for a homer . . .

Babe Ruth was a luncheon guest of Clark Griffith before watching the Nats and Phillies play. Wherever Ruth goes, the public address system advises fans that the Babe will sign only baseballs and scorecards, no autograph books. Ossie Bluege, ex-manager of the Nats and now boss of the club's farm system, held a conclave today with scouts Cecil Travis, Mike Martin, Joe Engel and Owner Griffith . . . Bluege announced the Nats now have seven full-time scouts covering all territory east of the Rockies . . . Travis' beat is Georgia and Alabama, and Mike Martin has been assigned the New England territory . . . Travis says he hasn't had a ball in his hand since last season and is "afraid to pick one up because I might catch the fever again and want to play" . . . The Nats shove off tomorrow morning for a three-day jaunt to Florida's west coast where they play the Phillies at Clearwater and the Braves twice at Bradenton.

Haight Finds 1793 Sports Scandalous

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

WHEN I WOBBLED into sports writing some years ago I thought I was getting into a modern profession. Perhaps, by harping on what my children call "old times," I have set sports writing back many years.

Haight

However, you can imagine my surprise when a friend showed up with a copy of "The Sporting Magazine of 1793"—honest. The preface continues: "or Monthly Calendar of the Transactions of The Turf, The Chase and every other diversion interesting to The Man of Pleasure and Enterprise."

I didn't get far into the first article before I noted that sportswriters in the eighteenth century were as quick on an alibi as some of the current ones who bet on a loser.

Under the headline "Chess Match at Mr. Parson's," there's the following account: "Mr. Phillidor lost two blindfold games but played and won the third against Mr. Wilson, looking over the boards. There was infinite skill manifested by Mr. Phillidor and the loss of the two games must in fairness be attributed to Mr. Phillidor's being seized with a violent fit of the gout during the match."

Even as early as 1793 a sports publication had to have an outdoor editor. This one wrote: "If I catch a fish of 2 ounces weight, what is it to anyone if I choose to say it exceeded 2½ pounds? Who would be an angler, and sit moping over a pool or a river for a whole day, without a bite, if he could not have the pleasure of relating in the evening the wonderful (though imaginary exploits of the day?"

And I thought fish liars originated on Cheseapeake Bay.

—"THE HISTORY OF BOXING" chapter includes a travesty on boxer vs. slugger—the subject of many a present sports writer on a dull day. Pugilists weren't social lions in those days, however, and the writers referred to them only by name—Brown, Skidmore, etc., although some had descriptions tacked on like "Humphries, the Cocksure" and "Simmons, the Ponderous."

Boxing scribes of that day were a bit brief, but to the point, as this account suggests: "In his engagement with George, the Brewer, the odds were 6 to 4 in Jackson's favor, till he unfortunately broke his leg, which put an abrupt end to the contest."

I read on but couldn't find out if Heinie Miller ever wrote a pamphlet on the bout, or if Gabe Menandez or Goldie Ahearn was the promoter, or whether Al Weill tripped Jackson.

I'LL ADMIT I didn't expect to find a Black Sox Scandal, a Filchock-Hapes deal, or a Gratiano mess in 1793, but the equivalent turned up under the heading, "Remarkable Sagacity of a Fox."

The account is too long for these columns, but the substance is:

The Duke of Grafton had his hounds at Croydon and, due to a scarcity of foxes in that section, he had one taken in Whittlebury Forest and sent to London in a venison cart. The fox was carried down the next morning in a hamper behind the Duke's coach and turned out for the day's sport. The imported fox outran the dogs and escaped. During the winter several foxes were brought to London from the same place and they, too, eluded hunters and dogs.

Finally, the hunters noted that each fox appeared the same size and used the same evasive tactics of his prdecessor. Someone suggested that the next fox obtained be definitely marked. They split one ear and punctured holes in the flap of the other.

Turned loose, this fox escaped.

You can imagine the chagrin of the Duke and his gang a week later when they ordered a fox sent to London and discovered the critter had one ear slit and the other punctured!

SPORTSWRITERS in these days, sometimes have trouble with the House Detective, but in those days it seems the Duke an dhis followers were getting hard times from a House Fox, if you know what I mean.

There's much more to "The Sporting Magazine of 1793"—chapters ranging from "Manner of Shooting Wildfowl in Sicily" through a long list of subjects, including "Matrimonial Sporting," which tells how chivalrous Lord Bruce acquired his wife.

The book, considering its age, is in a lot better shape than I am.

Cabman John G. Proctor, who received the publication from an old doctor whom he befriended, wants to sell it. His address is 4029 9th st. ne. and his phone is Hobart 4798.

I would have like the book a whole lot more, but I couldn't find a Haight column in it.

Farrington Interviews Terp Aide

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Two outsiders were mentioned yesterday for the George Washington football coaching post and it appeared that the school was abandoning its announced policy of hiring a GW graduate.

Director of Athletics Max Farrington interviewed George Barclay, assistant coach at Maryland, and said he expected Chauncey Simpson, Missouri assistant, to come here for a talk.

"Barclay and I discussed the situation in general terms and neither of us was prepared to make any definite commitment," Farrington said.

Starred at N. C.

Barclay, Jim Tatum's top aide, previously was assistant coach at Dartmouth and VMI. At North Carolina, Barclay played guard and was the Tarheels' first All-American.

Farrington said he got in touch with him only after talking to Tatum. The Terps' head mentor said, "Barclay would make the highest type of coach, but if GW wants him they'll have to go high.

"I won't stand in the way of any member of my staff getting a head coaching job. After all, it's the ambition of everyone to have the top job."

Gets Interview

Concerning Simpson, Farrington said he had been in touch with him by phone and expected him to arrive in a few days for a personal interview.

Simpson, assistant to Don Faurot, was head coach for three years while Faurot was in the Navy and won the Big Six championship in 1945.

Although admitting that other non-graduates may be considered and adding that Harry Deming, Johnny Fenlon, Ray Hanken, all GW men, can't be counted out, Farrington refused to confirm a report that a revolving door may be installed outside his office.

Charlotte Hall Again Carries Areas Hopes in U. S. Tourney

Charlotte Hall Military Academy, which has become the area's top breeding ground for collegiate boxers, goes down to Charlottesville, Va., Friday to compete in the National Interscholastic Boxing Tournament.

On the strength of their performance in the past three Charlottesville meets, the Cadets will be a respected team. In 1945 and 1946, they won the tournament and last year they dropped to second.

The Cadets, riddled by graduations last June, lost their first three matches this season, but with experience regained their form and won their last five in a row.

They, together with Miller Training School of Charlottesville, will be the only 2 in the 20-school field who will be represented by full 13-man squads. However, schools as far West as Minnesota and Illinois wil lenter five to eight of their strongest men and figure to put a dent in Charlotte Hall's hopes.

Four seniors will make their last appearance for Charlotte Hall in the nationals Friday and Saturday. They are Capt. Lou LaBordit, 115 pounds; Owney Rausch, lightheavyweight; Calvin Quensted, heavyweight, and Paul Burak, 145.

Others who'll represent Charlotte Hall are Phil Kritsings, 165; Joe Fahrner, 155; Len Weiss, 135; Buddy Garner, 130; Jack Blalock, 125; Rod Cuero or Jose Castillo, 120; Jack Gonzales, 95, and Buddy Copeland, 85. And a 105-pound entry will be decided on tomorrow.

Holy Cross Opens NCAA Title Defense

New York, March 17 (AP).—Holy Cross opens defense of its NCAA basketball title here tomorrow night, hoping t oparlay an 18-inch winning streak into its second straight championship.

The Crusaders face a ough job. Only one team—Oklahoma A. & M.—has ever won two NCAA itles. And, although they have the same squad that won last year, the champions find themselves ranked only second best to mighty Kenucky in the Eastern playoffs.

First round Eastern pairings match the Massachusetts entry against Michigan, the Big Nine champion, and Kentucky against Columbia, ruler of the Ivy League. The Columbia-Kentucky game is first starting at 8 p. m.

The experts figure Holy Cross should get by Michigan. They also predict that Kentucky will have absoluely no respect for Columbia's brilliant record of 21 victories and only one loss. The Blue Grass Wildcats then are expected to eliminate the Crusaders.

Four more teams will tangle in Kansas City starting Friday night o settle the Western title. Kansas State (21-4) will meet Wyoming (18-7) in the first game, and Washington (21-10) will take on Baylor ,21-5) in the second conest.

Mt. Vernon Trade Center Plan Denied

Fairfax County Board of Supervisors yesterday denied, after three public hearings, a petition to rezone land for a shopping center near Mt. Vernon.

Permission for the center to be built on Roberts rd., leading from Route No. 1 to Mount Vernon, was sought by the Veterans Housing Corp. The company is now building Woodlawn Manor subdivision near the proposed site.

Opposition stressed the fact that the road is one of the two main approaches to Mount Vernon. Supporters pointed out the need for shopping facilities in the area.

The county supervisors also:

1. Appropriated $7000 to the Welfare Department for hospitalization of indigents during the rest of the fiscal year ending June 30.

2. Heard from Sanitary Engineer James J. Corbalis of a $7000 delinquency this year alone in payment of sewage service charges in Sanitary District No. 1 and authorized Commonwealth's Attorney Hugh B. Marsh to take legal steps to collect.

Ralph and Buster Meador head the Barney Neighborhood House entry. Buster, now a welterweight contender in the senior division, is a former middleweight novice champion.

Police Boys' Club No. 2 is represented by Clarence Tyler, Ed Woodson, Henry Johnson, Joe Williams, Ed Marshall and Edgar Smith.

Orioles Called 'Orderly' Club

Baltimore, March 17 (AP).—Frank Shaughnessy, president of the International Baseball League, came to the defense today of the Baltimore Orioles, who are fighting eviction from the Municipal Stadium.

Shaughnessy testified that Baltimore baseball crowds are "exceptionally orderly." He also said "the Baltimore club was cooperating with the people beyond any other ball club in the country."

Shaughnessy said the complaint about lights was the first he has heard against a baseball field. He said the lights are diffused to prevent blinding the players and spectators, and not nearly so brilliant as those in major league parks.

"Yankee Stadium (New York) has tremendous apartment buildings right behind it, and they play ball there until 11:50 p. m. and after. If the lights were so bad, I don't see how people in the apartments could stand it," he said.

Colt 'Saint Pat' May Have Luck

Saint Pat, perhaps the 1951 Kentucky Derby winner, was foaled yesterday on St. Patrick's Day. The long-legged, brown colt saw first the light of day at the Clarksville, Md. farm of Alan T. Clarke, former Major League pitcher and now horse owner-trainer.

The youngster, who may have "The Luck of the Irish," is strictly a Maryland product being by Alaking, owned by C. E. Nelson of Oxon Hill, and out of Nell Mowlee, a mare bred at Clarksville.

Clarke, who is preparing his Fritz Maisel for the Derby, Preakness and other stakes, says that mother and son are doing well in the No. 1 stall.

The owner hasn't decided on a name, but says "Saint Pat" sounds like the right one. Of course, the Jockey Club has the final say on names of horses.

St. Patrick's Honors Its Patron Saint

The Christian virtues of St. Patrick were extolled yesterday at St. Patrick's Church, 10th and G sts. nw., by the Very Rev. Ignatius Smith, O. P., dean of Catholic University's School of Philosophy.

"St. Patrick built the religion of Christ unto the Irish passion for liberty and made Irish patriotism and religion inseparable," Father Smith told 1000 worshipers at the solemn pontifical mass honoring the Irish saint.

"Here in our own distinguished and exceptional republic, we have benefited by the triune and hallowed passion of the Irish for their faith, for learning and for liberty," said the speaker.

Father Smith paid tribute to persons of Irish birth or extraction for their heroism in two World Wars, and challenged them to realize their duty and responsibility in preserving liberty throughout the world.

"Ireland calls to all nations that civilization is safe, culture is genuine and nations are secure only when God is on their side and in their lives," declared the priest.

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, archbishop of Washington, pontificated at the mass before an altar adorned with green candles and green-tinted flowers.

Among the dignitaries in the sanctuary were the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, and the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, V.G. The worshipers included the Minister of Ireland and Mrs. Sean Nunan, and members of the Ancient Order fo Hibernians and their ladies' auxiliaries. The Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus formed a guard of honor.

Archbishop O'Boyle last night was the Ancient Order of Hibernians' guest of honor at the Mayflower Hotel; then headed a guest list in the hotel's Sapphire Room, where the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick presented a play.

Irish War Veterans were abroad during the day, decked out in their Kelly-green uniforms. They held ceremonies at the Franklin Park statue of Commodore John Barry.

Utilities' Income Falling, SCC Told In C. & P. Case

Richmond, Va., March 17 (AP).—The State Corporation Commission's counsel introduced an expert witness today to testify that the Chesapeake and Telephone Company of Virginia wasn't unique among utility companies in reporting a declining return on its investment.

There has been a general downward trend on yields from high-grade public utility, railroad and industrial investments, reported Dr. Ralph E. Badger of Detroit, a specialist in investment counselling and money costs since 1923.

He appeared as the first SCC witness in the resumption of hearings on the telephone company's petition for rate increases of 25 cents a month on residential telephone service and 50 cents increase for commercial service.

In seeking the increase, the second since the spring of last year, the C. & P. said its earnings now represented only about four and a half per cent on its investment.

Virginia School Attendance Put at 500,000

Richmond, Va., March 17 (AP).—The Virginia public free schools will have an average daily attendance of about 500,000 pupils during the next school year, State Superintendent of Public Instruction G. Tyler Miller disclosed today.

This figure, about 13,000 more than the average daily attendance for the 1946-47 school year, is expected to climb to 510,000 for the second year of the next biennium. And the State's distribution of education funds based on average daily attendance will be set at $41.86 for the first year and $43.19 per pupil in the 1949-50 period.

The General Assembly approved 48 bills and resolutions dealing with education with minor amendments made in three instances.

Among those indicted was Stellis Boston, 47, a one-legged man, of 1523 Jefferson Davis hwy, Arlington, who was accused of assaulting another man with a wooden leg. He pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Teacher Fired for Givin Dozing Students 'Hotfo

Matthews, Ind., March 17. (AP).—A high school mathematics instructor was dismissed today for giving "the hotfoot" to students who dozed in his classroom. An hour later most of the school's 88 students went on strike to protest his dismissal.

Instructor Hobert Black was dismissed by John Walters, trustee of Matthews High School, who charged his "careless use of fire in the classroom" endangered pupils' lives.

Walters said Black was "very popular with the kids." But he contended Black was "too lax."

New NLRB Policy On Independent Unions Effective

The National Labor Relations Board yesterday abandoned the theory than an independent union is more likely to be company-dominated than one affiliated with the CIO or AFL.

Congress, through the Taft-Hartley Act, required the board to change its basic policy on the question, and the NLRB today handed down two decisions embarking on the new course. The cases involved the Carpenter Steel Co., Reading, Pa., and Hershey Metal Products Co., Ansonia and Derby, Conn.

From now on when considering charges of company interference or domination, the board said there will be no distinction drawn between unions affiliated with a national or international organization and those formed for one plant.

When the board finds charges to be true, it will order the union disestablished, regardless of affiliation. When that interference falls short of domination the board will order recognition of the union withheld until the union is certified as a bargaining agent—again regardless of affiliation.

"Upon similar facts, the board will hereafter apply the same remedy to both affiliated and unaffiliated labor organizations," it said. "Similarity of facts must be the test."

U. S. Injunction Required to Avert Oak Ridge Strike

By the United Press

Union and company officials tonight put President Truman on notice that only a Federal Court injunction can halt a walkout at the huge Oak Ridge, Tenn., atomic laboratories set for midnight Friday.

Informed sources said that representatives of the AFL Atomic Trades and Labor Council and the Carbide & Carbon Chemical Corp., abruptly recessed their negotiations here late this afternoon without reaching agreement on new contract terms.

These sources said both company and union officials were convinced no settlement could be reached before the Friday strike deadline.

They agreed to resume negotiations Friday or Saturday at Oak Ridge if Mr. Truman gets a Federal Court order under provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act halting the threatened walkout. Such an injunction would block the strike for 80 days.

2 Japs Convicted As War Criminals Seek Freedom

Two Japanese war criminals awaiting hanging for the sword-slaying of five unarmed Filipino civilians have asked District Court to hear their plea that their conviction was unlawful.

The men, on whose behalf a writ of habeas corpus action was filed, are Toneo Shirakura and Osamu Watanabe, both formerly noncommissioned officers in the Japanese Army.

Attorney Dayton M. Harrington, in his plea on their behalf, contended that the American Military Commission which convicted the men in April, 1947, was illegally constituted; that one of the members was prejudiced because he, himself, had been tortured by Japs; and that the offense was alleged to have occurred on Panay Island, Philippines, in 1944 before the United States took over. This last factor, Harrington argued in his move, meant that this country had no jurisdiction.

Art Teacher Wins C. U. Award for Medal Design

Sister Mary Lurana, S. B. S., of the art department, yesterday was announced as winner of first prize and a cash award of $50 in Catholic University's annual contest for the best design of the Cardinal Gibbons Medal.

The Cardinal Gibbons Medal is given each year to an individual for distinguished service to the Roman Catholic Church, the United States or Catholic University.

The $25 second prize was won by the Rev. Lawrence A. Lonergan, C. M., also of the art department, and the $15 third prize by Emil F. Jettmar of 1438 Kennedy st. nw., a senior in the school of architecture. Six certificates of honorable mention were also awarded.

Grange Favors U. S. Ownership of Off-Shore Lands

The National Grange yesterday supported exclusive Federal control of off-shore lands of coastal States.

J. T. Sanders, Grange legislative council, told a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee:

"We believe there is no legal or logical basis for making an outright gift to the coastal States of property that we think belongs to all States."

He said the Grange also opposes an Interior Department bill to give coastal States 37½ per cent of money received from mineral and other oil developments.

Sanders contended State ownership of the lands would lead to more wasteful use of mineral sources.

Fire Charges Dropped

Atlanta, March 18 (AP).—Charges of criminal negligence and involuntary manslaughter against lessees of the Winecoff Hotel, where 119 persons died in a 1947 fire, were dismissed today by the Georgia Supreme Court.

Officials Plan To Check Up On Accidents

Members of the Mount Rainier Town Council and the town's mayor, Floyd B. Mathias, will make an on-the-scene survey of alleged accident hazards at the Kaywood Gardens apartment development.

Twenty-five Kaywood Gardens residents last night, at a town council meeting, asked an immediate accident-prevention program. The council voted to tour the area at 2 p. m. Saturday.

At the meeting last night, Sidney Sherman, resident of the development, told the council a hole into which a 5-year-old boy fell 10 days ago and was fatally scalded, remains unclosed, and a culvert into which an 11-year-old boy was drowned last year, needs to be filled in.

Postlude

Thomas Rare Spirit In Music

By Paul Hume

John Charles Thomas, sweetest singer in America for 20 years, sang last night as soloist with the Washington Choral Society.

What Thomas does not know about singing isn't worth knowing. The elegance of his Italian songs, the breadth of phrasing he gave two songs of Joseph Marx, and the familiar style of his songs in English, reminded us how a good singer sounds. His diction, manner, everything about him, even in the frailest ditties, are the work of a rare spirit in music.

Louis Potter directed his chorus in an unusual list of music, beginning with Bach's motet, "Sing to the Lord," which is believed to have received its first local hearing on this concert. Constitution Hall was comfortably full with friends of both chorus and soloist.

The Washington Choral Society is justly proud of its balanced tone, which last night was aided by fine accentuation both in the Bach and in Norman Dello Joio's "Jubilant Song." This latter work is exciting, and in sections wonderfully devised to illuminate the beauty of unaccompanied voices. The text is taken from Whitman, and the prophetic lines, "We sing a universal love in the hearts of man" is deeply moving. Sally West, faithful accompanist of the chorus, was soloist in the taxing role Dello Joio assigns the piano.

Works of Faning and Tanieff concluded the chorus work of the evening, except for their part in Walter Damrosch's setting of more Whitman lines, "O Captain! My Captain" This piece is dramatically effective, but needs the support of orchestra to give it the sonority intended. However, Lyman McCrary, organist, and Miss West made all that could be made of organ-piano support.

It was a well balanced, and constantly interesting evening, with beautiful singing from chorus and soloist throughout. The audience recalled Dr. Potter so often that he repeated the Tanieff. As for Mr. Thomas, not less than six encores were required before he could depart. We hope he will return again soon.

Mrs. Peter Dewey Injured by Auto On Embassy Row

Mrs. A. Peter Dewey, 26, socially prominent here, was struck by an automobile and injured slightly last evening in the embassy row sector of Massachusetts ave.

The former Nancy Weller, and widow of Lieut. Col. Dewey, was treated at the scene by a friend, Dr. James Mitchell. It was reported she was struck as she stepped from the curb in front of the home of Orme Wilson, former Ambassador to Haiti, 2406 Massachusetts ave. nw., where she had attended a cocktail party.

Mrs. Wilson said the automobile barely grazed her guest. Police identified the driver as John C. Leonard, jr., 26, of River rd., Bethesda, Md.

Mrs. Dewey's husband, an officer in the Office of Strategic Services, was killed in September, 1945, during rioting in Saigon, Indo-China. She lives at 3125 O st. nw., where she was reported resting comfortably last night.

Hawkes Assails World Deals as Socialism Threat

Referring to aid to countries abroad, Senator Albert W. Hawkes (R., N. J.) last night denounced "international deals which threaten to bring this country to the level of socialism."

In an address before the evening political study group of the District League of Republican Women, Hawkes declared it is a misuse of the tax power "to take billions of dollars of the earnings of our citizens away from them to use, without their consent, in unsound gifts and unsound loans to foreign countries."

The meeting was held at the Washington Club, 1701 K st. nw.

Police Elect Four Honorary Members

The Policemen's Association last night elected to honorary memberships Charles E. Ford, attorney; Assistant Corporation Counsels Edward A. Beard and Henry E. Wixon, and Anthony Fochett, associated with a downtown bakery.

Meeting at the IOOF Hall, 419 7th st. nw., the group requested its legislative committee to study methods of liberalizing the present 30-day sick leave allowed police annually.

To Dedicate Branch Clinic For Children

Mrs. Rose Robinson Cowen, president of the Washington Soroptimist Club, will present a plaque to the new branch of Child Guidance Clinic for the Southwest area—latest addition of the D. C. Health Department's Bureau of Mental Hygiene—at the clinic's formal dedication tonight, 8 p. m., at the Southwest Health Center.

Dr. R. L. De Saussure, medical director of the health center, will receive the plaque and Dr. Winfred Overholser of St. Elizabeth's Hospital will give the principal address at the ceremonies.

Recognizing the urgent need for this new branch of the Child Guidance Clinic, the Soroptimists sponsored a project to purchase necessary equipment such as books, literature on social hygiene remedial reading supplies and psychological testing materials. The Soroptimist Club, which sponsored the new clinic which has been in operation since last fall, is also helping to pay the salary of a psychologist at the clinic.

Miss Rae Epstein, director of the Soroptimists' civic committee, heads the group's clinic project, with contributions coming from each club member.

DR. R. L. DeSAUSSURE, director of the Southwest Health Center, watches as 11-year-old Paul fastens the Soroptimist Club plaque to the wall of the new branch Child Guidance Clinic. He is assisted by Mrs Rose Robinson Cowen, president of the Washington Soroptimist Club, who will formally present the plaque for her club at dedication services tonight

Young Patients Receive Guidance

Clinics Offer Aid to Mentally Ill

By Charles E. Davis, Jr.

SHE WAS A pretty little girl, the sort that puts a smile on your face and in your heart.

You wouldn't expect to find her here, not in a clinic for mental sickness.

Her dark hair is neatly combed and arranged. Her clothes are part. But hidden from all but trained eyes is a tragedy. The child is mentally retarded.

Dr Leopold E. Wexberg, director of the District Bureau of Mental Hygiene, explains. In addition to being mentally retarded, the child is autistic, which means she makes no social contacts, does not join in play with other children.

She is undergoing a treatment recently developed for such cases. The treatment consists mainly of oral administration of glutamic acid.

One of Many

She is one of many children now being treated at the Child Guidance Clinic operated by the Bureau of Mental Hygiene at 1740 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Here is a sample case treated by the clinic. The subject is Charles B., 14 years old. He is the younger of two children. His brother is 18.

The case history reports that Charles was undernourished, weak, overprotected, spoiled, dependent on his mother. About 15 months ago the boy underwent an appendectomy. A short while later a boy in the same block was killed in an automobile accident on his way to church.

After that the boy was afraid of death and became a hypochondriac, complaining of heartache, palpitation and dizziness. He gradually discontinued all activity, such as sports and outdoor games. Finally he was unable to go to school.

Then Charles B. came to the clinic. Under psychotherapy, there has been almost complete recovery within three months.

Overweight Problem

Joseph S., 11, represents another problem. He is the only boy in the family and has four sisters. He is overweight and fond of candy and meat. His mother told the psychiatrist the boy would eat as many as 12 roast beef sandwiches at a time.

Joseph is a "good boy," very anxious to please, but because of his appetite, strong disciplinary pressure was exerted by both parents. Frustration developed because of the restricted diet and one day Joseph was caught stealing a wallet containing $40.

There is a ray of light in his case, too. He is doing nicely under treatment.

Other Clinics

The Child Guidance Clinic is one of four operated by the Bureau of Mental Hygiene. There are others for adults, alcoholics and epileptics.

Ben C., 38, is an alcoholic. He was admitted to the clinic in destitute condition, undernourished, ragged and dirty after weeks spent in flophouses and on park benches.

He is a graduate of an Ivy League university. He was a teacher of history at this same university until 10 years ago when he was dismissed because of excessive drinking.

Because of his drinking he has served two terms in the workhouse at Occoquan. He is an unmarried man with homosexual leanings and strong conflicts of conscience about it.

Under treatment he was able to stop drinking immediately. After two months of sobriety, he obtained a P-4 Government position doing research.

He had one major relapse which took him back to Occoquan for a two-month term. However, he was permitted to return to his Government job and has been doing well since. In his spare time he is writing a book about his experiences in the workhouse.

Rivalry Between Sisters

An adult clinic case is Ruth B., 25, who suffers from severe states of anxiety and has physical "accidents" when a situation arises which frightens her. Because of her condition she gave up her job as a manicurist, fearing she might hurt a customer with the sharp instruments.

She is the younger of two sisters and the psychiatrist by probing her mind found there had been a strong rivalry between the sisters. He found that Ruth is hostile to

Women's Equal Rights Treaty Will Be Offered at Bogota

Senorita Minerva Bernardino, chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women, said yesterday that a treaty guaranteeing equal and civil rights for women of the Americas will be proposed at the forthcoming ninth annual International Conference of American States at Bogota, Colombia.

The senorita spoke before members of the Soroptimist Club at a luncheon at the Willard Hotel. She leaves Washington today to attend the Bogota conference, where she will serve in the dual role of representative of the commission and delegate from her native country, the Dominican Republic.

Long a champion of women's rights, Senorita Bernardino believes the time is ripe for signing a women's rights treaty by the American republics.

"Several years ago such a proposal would have been frowned upon," she told her audience. "But at this stage of world affairs, when political leaders need to shape their government to the pattern of true western democracy, the proposal has a good chance of being considered."

She also pointed out that such a step would be comparatively easy for the 21 countries of the Western Hemisphere by virtue of similar laws and systems of government.

"With the United Nations drafting a bill on human rights for the peoples of the world, we in the Americas should take positive steps to improve our own affairs," she declared.

Senorita Bernardino will present a 300-page report on the work and recommendations of the Inter-American Commission of Women at Bogota. It contains results of studies made on such subjects as nationality of women; political rights; legal capacity of married women; guardianship; women in industry; discriminations; and the right to exercise trade or profession.

Alumni to Meet

An alumni group of East Carolina Teachers' College, Greenville, N. C., will meet at 7 p. m. this evening at Dodge Hotel to organize a regular Alumni Chapter for the Washington area. Dr. John D. Messich, inaugurated this month as president of the college, will address the group. Dinner will precede the business session.

Congressional Club Brunch Fetes Founders, Past Presidents

By Genevieve Reynolds

Approximately 200 wives of the Nation's lawmakers turned out yesterday for the Congressional Club's brunch honoring the club's founders and past presidents. Scheduled several months ago as a gay, festive event, the occasion proved to be solemn and tense as members and their guests hovered around a large television machine to see and hear the President deliver his message to Congress on the grave international situation.

Following the Chief Executive's televised broadcast, a musical program was given by Jean Archer of N. B. C., accompanied by Barnee of the Shoreham. Old familiar tunes of the 1910-1920 era, sung by Archer, eventually broke the tenseness of the atmosphere.

Mrs. Finis J. Garrett, wife of the presiding judge of the United States Court of Customs and Patents, was the only founder present. Injured in an accident several weeks ago, she arrived in an ambulance, was taken to the table in a wheel chair by her nurse.

Past presidents attending included Mrs. Porter H. Dale of Vermont, Mrs. William M. Whittington of Mississippi, Mrs. David Alden Reed of New Jersey, Mrs. Edward R. Burke of Nebraska, Mrs. John Taber of New York, Mrs. Peter G. Gerry of Rhode Island and Mrs. Thomas F. Ford of California.

Several of the past presidents, including Mrs. James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, Mrs. Harold Burton of Ohio, and Mrs. Joseph Frelinghuysen of New Jersey were out of town but sent greetings.

Mrs. Clifford Davis, current club president, welcomed the honor guests. Mrs. Everett Dirksen, program chairman, announced the events. Glimpsed among those present were Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, Mrs. Carlos P. Romulo, Mrs. Aime J. Forand, Mrs. LeRoy Johnson, Mrs. Albert Thomas.

Mrs. Doyle Discusses Current Educational Trends

Current trends in education that need the understanding and support of women were outlined yesterday by Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the D. C. Board of Education, in an address before the Chevy Chase Women's Club.

Too few young men and women are being trained for a teaching profession, Mrs. Doyle said, and she asked women not to discourage their children from pursuing careers in education.

She also pointed out that especially bright children are being neglected in our schools and that there should be an "enriched curriculum for those who can take it" within the public school system.

Education offered for young Germans in the American zone of Germany is greatly insufficient, the speaker reported. She said we should open the way for more young German students to come to the United States for first hand teachings in democracy.

Sees Arts as Basis for International Understanding

Exchange of contributions in visual language, the arts, offer a much simpler basis for international understanding than exchanges of written and spoken language since foreign tongues are so difficult to master.

This was emphasized yesterday in a talk by Thomas M. Beggs, assistant director of the National Collection of Fine Arts, at the Zonta Club luncheon meeting.

Through the study of art history, several of our contemporary international differences can be discerned, he said. Currently most encouragement is given in this country to South American artists.

Mr. Beggs illustrated his talk with colored slides.

Doings of the Day . . .

A fashion show will follow the dinner meeting of Junior Woman's Club of Chevy Chase, 6:30 p. m. at the clubhouse. There will also be a discussion of plans for the spring dance scheduled for May 7 at Wardman Park Hotel . . . A bridge party for the benefit of the Jesuit Mission in Hot Springs and Revere, N. C., will be given at 1:30 p. m. at Wardman Park Hotel.

Canine Blue Bloods Preen For Kennel Show; Ether Flashes Churchill Wit

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THE National Capital Kennel Club is having its show indoors for the first time in its distinguished canine history. The National Guard Armory has been taken over for April 3 and 4 with a gala evening premiere to start the show off right.

A panel of judges has been assembled, with Tuxedo Park's Congresswoman Katherine B. St. George heading the list. Mrs. Sloan Colt and Miss Lillian Tiffany will pass judgment, too, as will "Cassie" St. George's daughter, Mrs. Allan A. Ryan.

"Prune" St. George Ryan has managed "Prune's Own" Kennel since she was a teenager and has raised a dozen varieties of dogs, everything from cockers and setters to Australian dingo dogs. All entries must be made before noon on March 22. If your bow-wow is registered with the American Kennel Club call John Anderson, president of the National Capital Kennel Club. If your pet is reasonably well bred, enter it, too. You never can tell; sometimes a Fido walks off with a blue ribbon!

Father's Famous Wit

RANDOLPH CHURCHILL, about to leave for London after a winter lecture tour, wired his famous father of his pending return. In a flash from austere England the Churchillian reply zipped through the ether. "Everyone's waiting with open arms—all except the fatted calf!"

Debut for Perfume

IN ROME, back in 1937, Russian-born Marchese Maria Fumasoni-Biondi started dabbling with unromantic sounding substances called essential oils.

She concocted a perfume which was so admired by her friends that she had to give away ounce after ounce of the precious stuff. Eventually the demand became so great that she and her daughter, Mussia, went into business on a small scale. Some of the perfume was sent to the Italian Pavilion at the World's Fair, then the war halted everything.

During the last few years the Marchese's business has skyrocketed. She has a factory where about 200 are given full-time employment and still others work in the Merano glass factory near Venice, turning out the exquisite bottles which the two Fumasoni-Biondis dream up. The Marchese's son, Leone, who was once a correspondent for a Milan newspaper and, during the war, taught at Georgetown University, has given up journalism to handle the family product. The Marchese, incidentally, is a sister-in-law of Cardinal Fumasoni-Biondi, a former papal nuncio in Washington and now head of Vatican propaganda.

Widow, 29, With Two Small Children and Legacy From Late Husband, Considers Marriage to Sweet Young Man, Whose Congeniality Is His Only Asset

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been reading your column faithfully since it first appeared, and now I would like to avail myself of some of your remarkable insight and acumen.

I am a widow, 29, and have two children (ages 8 and 5), and am deeply in love with a man my own age. At the moment he is almost penniless but has a job which in time should amount to something financially.

The difficulty is cash of my own. My late husband left me about twenty-five thousand dollars, and I had always intended, in the event I remarried, to put that money in trust for my children and depend entirely on my new mate to support the household. I do not think it wise or proper to use a late husband's legacy to finance second marriage.

Wants Helpmeet To Support Home

I HAVE mentioned my intention to my fiance and he says only that a change in my living standards would follow; that he could not support me and my children in the way I have been supporting them with my legacy.

Would it be wise, do you think, for me to forego my plan and put some of my inheritance into the marriage? The man is sweet, with a fine cultural background, religious in the philosophic sense (though he belongs to no church), not at all an adventurer, and I would love to have him with my children as they grow up.

Do you think it fair that I should use my first husband's money to help make this second marriage work at the outset? Would it be to my children's interest? Perhaps it is somewhat unreasonable to expect a man to settle down to support a wife and someone else's two children. I haven't expressed myself very well, but I hope you can help me. G. F.

Man Is Seeking Sanctuary, Too

DEAR G. F.: You would be annexing a third child of sorts, not a second helpmeet of adult caliber, if you were to marry this sweet young man, who is practically penniless and limply candid about the fact that he is pretty unpromising provider material.

What he is after, really, is a prefabricated design for living, to take him out of the aimless drifter category and cut him in on various forms of security and social purpose in an already-going concern,—all of which you represented to him when he was first moved to consider marriage, after sampling the comfortable brand of home-hospitality your legacy provides.

Like so many immature males, his unconscious objective in marriage is to find sanctuary in relation to a sweetly protective, also fascinatingly feminine, mother-substitute,—an arrangement whereby he will solve all his psychological and social inadequacies, he hopes!

Thus while he isn't a fortune hunter literally, and probably wouldn't marry money for its own sake purely, and whereas I am willing to assume that he came into your orbit with interest quickened by your personal charms, nevertheless it is safe to say that the decisive factor in stabilizing his interest was your aura of financial and maternal competence,—which dovetailed with his inner sense of what he is seeking in a wife.

No Sound Basis For Partnership

NOW, about the mathematics of the situation: Your rationale of what you think would be right is hard to follow. However, it seems that your legacy is your source of support, which signifies that you are spending capital to meet current expenses, ergo that your funds are dwindling daily,—hence your desire to marry a good provider, to conserve some of the father's estate for the children's future.

If such is the picture, your affluent air is deceptive, because twenty-five thousand dollars could hardly stretch farther than 10 years at most in supporting a household of three. And as for investing part of the legacy to pump-prime second marriage if you wed this man, I suppose you mean his salary is barely sufficient to keep himself, and that you'd have to finance the household as usual.

As matters stand, I think both of you are having the veils of illusion rent; that neither can meet the other's needs, much less fulfill the beautiful dreams that earlier phases of courtship conjured up; and thus I believe that to marry each other would be a change for the worse, for both.

Ambassador Gives Belgian Medal

The Belgian Ambassador, Robert Silvercruys, presented the Gold Medal of the Order of the Crown to one of Belgium's loyal citizens, the other day.

He was Francois Van Den Bosch, a family retainer for 32 years—20 years as butler to the Ambassador's father and the last 12 years with the Ambassador.

The ceremony took place on Friday at Francois' bedside, less than 24 hours before he died. He was buried Tuesday in a Washington cemetery.

Do's and Don't in Luggage Care

Here are some hints on how to get the longest wear from your new luggage:

Do's . . .

1. Use neutral shade of saddle soap on all leather surfaces, and apply at least twice yearly.
2. Store in moderate temperature, away from radiators.
3. Always cover or wrap luggage before storing.

Don'ts . . .

1. Don't place in rear auto trunk without proper protection against sharp projections and bolts.
2. Don't forget to brush out the inside every few months if your luggage is not in use. Moths find happy hunting in felt lined pockets.

Hat of 1924 Blooms Anew as 1948's Spring Bonnet

TWO versions of the "Love Bird" hat, 1924 and 1948, are shown here. Both made by Mme. Rosa Reiss, they tell the story of hat style changes in the past quarter of a century. Above, the modern mode, with snug crown fitting the head and worn back from the hairline. It is made of delicate tagal straw of a soft shade of gray, the brim lined with rose. A black satin ribbon circles the crown and falls into two long streamers. Two love birds, in brilliant colors, are embroidered on the crown and streamer

By Arthur Ellis—The Washington Post

THIS is the hat made 25 years ago by Mme. Reiss. Of identical fabric and design as the modern version, it has different construction. Note the 6-inch crown, reaching down to the eyebrows, a style that was in vogue during the "Roaring '20's." Both hats will be seen in a Warner-Pathe newsreel soon

By Peggy Preston

THIS IS the story of the metamorphosis of a hat.

It was 24 years ago that Rosa Reiss, a young designer, first made fashion news with her series of "Love Bird" hats. Today in Washington, she has just completed new versions of the same chapeaux using identical materials and theme. Main difference is in construction—the crowns have dropped from approximately 6 inches to 3 during a decade and a half.

Also women are wearing hats differently now. They are perched back off the brow, revealing the hairline. The vogue in 1924 required that they fit down on the head like helmets.

The first series of "Love Bird" hats made their debut in New York, where they proved so popular along the Gay White Way that Pathe News made a newsreel of 12 models, flashed it across the Nation as fashion news. The Washington Post and other newspapers carried pictures on the women's pages.

Changes in 25 Years

This winter the newsreel firm, now known as Warner Pathe, approached Mme. Reiss once more, suggested, "How about another series of 'Love Bird' hats—the same idea, but modernized. Let's see just what has happened to hats in the last 25 years."

The little designer set to work in her Connecticut ave. workroom and completed the new series. Once again the newsreel cameras cranked away in her shop and within the next week or so theater patrons will see the films on the screen, together with the antiquated reels of the former hats.

Mme. Reiss, who was born in Holland and came to this country 42 years ago, recalls how she came to create the first models. Returning from a trip to Paris in 1923, the ship's captain presented her with a pair of Javanese love birds, delicate little creatures with exquisitely colored plumage.

Birds An Inspiration

Pete, as the male bird was called, and his mate lived to a ripe old age in their cage at the Reiss residence, the pets of the entire family. But first they proved the inspiration for artistic Mme. Reiss. She noted their pale gray feathers, the beautiful touches of pink, yellow and blue on their wings, heads and beaks. Using no feathers, for she considers birds too precious to be killed and used for millinery purposes, she duplicated the colors on fabrics. She embroidered pictures of the love birds themselves on ribbon and straw, worked their many-hued plumage into felts, flowers and satins.

At that time she completed a dozen originals. This spring she has made four and hopes to reproduce several more before the season is over.

"There is so little difference in hat styles," she explains. "Primarily it is a matter of how we wear them and that depends on the hair styles of the moment."

Mrs. Linney, Col. Clabaugh Married Here

The marriage of Mrs. Maitland Thompson Linney and Col. Samuel F. Clabaugh took place yesterday at the Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church, the Rev. Edward G. Latch officiating. Only members of the two families were present.

Mrs. Linney, who is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Alexander Thompson of Lumberton, N. C., has made her home in Washington for the past four years.

Colonel Clabaugh is a native of Birmingham, Ala. He served as Assistant Military Attache in London in 1941, and during the war served in the Middle Eastern, European and China theaters, and on the War Department General Staff in Washington. He is now a member of the faculty of the Industrial College of the Armed Forces, Fort Lesley J. McNair, Washington.

After a trip to the West Coast, Colonel and Mrs. Clabaugh will make their home at the Westchester Apartment, Washington.

Budget Diet By Ida Jean Kain Begins Monday

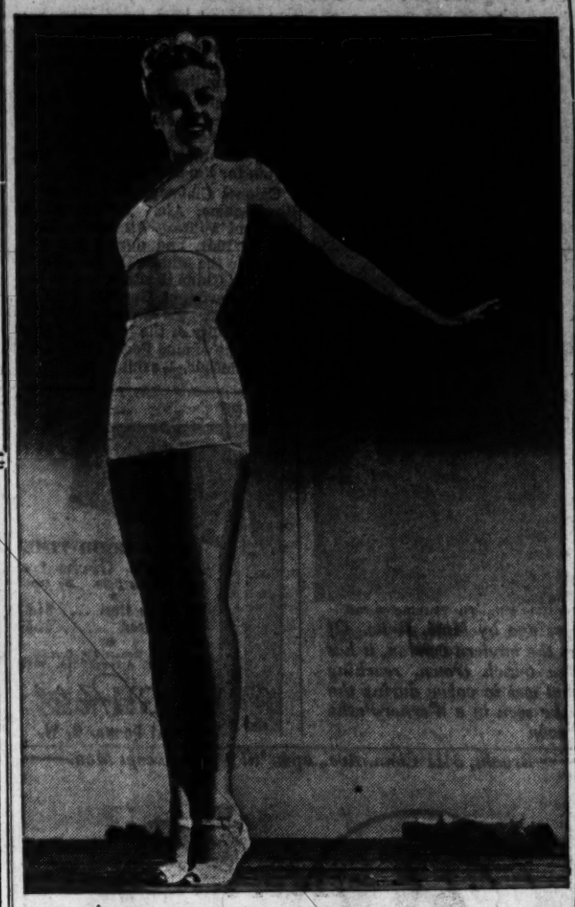
"Diets are fine for my figure, but the expensive foods slenderize my purse as well."

Is that your complaint?

Here's the answer: Ida Jean Kain's new budget diet beginning in Monday's Washington Post. Miss Kain's new 18-day meal schedule will feature stew instead of steak and similar substitutions designed to curb your calories without inflating your food budget.

Follow her menus, daily except Sunday, March 22 through April 10.

Develop the Pectral Muscles To Look Well in Low Necklines



Follow Leslie Brooks' pattern and swing into curves. Columbia's young starlet goes up on her toes and makes wide backward circles with both arms to straighten shoulders and tone the pectral muscles.

By Ida Jean Kain

The "pneumonia low neckline" puts the minus sign on the flat-chested girls. Chest up, girls . . . let's go after curves.

No shallow-breather ever has curves. But just taking a few quick whiffs in front of an open window won't develop a healthy chest . . . you have to create a demand for more oxygen, and that you do with exercise.

To help you breathe with your diaphragm, we'll try the towel trick that developed curves for one flat-chested girl. Wrap a towel around the ribs, just below the breasts, then exhale, letting every speck of breath out of the lungs. Now, twist the towel in front as tightly as possible and keep it that way—breathe in deeply, pushing against the towel; exhale, pulling in; and push against the towel again with each deep breath. Continue for 20 counts. The tightness of the towel offers resistance and the lungs work like a bellows as you breathe, pushing against tight towel and diaphragm.

And how about a row—right in your own living room? One actress I interviewed confided that she developed lovely curves by that method. Sit on the floor, feet anchored under heavy piece of furniture, elbows bent, hands together in front of chest. Now . . . row . . . row . . . row! Bend forward, pushing arms forward, then come back, bringing arms back vigorously and forcing elbows back as if against resistance.

There are any number of ways to develop the chest. Practice the old-fashioned breast stroke as used in swimming. Thrust arms straight out in front of chest, separate arms, circling down, around and keep circling for about 25 counts, later 50. Let the swing be rugged and rhythmical. Grandma did the breast stroke and she was not flat-chested!

Hints on Setting The Dinner Table

A table cloth should never be used without a silence cloth of suitable material under it. Mats, however, should never have coverings under them.

Candles should never be used on a luncheon table unless the shades in a dining room are drawn; they are most appropriate, however, on a dinner table.

When place mats are used for dining their edge should be as near the edge of the table as practicable.

Your Questions on Homemaking

How can I remove a large water spot from a rayon satin chaise longue? Could you suggest something to use to clean the whole piece of furniture?
A. B.

You may be able to make the spot inconspicuous by rubbing it with the edge of a dull silver knife. Of course, you'll want to be careful not to "rough up" or mar the surface of the satin in the process. Unless the material fades badly, you should be able to clean it nicely with one of the foam type of upholstery shampoos. This will also help to get rid of the water spot. Or, if color in material runs, use one of the dry cleaning fluids sold as upholstery cleaners.

I have mislaid a recent issue of the paper containing the solution proportion of lemon oil and water for "lintless dustcloths." Will you repeat it soon? O. M.

One pint of hot water and ¼ cup of lemon oil.

Will you tell me the best way to bleach a crocheted doily? There seems to have been several dye lots used in it. Chlorine bleach will not do the job.
C. R. B.

I'd suggest using one of the dye stripping agents made by the manufacturers of dyes for home use. As you probably know, they're available in drug stores.

How can I keep eggs and other foods from sticking in a stainless steel skillet? P. G. L.

A film sometimes forms on stainless steel which is not easily removed with soap and water. This may be what is making food stick in your skillet. The film yields to a mild scouring powder applied with a soft damp cloth.

Could you give me a recipe for European or possibly Jewish so-called corn bread? It isn't made with corn meal at all, but probably with rye flour and possibly middlings. A. L. G.

I haven't such a recipe and wasn't able to locate it in a recent Jewish cookbook. Perhaps you can find it in other cookbooks of this type or European cookbooks at a public library. Or perhaps some of our readers are familiar with it and will be kind enough to send in a recipe.

I recently came across a darling picture of a sweater with knitting instructions and wonder if you know of any kind of club or organization that does knitting to raise funds. If so, will you please send me the name and address? I'd like to know the price charged if possible? I'll be glad to send wool and instructions for same. K. W.

Do any of you readers know of such an organization?

Can you tell me how to care for an asphalt-tile kitchen floor?
J. H.

Under normal conditions, such a floor requires only a light sweeping and occasional washing and waxing. But do not wash or wax your asphalt-tile floor until two weeks after installation to allow the adhesive to set thoroughly. It is not necessary to wash the floor frequently. Cleaning powders are made by some asphalt-tile manufacturers for this purpose. Use self-polishing wax to protect the floor and make it more attractive. Two thin coats are better than one thick coat because they will dry more thoroughly and make a harder surface. Never clean asphalt floor with gasoline, benzine, naptha, turpentine or organic solutions. Don't expose to oils, greases and solvent waxes such as paste wax as they will damage the surface. Don't use oily soaps or cleaners or sweeping compounds containing oils, sand or chemicals. Manufacturers advise against applying varnish, lacquer or shellac as they contain ingredients which are injurious to asphalt-tile and also eventually cause unsightly traffic lanes.

Are there any laundries that come out as far as Manassas that have diaper service?
C. H.

I'm sorry to say that a check of diaper service companies in this area failed to locate any that come down to your town.

To H. A. K., who made an inquiry about thinly sliced bread: One of the big national chain store companies makes a large loaf of very thinly sliced sandwich bread in their own brand which is sold locally. I have found it quite satisfactory.
M. S.

We have a black marble chimney mantelpiece that is full of spots, as if some acid had been spilled on it. Would you know of any way to clean it? It does not come off with water and soap or wax. G. W. J.

Stains that are too deep to remove from marble by washing can often be taken out by rubbing with a block of pumice stone, using plenty of water with it. This will dull a polished finish, which must be renewed by rubbing with putty powder (oxide of tin) and a felt pad. (A piece cut from an old hat can be used.) Hard rubbing will be required.

Can you give me any suggestions for making a novel book case? I have no facilities for making a conventional one of wood. It is for an apartment.
L. I. S.

A book case which is modern in appearance can be fashioned with boards for shelves and piles of bricks to hold the shelves up. Purchase 9-to-12-inch-wide boards, planning in advance the exact length you wish them so they can be cut where purchased. These boards can be painted or finished with varnish stain. The bricks could be white bricks, smoothed and waxed, or you could use regular bricks and paint them to match or contrast with the shelves. Interesting effects can be achieved by having the shelves different lengths. This is a good arrangement for an apartment because it can easily be adapted to different living quarters.

Hints for the Busy Homemaker

Leather chairs require a little extra attention every few months to lengthen their lives. Wipe all dirt and dust from the chairs with a damp rag and then rub with a cloth that has been dipped in white of egg, well beaten. Rub well with soft, clean cloths after the egg has dried and the leather will look like new.

The portable ovens for cooking on top of the stove prove a great economy for the small family. This little oven creates very little more heat in the room than any other pan used on top of the stove and yet is a grand saver of the gas bill for the family of two.

If the side of your house is close to your neighbors, you are wise to curtain the windows during the colder months with straight curtains that cover the entire pane of glass. It gives a feeling of privacy and a great amount of freedom that would be impossible when tie-back curtains are used.

Chilimac Is Fine For Teenage Party

Chilimac is a hearty, economical dish—fine for a teen-age gang or for an impromptu "couple" party.

- 2 tablespoons fat
- 1 cup chopped onion
- ½ cup chopped celery
- 1 pound ground lean beef
- 1 No. 2½ can (1 pound 12 ounces to 1 pound 14 ounces) tomatoes (3¼ to 3½ cups)
- 1 No. 1, tall (1 pound) can red kidney beans (2 cups cooked)
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1¼ to 2 teaspoons chili powder, depending on taste
- 6 ounces (about 1 1/3 cups) elbow macaroni

Melt fat in very large deep skillet or use large saucepan. Add onion and celery and cook over low heat for 5 to 10 minutes, until partly tender. Add beef and stir and mash with a long-handled two-tined fork until meat is broken up and has lost its red color. Add tomatoes, red kidney beans, salt, chili powder and uncooked elbow macaroni. Mix well. Cover and simmer gently 15 minutes until macaroni cooks and sauce thickens. Serve immediately. This recipe makes six to eight servings.

To Restore Crispness

Cereals and crackers that have lost their nice crisp texture can be brought back by placing in shallow pans and putting them into a moderate oven from 5 to 10 minutes. Remove when heated through and when cool return them to the tin containers.

Sausages and a salad give variety to a macaroni dinner

Budget Dishes For Two Stretch Food Dollars

By Betsy Nichols

PREPARING meals for two with food costs soaring makes the cook an avid collector of main course dishes that are meat stretchers. Macaroni and spaghetti dishes satisfy even an unusually hearty appetite.

With these main dishes, hard rolls or French bread with garlic are delightful. A tossed green salad is fine on this menu, but fruit salads are also appropriate. One of their best features is their knack of substituting for a dessert if a crisp cookie and coffee are included.

On a chilly evening a dinner resembling a country supper rings the bell. It might be something like this:

Macaroni en Skillet—Sausage
Hard Rolls—Garlic Butter
Virginia Fruit Salad Gingersnaps
Coffee—Milk

MACARONI EN SKILLET

1½ cups elbow macaroni
6 breakfast sausages (6 ounces)
2 halved tomatoes, sauteed
2 tablespoons sausage drippings
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
½ cup grated cheese

Add macaroni to boiling salted mater and boil until tender (about 10 minutes). Drain and rinse. While the macaroni is cooking, brown sausages and tomatoes in hot skillet, turning them with a spoon. If a fork is used, it may pierce the sausages, thus permitting the juices to escape. Ladle 2 tablespoons of the sausage drippings into a saucepan. Stir in the flour to make a smooth paste; add the milk, stirring constantly, and cook until thick. Add rest of ingredients and macaroni. Heat thoroughly. Arrange the macaroni on a hot platter with the sausages and tomato halves on top.

Serve leftover macaroni in bologna cups, made by frying one-eighth inch thick bologna slices quickly on one side in a lightly greased skillet to form cup shapes. Do not remove rind from bologna.

Slash hard rolls lengthwise but do not cut quite through. Between the slices spread garlic butter (1 crushed clove of garlic blended with 1 tablespoon of butter or margarine). Heat the rolls in a fairly hot oven 10 or 15 minutes.

To any apple salad, such as Waldorf, cubed pineapple, seeded Tokay grapes or banana slices may be folded in for flavor variation.

SPAGHETTI FOR TWO

3 ounces long spaghetti
1 tablespoon fat
¼ pound dried beef
¾ cup condensed tomato soup
⅛ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon pepper
Parmesan or other hard cheese

Gradually add the spaghetti to 3 quarts boiling, salted water and boil until tender (about 12 minutes). Drain and rinse. Melt the fat in a skillet and brown beef. Add tomato soup, mix well and heat thoroughly. Arrange the spaghetti on a hot platter, pour the meat sauce on it and sprinkle with cheese.

Choosing Fabrics

Beginner sewers should remember that fabric construction, not the kind of fibers used, determines whether a fabric is easy or difficult to sew. In selecting fabrics that will be easy to work with, look for medium-weight, firmly woven fabrics.

Memorandum to the Housekeeper . . .

Milk is a splendid cleaner for piano keys. Apply on a soft cloth and polish with a clean duster.

A few drops of olive oil added to the water in which chamois gloves are being washed will keep them soft and pliable.

It is never extravagance to have lights placed so that stairs are revealed plainly throughout the house. Just one nasty accident due to lack of lights will prove this to be true.

Give the bed a chance to air before making it. Throw back the covers and remove the pillows and quilts and let the fresh air reign supreme for at least an hour. You will enjoy the fresh, sweet-smelling atmosphere of your bed.

Tips on Browning Potatoes

If you find the dinner is going to be delayed for some time and the potatoes will have to stay in the boiling water too long, remove them and place in a frying pan with a large lump of butter. Keep the fire at its lowest and the potatoes will brown very slowly and result in crispy rissole potatoes and no harm done waiting.

her mother because the mother was too strict and favored the other sister.

Because of the constant danger of physical "accidents," Ruth has been unable to have dates with boys although she is attractive.

There has been good improvement under psychotherapy. She now has dates and has entered a secretarial school.

Although the Bureau of Mental Hygiene operates on a very limited budget (about $31,000 in District funds plus $11,000 in Federal grants in aid) last year it treated 983 persons in the alcoholic clinic, 178 in the adult clinic, 97 in the epileptic clinic and 318 in the child guidance clinic.

Dr. Wexler has a small staff, only two psychiatrists, two psychologists and two psychiatric social workers. He would like to enlarge the bureau's clinical operations to include, among other things, a clinic for marital difficulties.

Dr. Wexler, 59, was born and raised in Vienna and studied under such world-renowned figures of psychiatry as Sigmund Freud, Wagner Jauregg and Alfred Adler.

After receiving his degree from the University of Vienna, Dr. Wexler did post-graduate work in Berlin and Paris before returning to Vienna to do clinical work and private practice.

He came to the United States in 1934 and for seven and a half years was a professor of neurology and psychiatry at Louisiana State University. While at LSU, he organized a child guidance clinic in New Orleans.

He entered the army in 1942 and was discharged in 1945 as a lieutenant colonel. On November 1, 1945, he was named director of the District's newly formed Bureau of Mental Hygiene.

A diplomat of the American Board of Neurology and Psychiatry, Dr. Wexler has written several books on psychiatry.

Miss Moorman Becomes Bride Of John Randall

The wedding of Miss Patricia Moorman and John Randall took place yesterday morning at 11 o'clock in St. Alban's Church, the Rev. Charles T. Warner officiating. The bride is the sister of Walter H. Moorman of Bethesda, and Mr. Randall is the son of Mrs. P. J. Randall of St. Louis, Mo.

Only relatives and a few intimate friends attended the quiet ceremony and the reception which followed in the north lounge of the Carlton Hotel.

The bride was costumed in ice-blue gabardine suit with Navy blue accessories. Her Navy blue straw hat was trimmed with ice-blue and shocking pink flowers, and she carried a white bridal prayer book covered with pink camellias.

Mrs. Harold Austin Miller of St. Louis, Mo., was matron of honor for her sister. She wore a brown gabardine suit with brown straw hat trimmed with dusty pink flowers. Loren E. Milner of Hagerstown, Md., was best man.

After the reception the couple left for a honeymoon at the Homestead, Hot Springs, Va., and Sea Island, Ga. Upon their return, they will make their home in New York City.

Local Woman Has Chance to Win $20,000 Jackpot

A Washington woman is going to get a crack at $20,000 in prizes Friday night on the radio program "People Are Funny."

She's Mrs. Gay Rittler of 3425 E. Capitol st., who is flying out to Hollywood to try her luck with the Raleigh Riddle.

If she guesses the correct answer to the riddle, Mrs. Rittler will get a completely furnished home in California, a 1948 automobile, a garage to put it in, $2000 in cash, and a few zillion other things.

So let's keep our fingers crossed for District Liner Rittler, and wish her luck. Her hubby is going to remain in Washington and listen to WRC—no doubt chewing his fingernails, if he has any left by 9 o'clock tomorrow night.

SPRING COMES TO OUR PADDYWAGONS

Poet Em Tee turns to prose for just long enough to report:

"While waiting for the light to change at 15th st. and New York ave. nw. yesterday, I saw a police patrol wagon.

"As I looked into its back door, I was amazed to find it loaded with all sorts of spring flowers.

"They seemed so out of place in a patrol wagon, I couldn't help but wonder what they were doing there."

Maybe they were potted, Em Tee.

RUSS OUGHT TO OBEY HIS OWN LAWS

Commissioner John Russell Young is still setting a bad example for his constituents.

Ample berthing space for official cars is provided on the 13½ st. side of the District Building. But Mr. Young often finds it more convenient to have his chauffeur wait for him on the 14th st. side.

Because of the safety zone, there are only two lanes of northbound traffic at this point, and the presence of the big Buick carrying No. 1 license tags creates a serious traffic bottleneck.

WHAT BIG WORDS YOU USE, BRIAN

A friend of mine named Brian Malloy has been burgled of some lumber, and wishes to register a complaint.

Brian is 2 year old and stands 32 inches high. His best fighting weight is between 35 and 40 pounds. (He's the son of Daniel J. Malloy of 3303 Auburn Gardens, Alexandria, Va.)

BRIAN

The other day Brian was helping with some construction work engineered by two elderly companions — his 5-year-old brother, Terry, and 4-year-old Billy de Cherniss of 3301 Auburn Gardens.

Lumber for the project was being sorted on the back porch when Terry and Billy decided they didn't have enough and went off in search of more, leaving Brian to stand guard.

While the two older boys were away, a 6-year-old intruder appeared and, in spite of Brian's lusty protests, made off with part of the collected lumber.

When Grandma answered Brian's clarion call for help and asked what all the commotion was about, Master Malloy replied through rivers of tears:

"Somebody stole our pwoperty."

GIVE-AWAYS

"One calico mama cat." (Franklin 2491).

"Two male cats, about half-grown; one is very beautiful, the other very shy." (Daytime, Executive 6400, extension 360; evenings, Hobart 5072).

LEFTIST ITEM

W. J. Armstrong of Monticello Hall, Alexandria, Va., is surprised to learn that a firm in England plans to market a complete line of tools for left-handed people.

BACHELOR OF PHILOSOPHY

Morris Katz of 303 D st. ne. reports a bit of conversation he overheard while waiting in an income tax line:

First Man: I'm afraid I'll have to pay about $150 this year.

Second Man: What's you squawking about? They'll probably nick me for close to 300 bucks. I'm single.

First Man: No exemptions, eh? Too bad you're not married. If you were married you'd be paying only $150, like me.

Second Man: Yeah, but the way I've got the $300 to pay. If I were married I'd have to borrow the $150.

Listen to Bill Gold each noon, Monday through Saturday, over WINX (1340) and WINX-FM (96.3).

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

'Peace Manifesto' Ready for Italy

By Drew Pearson

One of the great things about the American people is that they believe in working at democracy. And when the gentlemen in Washington fail to exert leadership, as they're inclined to do these days, more and more plain ordinary patriotic people pick up the democracy ball and run with it.

SHERWOOD

For instance, the State Department long ago was supposed to be telling the Italian people that we are their friends and that when they go to the polls to vote April 18, they shouldn't be afraid to vote against Russian terrorism. However, partly because of decreased funds, the State Department has been dragging its feet.

Therefore, a group of Americans suggested to Bob Sherwood, foremost American playwright, that he write a short message "to the people of Italy from the people of America." Sherwood has written such a message, printed below, and now money is being raised by others to drop several million copies, printed in the Italian language, over Milan, Venice, Naples and Rome.

Other Americans who have friends or relatives in Italy can clip the message and mail it direct to Italy.

During war, the Government spends millions dropping information behind enemy lines. It's called "psychological warfare." In peace, psychological warfare is even more important, even though the Congress and the Government don't always think so.

Here is the "manifesto for peace" prepared by Americans who are ahead of their Government in trying to make democracy live:

"TO THE PEOPLE OF ITALY FROM THE PEOPLE OF AMERICA:

"We, the American people, are proud to reaffirm the strong bonds that have always existed and always must exist between the people of Italy and ourselves.

"These bonds survived through more than 20 years of Fascist dictatorship and through the devastating war that fascism imposed upon the civilized world. These bonds are again threatened by another form of totalitarian dictatorship.

"The new world, in which we Americans live, and in which the cause of freedom has flourished, was discovered by a great Italian, Christopher Columbus. Both continents of this New World have been largely settled and developed by men and women of Italian birth.

"We look to Rome as the cradle of our civilization, and, for many of us, the eternal citadel of our religious faith.

"We have fought for freedom on our own shores. We have fought for freedom in Europe, in Africa, in Asia. Today, the whole world has seen too much of the savagery and destruction of war and wants to see no more of it. We believe that war can be avoided if the free peoples of the world will keep strong their democratic institutions by resisting all the sinister forces of intimidation which seek to destroy them from within.

"We Americans want the Italian people to know that we are with them wholeheartedly in their struggle to maintain their freedom and their dignity in a world that is again darkened with the threat of oppression and slavery."

The Housing War

Senator Charles Tobey of New Hampshire clomped angrily out of a joint congressional housing meeting the other day, leading a wholesale walkout, after his fellow Republican, Senator Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin got wound up in a filibuster against public housing. It was an incident which every man looking for a home should know about.

Tobey had the majority for a bill which would provide 15 million homes in 10 years. McCarthy, faced with defeat, tried to stall.

As McCarthy talked on, Sparkman passed a copy of Flanders' public housing recommendations around the table until a majority had signed it. With this done Tobey jumped to his feet, shouting:

"I am not going to stay here and take any part in this if there is going to be a filibuster!"

He marched out. Since a majority had signed the Flanders report in favor of Government-financed low-cost housing, the rest drifted after him. McCarthy was left talking—to himself.

Note—The committee met next morning, tempers cooler, and formally adopted Flanders' recommendations. McCarthy accepted housing to the last, even after the farm housing proposal after everyone else had joined with it was agreed to give congested cities first priority. But he and Fletcher held out against public housing to the last, even after Tobey.

I live for them

My children are the most of all . . . That life can mean to me . . . Because they are my fondest hope . . . And sweetest memory . . . They are the sunshine of the day . . . That makes my hours bright . . . And they are all my dreams around . . . The silver stars at night . . . I live for them each moment of . . . The weeks and months and years . . . With joy in their accomplishments . . . And sorrow in their tears . . . I want them to grow up and give . . . Their best in every way . . . Especially for every one . . . Who has a harder day . . . I want to help them all I can . . . As long as I may be . . . Because they are my children and . . . They mean so much to me.
